Teachers new contract offers no money this year

A deal struck between the Ministry of Education and the BC Teachers Federation will do nothing for local teachers. Princeton teachers had a look at the contract last week.

Local teachers will conduct a vote during the week of May 11. All teachers in B.C. will vote during that week. Results will not be tallied district by district, but will be counted on a province-wide scale. If one district votes against the contract, the contract may still be accepted by the majority of B.C. teachers. If the majority vote in favour of the contract as presented last week, that is the contract all B.C. teachers will live with for the next three years.

Lumber manufacturers' crisis sparks criticism of government

The annual Interior Lumber Manufacturer Association conference, held in Kelowna April 24, left no doubt there is a major crisis in the lumber manufacturing industry. A panel of speakers spent the morning talking about various aspects of the forest industry, and all took verbal shots at the provincial government.

The conference theme was "Jobs Today - Jobs Tomorrow". Confidence in jobs today or tomorrow appeared to be far lower than in the past.

There were plenty of politicians in the audience, from MLAs to municipal mayors and councillors, to regional district representatives (Princeton was not represented). One MLA left after the morning's speakers.

Mayor Walter Gray, giving an official welcome to Kelowna, described the forest industry as "the biggest economic engine in our province" and stated the forest industry determines the life of a community.

Speakers were Clark Binkley, Reid Carter, Mike Rouse and Bob Bird for the morning session. All are knowledgeable forest industry

Binkley outlined the good and the bad in today's industry picture. He noted reduced demand from Japan heightened by the yen weakening against the Canadian dollar. He added the impact of the Forest Practices Code, and the increased stumpage rates. Those "bad" items were followed by the "good" factors: good land for growing trees, trees growing faster than expected, good hightech suppliers, and a woodfriendly workforce.

Binkley said the worst thing faced by the industry is "a thick shell of dysfunctional institutions" and "encrusted thinking". There was no doubt he was referring to government.

Reid Carter talked about investment in intensive forestry, better known as silviculture. He described the results of studies done and stated that, in the B.C. Interior, the only significant measures have been genetic improvements (top quality seed) and laterotation fertilization (later in a tree's growth). He emphasized that spacing and pruning may improve size, but reduce quality of fibre. He suggested that secondary manufacturers using smallwood can utilize mixed stands of timber, and the industry should leave the trees to grow more naturally, without enhancement. He described Forest Renewal B.C.'s enhancement projects as a "social" investment to create jobs, but not a true investment in the forest, because there is not enough improvement in the forest to justify the cost, and in some instances, such as overly knotty wood and weaker fibre, there may be a loss of value resulting from the investment.

Mike Rouse was the most outspoken panel member. He talked about the difference between creating jobs and creating wealth; and suggested wealth creation should come first, because jobs will flow from creating wealth.

"Our shareholders are forgotten, the creation of wealth is forgotten, we're just protecting what we've got," he told the conference, "Environmentalists are trashing our industry, we have a hostile business climate, and govdemands ernment scare investors."

He said Quebec does a better job of government/industry co-operation, and their forest industry is not in crisis condition.

Trade Show '98 promises adventure

Princeton's Trade Show '98 will offer displays by fifty different businesses this year. Displays will range from publishing to construction, home decor and financial assistance.

Christiane Gosselin, manager of Princeton and District Chamber of Commerce, the trade show sponsor, says, "I think the most exciting thing about this trade show is more local businesses participating. Some people have things to offer that we didn't know they had."

She is sure people will find many surprises. There will be many "different" displays, out of the National Day of Mourning

Today, Tuesday, April 28, is a National Day of Mourning for workers killed in workplace accidents or by work-related diseases in the past year.

Flags are at half mast today on B.C. Ferries' vessels, terminals and facilities, at the Parliament Buildings in Victoria and at other government buildings around the province, to honour the dead and injured.

Canadians set aside April 28 as a day of mourning as well as a day to reinforce our commitment to improving safety in the workplace through eduction, awareness and partnership.

Local patients fight for more doctors

Bonnie Cook prior to Gala Night

Princeton area people want their present doctors to stay, they want two more general practitioners, and they want their hospital. They intend to do something about it.

A local Community Action Committee has been formed to spearhead a campaign to support local doctors in their job action and to increase the number of local doctors.

Dina Slowikowski-Campbell chairs the committee. She and others will gather information, discuss what action people can take (such as writing letters to government and encouraging people to learn more and speak

Anyone wishing to help the committee should contact Dina at 295-6569.

"We need at least two more doctors here so that our doctors can go back to rotating emergency duty," says Slowikowski-Campbell.

The committee feels the government must support payment for on-call time for doctors because, if the money is not there, doctors will not move to rural communities. As it is, B.C. has lost 86 rural doctors in the past year.

The Community Action Committee believes the community must become loud about the situation here because, without the doctors we need, our hospital is in jeopardy.

Gala raises hospital funds

Gala Night, a fundraiser for Princeton General Hospital and Ridgewood Lodge Foundation, was a success for the second year. No totals are available for net returns. Foundation Chair Bonnie Cook recorded $6,245 for the live auction, ably conducted by auctioneer Don Raffin, and $5,545 for the silent auction.

Cook said she was impressed with the Royalty candidates, who served canapes, and with their friendly attitude.

For entertainment, local doctors performed a skit, but the main entertainment was the auctioneer's style. Everyone had a good time.

Rotarians assisted by running the bar. Proceeds from their work will go to Princeton Search and Rescue Society and the RCMP bike patrol.

Circle May 6 for Trails

Use of the Kettle Valley Railway bed as part of the Trans Canada Trail will be the topic of an important meeting at the Princeton and District Skills Centre on May 6 at 7:00 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to bring together all parties interested in the trail and form a local group to represent the interest of our area in the trail network.

The FRBC Strategic Plan for Princeton includes the development of the trail. Those who attend the meeting will receive complete information on the project and will view a video on the TransCanada Trail. They will learn of the efforts of Trails BC.

Bob Bird, owner of Canwood, a furniture factory in Okanagan Falls, used video to show how his company uses products from primary lumber producers and adds value by making furniture. He told lumber manufacturers, "Primary producers need to make deals with secondary producers without government intervention."

At the end of his talk, Bird commented that, if he had to do it over again, he would not invest in a factory in B.C. because of "bureaucratic hoops you have to jump through in Victoria". He said he would go to Alberta, where the government is friendlier to industry.

The afternoon session featured one speaker, David K. Hurst, whose message was directed at the manufacturers. He had written a book called Crisis and Renewal: Meeting the Challenge of Organizational Change. He outlined the 'ecology' of business, and described crisis as the opportunity for renewal. His theory would fit any industry, but he tailored his comparisons to his audience, giving them plenty to think

The theme of the May 8 fashion show and tea is "Gold Rush of '98", a theme echoed around B.C. this year in memory of the Klondike rush in 1898. The Hospital Auxiliary and the Museum Society have joined forces to put on a historical fashion show spanning the past century, but in fact, there are few connections between Princeton and the Klondike. Our gold rush of '98 was at Hedley, a village celebrating its centennial this year.

Though there were few connections with the Klondike, Princeton did have one resident who was written about in Robert Service's poems about the Yukon. Our connection was a man named Salvation Jim.

Salvation Jim had several claims to fame and was considered a legendary figure in history. The name "Salvation" originated in Dawson City, where he was authorized to preach. He carried a letter of introduction in his proper name, Andrew D. Wooler, signed by the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Dawson City, saying Salvation Jim could conduct services.

Robert Service wrote of Jim in a poem called "The Trail of '98".

named Slim Williams, who was driving a dog team from Alaska to the Chicago World's Fair in 1932. As Slim drove the team through Princeton April 27, Salvation Jim decided to go along for the ride. Slim was not receptive to this idea, and it took some convincing by Jim before Slim allowed him along on the trek.

A description of Salvation Jim from the January 18, 1934 edition of the Princeton Star describes Jim as "A human derelict". (Lawsuits were not so frequent in those days). The description goes on:" Tufts of snowy-gray hair flowing from under a tasselled brown toque. Grey woolen socks emerging from oversized rubber boots and pulled up over shaggy khaki wool breeches, with perhaps a tear or two. A grey tweed coat that strives to meet the grey socks". It is not a flattering description, and is no better as the writer goes on to describe Jim's face: "A visage gnarled and furrowed, with sunken cheeks, a curled nose, with ferret-like eyes, and a vast expanse of toothless mouth. All of which under several days' growth of beard."

The image takes away from the notion of the evangelizing preacher to somebody a good deal more rugged and rough, and is probably a better description of the Klondike original. Salvation Jim may have preached, but he never turned down a drink, an adventure, or a good bar-room

The famous trek to Chicago made Jim and his friend famous for a little while. They were introduced to ex-President Herbert Hoover and wife, among other dignitaries.

The men, and the team, remained in Chicago from September 15 to October 5, when they returned west by train.

National Forest Week

National Forest Week will start
May 3 and continue to May 9.
NFW '98 is a celebration of the nation's forests. It is an annual event promoted by the BC Forestry Association and Canadian Forest Service.

The theme this year is "Canada's Forests - Handle With Care".

Fire Success: a forest story

Fire is among the oldest phenomenon known to mankind. Computers are among the newest. When old and new collide, B.C.'s landscapes, residents and visitors reap the benefits.

Each year in British Columbia, an average of 3,000 wildfires damage 35,000 hectares of forests and wildlands. The average fire is less than 15 hectares in size.

Compare that to 30 years ago, when about 1,500 fires each year damaged upwards of 175,000 hectares. The average fire was about 170 hectares in size and it would often take a winter snow to finally cool it off.

So what has changed? B.C.'s population has grown significantly, which has caused more wildfires. But the size of the fires has dropped dramatically, due in large part to the tremendous growth in technology.

The BC Forest Service Protection Program uses aircraft with swifter engines and global positioning systems (GPS) that can quickly guide planes to a pinpoint location. Once on the scene, the aircraft drop specially formulated fire retardant to help slow a fire's growth. More sophisticated helicopters can carry heavier loads, as well as tanks or specially designed buckets of water. Fire fighters have better chain saws, pumps, vehicles and knowledge about how fires behave.

But by far the largest strides in fire fighting have been far away from the flames. Today, sophisticated computers in Ministry of Forests' facilities in Victoria and around the province allow fire

- track lightning storms and strikes which can trigger multiple
- monitor detailed aviation information such as an aircraft's location, direction of travel and speed monitor the condition of wildland areas, including the temperature, moisture level, potential for a fire to spread quickly and overall likelihood of a fire starting
- collect critical information from callers reporting wildfires and then instantaneously transfer that information to the dispatch office closest to the scene
- keep historical records of all fire activity so that Forest Service staff can design fire prevention strategies to protect B.C.'s forests and communities and can position crews and resources in areas where fires occur most often
- link fire control offices through real-time video circuits to view photos, maps and situation updates.

Our economy needs balance

The exodus of British Columbians to Alberta is a major lesson in economics. People are moving to Alberta because Alberta offers jobs. Alberta is a place where people can earn a living. Alberta has industry. Alberta has lower taxes. British Columbia has great scenery and in some areas, the best climate to be found in Canada. However, scenery and climate do not pay the grocery bill. That, folks, is basic economics.

The political ideals running a province have an impact on the economy. Our government has aided radical environmentalists in killing our basic resource industries. Our national government has not improved the situation. At all levels, it seems government exists to suck more taxes out of the employed and industry. Higher taxes discourage those who have jobs and those who might invest and create jobs.

Higher taxes imposed on employed people and on industry support government programs, but everybody pays the price for government programs and political beliefs.

A severe economic downturn is a call for a reality check. We need to evaluate how beliefs, programs and taxes affect the simple need to earn a living. At the end of May, our government is hosting an economic summit for our region. This is an opportunity to provide a reality check for our government. We can tell government what works and what does not. We can say what brings progress and what stands in our way.

There are some of us who need a reality check as much as government needs it. We cannot expect bigger and bigger slices of the government pie when the pie is smaller. No matter how justified we might feel in making demands for more money and services, we cannot take jobs away from some to make better jobs for others. Until we find a way to make our economy more progressive, we are stuck with what we have now. That, folks, is reality. Check it out.

Free Trade is impossible, says reader

When are the Canadian people going to realize that free trade is impossible as long as international monopoly sources are setting the value of the Canadian dollar?

We probably have more resources left, and know how to manufacture them, than most other countries. Yet, by their rules, foreigners think they have the right to devalue our money.

When we buy something in the United states, for example, we pay an exchange toll or tribute to that country and also an import toll or tribute to Ottawa. Did we ever have the privilege of a plebiscite on these tributes?

At the same time, foreign investment is free to come into this country, set up their factories, buy a small amount of automated labour, ship out our resources to benefit their municipalities and leave a great number of us unemployed.

The chief reason we are not able to manufacture our own resources, for our own benefit and employ our people, is that we gave away the use, value and volume, of our domestic money to private international companies in 1913.

Our two, long ruling federal political parties, which have governed us since 1867 also toady to foreign money. Canada was built on foreign debt, not on Canadian created domestic money. Take the Canadian Pacific Railway for example. Is it any wonder we owe so much? In my opinion, the country cannot stand another term of the same treatment. We must vote for new parties which are prepared to take back control of our money system, and employ our own people, manufacturing our own resources for our benefit.

As far as income tax is concerned, we must also examine and obey the law set out by our constitution. Ottawa can no longer run wild over individual, municipal and provincial rights. The division of powers, in my copy of the constitution, states that only provinces have the power of direct taxation, that is income tax. The federal government has the responsibility to control the creation, volume and distribution of money. These powers cannot be traded or given away to anyone.

As it is today, our two old federal parties, with their European mediaeval robber baron thinking, have toadied away the prosperity and well-being of the nation to the international financial monopoly.

Yours respectfully, Roy Thomas

If you do the crime, don't whine

Dear Editor

According to a report in Readers Digest, our government has spent more than $40 million "retro-fitting" a prison in Kingston, Ontario. For years we have all been hearing inmates of prisons moaning that they weren't allowed to watch television whenever they wanted, or that their conditions were not comparable to a luxury hotel, or that they did not enjoy gourmet cuisine daily, and that their "rights" had been compromised. Oh, boo hoo.My heart just bleeds for those poor abused offenders.

What about the rights of lawabiding citizens not to be victimized so that the rest of their lives are affected by the criminal acts of someone else? What about paying the consequences of your actions?

If you don't want to put up with so-called inferior conditions and loss of rights, don't do the crimes. Prison is supposed to be a punishment, not a vacation. I resent that a part of my taxes is being spent to pay for luxuries for criminals.

Sincerely,

P. Harrower, Princeton

Hart knocks Liberal handling of MAI

The Multilateral Agreement on Investment (MAI) is clearly on the minds of many Canadians. However, most have only received information from the alarmists, with some groups going as far as instilling fear into our senior population. The tactics of such groups as the Council of Canadians, I find deplorable. They have chosen the "sky is falling" routine, before they know what is in the agreement, and this, my friends, is 100% pure balderdash!

Let me make it clear, I object to the grits' handling of the negotiating process. You have the right to know exactly how the MAI will affect you, and the Liberal government has mishandled the entire process. It has failed to explain why it is negotiating the MAI. It has failed to explain the costs and benefits, and it has failed to promote any real public discussion. Have you seen the Trade Minister explaining what is in the deal? He has not appeared on any radio or television talk shows. He has not held any town hall meetings on the MAI. In fact, not a single Liberal MP has been actively trying to explain the

All it takes is the upward crease on our faces. Pretty valuable asset, ain't it?

Put a smile at someone you see today. Never know what joy you can give.

Got to jawin' with Gramps the other day. Seems that he and a pal, Dick by name, were rootin' around the barn readying the pack horses for a day of hunting. They heard quite a racket from an old stove pipe in the corner and Gramps went to investigate. Sure enough, spied a pack rat hiding inside. Well, nothing new, just shake it out and stomp the little Seems Dick got a tad impatient, shook the pipe real hard, rat ran out ... and straight up Dick's pant leg! That's how Dick learned to do the two-step!

Saturday is sundae at Dairy Queen

"Dairy Queen" operators across North America are banding together to raise $1 million for Children's Miracle Network (CMN) on a single day. The Dairy Queen system, which has raised more than $30 million for CMN during the past 13 years, has designated Saturday, May 2, as the second annual "Million Dollar Day".

In Princeton, the Dairy Queen store will be hosting SATURDAY SUNDAE. Proceeds from sundae sales will benefit Children's Hospital in Vancouver, a CMN-affiliated hospital.

To surpass the system's $3.1 million pledge in 1997, stores will attempt to raise $250 on "Million Dollar Day" in addition to other fund-raising activities throughout the year. "Million Dollar Day" is an excellent opportunity for "Dairy Queen" operators to raise funds for CMN and increase the community's awareness of and support for such an important cause," said Michael Gazer, National Marketing Manager, Dairy Queen Canada Inc.

CMN is an international nonprofit organization dedicated to generating funds and awareness programs to benefit 165 associated children's hospitals throughout Canada and the United States. CMN produces the largest annual television fund-raiser in North America, broadcasting live on May 30-31 from Walt Disney World in Orlando, Florida.

"CMN has been the charity of choice of "Dairy Queen" for the past 13 years," said Gazer. "Our operators are motivated by the fact that money raised locally will directly benefit the CMN-affiliated hospital in that community."

Princeton children will benefit from the fund-raiser. Last year, 48 Princeton youngsters received treatment at Children's Hospital.

Children's Hospital is an excellent facility that specializes in treating children of all afflictions, including cancer, birth defects, accidents and muscular and cardiovascular diseases. Children's Hospital prides itself on treating the whole child and providing care based on filling the needs of parents and families. The hospitals associated with CMN represent the premier pediatric health care facilities in their respective communities.

International Dairy Queen Inc. licenses and services a system of more than 5,700 "Dairy Queen" and "Dairy Queen/Brazier" stores in Canada, the United States and 23 other countries. International

Vermilion Rebekahs news

Our pot luck lunch was very successful, with all members enjoying others' cooking and baking.

We installed a new Vice Grand (Sister Reheis) and her two supporters. Sisters Bonfield and Caronan. Sister Moore was installed as the right supporter of our Noble Grand while Sister Haayer took the Junior P.N.G.'s chair.

Our meeting was short, so we had lots of time to socialize over tea, coffee and lovely sweets and sandwiches. Sister Ottas won the tea draw.

We wish a speedy recovery to those Sisters suffering from sore knees, swollen wrists, painful ankles and all other problems.

Tougher controls protect victims

As a result of an investigation ordered last fall by Attorney General Ujjal Dosanjh, people protected by court orders are now able to call a 24 hour toll-free line to check that their order is registered.

A system to notify protected persons will advise a victim when an offender named in an order is about to be released from a provincial jail. Persons under protection of court orders will benefit from increased sharing of information between provincial and federal authorities.

New checks ensure that court registries in B.C. send protection orders immediately to the central registry.

Dosanjh said the corrections branch has set up a victim notification unit which will check all convicted offenders about to be released from a provincial jail against the protection order registry. When there is a match, and contact information is available, the unit will notify the protected person about the time of the release, where the offender is being released from, any conditions imposed on the offender and how to obtain further information.

The province is also giving the National Parole Board and Corrections Canada access to the parotection order registry so they can determine whether federal inmates about to be released are named in a B.C. court order pro-

Local course helps identify birds

by Don Burbidge

Can you tell a falcon from a buzzard or a robin from a grosbeak?

The Vermilion Forks Field naturalists are offering a Bird
Identification Course for its members and interested friends.

The course will run for three consecutive Saturdays, starting on May 2, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be a lecture session each morning, with a field trip to a local hotspot each afternoon.

The first session will cover bird watching techniques, equipment, and appropriate clothing. The second lesson will be about migration and habitat requirements (where to look for various families and species of birds). The tird session will deal with nesting, habitat requirements, and various conservation issues. Throughout the course, specimens will be used to help participants with identification techniques.

The course will be given by Madelon Schouten. Registration forms can be obtained from Madelon, call 295-7078.

The next hike is scheduled for May 3, and will proceed along the Kettle Valley rail bed, a level hike. Meet at the bus depot at 10 a.m. and bring a lunch. Call Madelon to confirm the hike.

Amphibians and their habitats: the toads

Amphibians are the only class of invertebrates that lack a special covering on the skin, such as scales, feathers, etc. An amphibian's skin is moist, thin and generally smooth. The skin of amphibians contains two major types of skin glands, mucous glands and granular, or poison glands. Because their skin is permeable, amphibians can both breathe and absorb water through skin. This ability enables amphibians to hibernate underwater in the winter. Lacking an internal diaphragm to aid breathing, the pumping throat serves to force air in and out of the lungs.

The two species of toads in our area both share the same characteristics. Rough granular skin on the upper surfaces of their bodies, with smooth skin on the undersides. This gives them some protection in drier environments and enables them to obtain moisture from the soil directly through the Species in our area are represented by the family Pelobatidea (Great Basin Spadefoot Toad) and by Bufonidae (Western Toad).

Great Basin Spadefoot Toad: These small, two to three inch toads live in semi-arid areas of sagebrush, grasslands and open forests. Overall body colour is gray with a blunt snout, and large eyes with "cat's eye" pupils. Nocturnal, they are most noticeable at their spawning sites during late April and early May. The

Reunion planned for July

Geonell Gurr is organizing a reunion for for Princeton Secondary School students who were scheduled to graduate in 1955 and who began school in 1943 or thereabouts.

Geonell has done mail-outs but is concerned about missing somebody. She can be contacted at 21-12000 Hwy. 33 E, Kelowna, B.C. V1P 1K4 or phone 1-250-765-

Geonell would appreciate people in her age group communicating with friends who might not have heard about the reunion. She has no way of contacting the following people: Frances Screen, George Sarich, Ken Schmidt, Stan Olafson, Alvin Newmeyer, Sylvia Metzler, John Kennelly, Nancy Coutts. Melvin Buckmaster, and George Antonich:

Plans include a gathering on July 31 at Princeton Golf Club, where RV hook-ups are available, and golfing opportunities provide entertainment. Princeton Golf Club will take reservations.

males enter the temporary pools and ponds soon after snow melt, they then advertise their presence with a loud, growling call. This call can be heard across large distances, and attracts females and other males to breeding sites. Adapted to their semi-arid habitat, the eggs of these toads hatch rapidly, and the tadpoles grow at an accelerated pace so as to be able to leave the pools before they

The name spadefoot refers to the horny "spade" found on each hind foot. This growth, when combined with a circular motion of the legs, enables the toad to rapidly dig backwards into the ground for protection or to escape the glands are very prominent. Mature females are much larger than the males. When gathered at their breeding ponds, the males wait in the water for the females. Here they grasp any moving object. Males give no loud calls, but have a chirping call that alerts another male to release if grasped. In mid-summer, long schools of tadpoles may be observed as they swim along the edge of local

These toads will eat almost anything they can fit into their mouths. Prey may be chased over the ground and captured with the toad's sticky tongue. A toad with a mouthful will often push with its front feet any parts of the intended meal sticking out of its mouth.

If picked up or molested these toads inflate their bodies to make themselves bigger or they urinate profusely. If really agitated they excrete poison from the parotoid glands.

There is no truth to the myth that handling toads will give a person

Cattle drive teaches lessons

Just back from my annual winter away and catching up on the local papers, thoughtfully saved for me. The March 31, '98 issue of the News Leader has some pictures and articles from the Princeton Rodeo Club dinner held in honour of people from the ranching community. I was honoured to have my name included. Many thanks to the efforts of the rodeo club executive. I can sure see I missed a great time.

Another interesting article, in the same issue, was Memories, the last cattle drive from Tulameen" (by Leona Brewer). It brought back my memory of a cattle drive from the Stenvold ranch (now owned by Arnie and Dianne Willis) to the Canadian Pacific Railway stockyards in Princeton. There were only two cowboys on this drive, Carl Stenvold and myself. We had to drive three old milk cows who would "freshen" anymore in to town on there way to the P.B. Burns packing plant in Vancouver.

Carl was riding a horse called "smokey" and had the only saddle on the farm. It had the regular fender and stirrup on one side. The other stirrup was held up with a piece of rope (times were hard coming out of the "dirty thirties"). Now, these cows had spent their entire life ranging between Allenby and the Princeton graveyard, about a two to three mile ranch perimeter. We were having an awful time getting them beyond their "boundary" (the present yard of Princeton Light and Power) and across the river.

I was riding another Stenvold horse called "Bud", bareback, and things weren't going too good at all.

Carl shouted out, "We might get the cows to town if you use your head not your horse".

I was twelve or thirteen years old at the time and, I suspect, quite a strong-willed "whipper snapper". I told Carl to go to hell.

Carl turned and looked at me, paused, and in his old-country manner, said, "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

I hadn't stayed home long enough in life to be properly disciplined and Carl was the one saddled with the job. We got the cows to town, and those two one-sentence lessons have stayed with me a lifetime.

Carrie's birthday surprise

It was Carrie's birthday. She and her brother Kevin were just starting breakfast when Mom said, "Uncle Joshua and Aunt Susan have invited us to visit their ranch this week." Uncle Joshua raised cattle. He grew hay for them to eat in winter, when snow covered the ground.

"Wow! That's super!" said Carrie.

"Can we go soon, Dad?" asked Kevin.

Last time the family visited the ranch, it was late fall and Uncle Joshua had hired cowboys to help with the round-up. They brought the cattle from the farthest pastures to the field closest to the hay barns for winter. Now it was spring, and time to move the cattle back to the pastures.

"I'm going to help the cowboys," said Kevin.

"I want to ride Aunt Susan's pony, Daisy," said Carrie.

Mom and Dad smiled, "How would you like to go today?"

Carrie was so excited, she could hardly eat her cereal. "I'm going to ride Daisy! Can we go right now?" she asked.

"After you finish eating, you may pack for the trip," said Morn.

When they arrived at the ranch that afternoon, Aunt Susan came outside to greet them. "Hello! I'm so glad you came," she said. "Uncle Joshua is checking the fences before we move the cattle."

"When will we move them? Can I ride a big horse?" asked Kevin.

"Can I ride Daisy?" Carrie asked.

Aunt Susan laughed. "One question at a time, okay? Kevin, you need to talk to Uncle Joshua," she said. Then she turned to Carrie. "I'm sorry, but you won't be able to ride Daisy this time. She is about to have a baby pony, and can't be ridden until after her baby is born."

Carrie was so disappointed.
"But Aunt Susan," she cried, "I wanted to ride her today."

"I know dear," said Aunt Susan.
"You can ride her after she has her baby."

Just then, Uncle Joshua came into the house. "Hi! Kevin, if you want to ride with the cowboys," he said, "you'd better hurry." He turned to Carrie. "Come on out to the barn with me. We'll check on Daisy." by Patty-Ann Peal

When Carrie and Uncle Joshua looked into Daisy's stall, they found a big surprise. Daisy already had her baby. He was standing up on very wobbly legs while his mamma cleaned him.

Carrie dashed to the barn door calling, "Mom! Dad! Aunt Susan! Hurry! Daisy has her baby!" Everyone came running.

Aunt Susan said, "I didn't expect this baby to be born today, but since he was, Carrie, this colt is yours. He'll live at the ranch, but you'll have to take care of him whenever you're here. Happy Birthday honey."

"Oh thank you Aunt Susan," cried Carrie. "He's beautiful! I'll take really good care of him!"

Spousal assault brings probation

Mackenzie Johnson, Lauren Steel, Madison Johnson and Eileen Holland.

Fred Edward Petit, an Alberta resident, appeared in Provincial Court on April 23, 1998, for sentencing on charges of assault, unsafe storage of firearms, and breach of a recognizance. The former Princeton resident pled guilty to all charges, resulting from his assault of Lorraine Morose on October 10, 1997, and his subsequent contacting of Morose despite a peace bond.

Alcohol was a factor in the assault, as Petit had been drinking when he became angry with his former girlfriend. He knocked her around, broke furniture, left once, then kicked the door in when he decided he wanted to come back, and ripped the phone off the wall when Morose called 911. She was cut and bruised in the assault. On that charge, Petit was ordered to pay a $300 fine and serve 18 months probation.

Rescue crew saves trapped man

At about midnight, April 20, a 1991 Chevrolet Cavalier driven by Michael Gregory Hopping, age 40, of Powell River, B.C., was involved in a single vehicle rollover accident 19.5 km. west of Princeton on Highway 3. Hopping was the lone occupant of the vehicle. He sustained severe head injuries and was transported to Princeton Hospital by ambulance then later transferred to Penticton Hospital where he

The cause of the accident is being investigated by the Princeton RCMP. Alcohol is believed to be a contributing factor.

The Princeton rescue truck was dispatched to the scene. The Jaws of Life were used to extract Hopping from the vehicle where he was trapped for a time.

Judge H.C. Stansfield told Petit to "take a good look at yourself" and described Petit's conduct as "outrageous".

Probation includes recommendations for alcohol abuse counselling and anger management training, as well as no contact with his former girlfriend.

When police responded to her call, she showed them three firearms Petit had stored at her home. These were confiscated.

Judge Stansfield told Petit, "Firearms are often used in domestic violence."

The judge fined Petit $100 for unsafe storage and prohibited

Thieves steal tools from garage

Sometime between April 9 and April 15, 1998, a culprit or culprits gained entry to a garage joined to a trailer on Blackmine Road in Princeton, Items taken include several woodworking tools, a chainsaw and lawnmower, several yard rakes and shovels, two mountain bikes and wooden patio furniture.

Some of the tools can be easily identified as they have been marked "W.R. Forbes".

A stereo was removed from a vehicle parked in the garage.

It is believed that the thief or thieves were at the home for quite a length of time and could have returned for more than one trip.

Princeton RCMP are asking the public for information leading to the person or persons responsible for the theft. If anyone has any information, please contact the Princeton RCMP at 295-6911 or CRIMESTOPPERS.

Petit from having firearms in his possession for one year.

On the breach of recognizance, Petit is to serve 30 days under community supervision, during which he must abide by a curfew and abstain from the consumption of alcohol.

KURT SCOTT KRENN

Kurt passed away on Friday, March 20th, at the age of 26, on Green Mountain Road. He is lovingly remembered by Lee Anne Kelleher and their son Kalem, parents Jack & Lynore, brother Richard (Tammy), sister Linnea Stevens (Dean), grandfather Jack Krenn Sr., and Grandmother Isabel Needham, all of Princeton, grandparents Len & Margaret Needham of Summerland, and nieces Tania, Kayla & Kennady.

Kurt was born in Princeton on Mother's Day, May 9th, 1971. He lived all of his twenty-six years in this wonderful community, which he truly loved. Kurt had a passion for hockey and a zest for life, family and friends. His proudest achievement was his son, Kalem. Kurt's gentle heart and his radiant smile will be remembered by his loving family and his many friends.

Services held on March 27th at 1:30pm in the Princeton Arena, were officiated by Eric Goodfellow. Interment at the Princeton Cemetery. Arrangements were made by Fred Netherton of the Princeton Similkameen Funeral Service.

Since I must leave you for a little while, Please do not grieve and shed wild tears and hug your sorrow to you through the years. But start out bravely with a gallant smile and for my sake, and in my name live on and do all the things the same.

Feed not your loneliness on empty days but fill each waking Reach out your hand in comfort and cheer, and I in turn will comfort you and hold you near — and never never be afraid to die for I am waiting for you in the sky.

Words are just not enough to express the appreciation of the Community support we received. The family of Kurt Krenn would like to thank everyone for their love and support.

Thank you to Fred Netherton of Princeton Similkameen Funeral Service; Eric Goodfellow & Ruth; Glen Esdale; Lyle Thomas and Arena Staff; the Legion Ladies for the beautiful tea; Pallbearers, Robert Beausoliel, Darryl Clarke, Tyson French, Kory Krenn, Jaymie Stewart, Jason Willis & Trevor Ball; Lead Honour Guard Chad Corsi and all who stood as Honour Guards for Kurt; and the many people from near and far who came to celebrate Kurt's life. I don't know how we would have gone through it without your support.

Thank you to Weyerhaeuser, Staff and Employees; Minor Hockey; Millionaires (Gents) Hockey; Pumpkins Hockey; Sherwood Maidens Hockey; Penticton Panthers and Kurt's hockey buddies for choosing his favourite hockey warm-up song played at the end of the service. To the many people who came out to our home, sent cards, flowers, or food or gave donations in Kurt's memory, you have no idea how you have touched our hearts. Special thanks and love to Gary & Diane Corsi, Isabelle & Ken Gibson, Lori Thomas, Dianne & Arnie Willis, Bonnie & Dennis Cook, Betty & Scotty Thompson and most of all Gerry and Wayne Waddell who stayed with us every day from morning to night. How could we ever thank you enough.

To anyone we may have missed, our Heartfelt Thanks! KURT'S FAMILY COMING EVENTS

Spring hiking on Holmes Mountain

On the map it is called Miner famous train robber, but most people call that bald prominence to the east of Princeton "Baldy"

and the forested hump beyond

"Holmes Mountain". I am aware that some oldtimers call it "Cox pioneers who lived somewhere in the saddle between the two peaks.

In any case, we'll call it Holmes Mountain. Ten naturalists climbed on a sunny Monday, through wonderful open rangelands scattered with ponds, up through fir forests on a road still covered with snow, to open range again, and a summit

where an old radio beacon stands sentinel. The air was rich with the songs of western meadowlarks, and the warble of robins, yellow rumped warblers, and a western bluebird. There were Canada geese, lesser scaups (bluebills) and coots in the ponds. In the forests, there were ruffed grouse and blue grouse drumming. On the way down, a screaming retail hawk kept track of our progress.

Near the top were beds of brilliant sage buttercups and western spring beauties, and one enthusiast discovered a bed of redtoothed rock moss, so tiny that its

On the way down, the group encountered two cowboys mending fences. One was Jack Cram, owner of the ranch we had viewed from the summit. We talked about the greening of the spring range and of the spread of thoroughly unpleasant invaders such as hound's tongue (those rotten little burrs) and knapweed.

The Delgamuukw decision

by Robert Wicks

Maybe you have seen this word "Delgamuukw" in the press (try pronouncing it Del gam ook to rhyme with book). Get used to it because you have not heard the last of it (for our lifetimes!)

The Supreme Court of this great land came to a decision on an appeal to them from the British Columbia Court of Appeal. That is how it works when one side is unhappy (about the B.C. Court of Appeal decision). Anyway, the Delgamuukw decision can be simplified as to how it will be a part of all of our lives.

About 110 years ago, in a case called St. Catherine's Milling Co. versus The Queen, the judges said something like this:

Parliament (of Canada) has been given the power of legislating (passing laws) for Indians and their lands. The Provinces have a right to a beneficial interest in these lands available to the provinces as a source of revenue (from logging, mining and the like). The revenue comes only after the interest of the province is "disencumbered of the Indian title".

The Judges, sitting a court in England called the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council were hearing a case sent to them from Canada to decide. Again, that was the way it was done in those days.

Said over again, before a province (let us talk of B.C. from here on) can treat land that is subject to Aboriginal title as a source of revenue, the federal government first must extinguish the Aboriginal title by treaty. The province of B.C., since that decision in 1888, took the position that there is no Aboriginal title to extinguish.

So, Delgamuukw is not really new. Updated, yes, because it makes it more clear by reference to oral history and the like, that B.C. had better deal with Aboriginal title real soon. Otherwise, continuing to use Crown lands as a source of revenue will continue the debt to the Aboriginal peoples!

How about this for a newspaper quote (from the Prince Rupert News, April 29, 1911):

"To recognize the title conferred in historic papers, and to refuse to allow a court of justice to decide the question is not an honourable attitude for a guardian government to take. It is a policy worthy only of a set of claim jumpers."

(or in my words: Aboriginal title can be proven. If a government (B.C.) prevents claims being made to court by people over whom they are guardians by law, that government acts like a claim jumper.)

B.C. ignored any attempt at negotiating with Aboriginal associations of any kind. Then (passing a "claim jumper" law), B.C. said 'Whoopee' when in 1927 a committee of Parliament in Ottawa decided "there was no Aboriginal title in B.C.".

The next step by the claim jumpers (B.C. and Ottawa) was to pass a law amending the Indian Act. It became an offence punishable by law for anyone without government consent to raise money from Indians for the purpose of pursuing claims against any government. Gee, wouldn't that kibosh getting to negotiations with the Indians?

If you are interested, watch for the "rest of the story" in the next News Leader. There are significant, but undetermined, amounts of B.C. land that remain encumbered. How Aboriginal title will affect us, not if or when, is the question for each and every one of us.

Ospreys return to nest

by Patti Harrower, Hwy 40 reporter

By Patti Harrower, Hwy 40 Reporter

One of the most certain signs of spring's arrival in the 3-Lakes area is the return of the Ospreys to their nest along highway 40 at Chain Lake, once the lake ice is gone. The nest is easily visible in the top of a tree at the south west end of the lake, near a handy place to pull off the road and watch the birds. The Ospreys were spotted last Friday searching for suitable twigs and sticks to repair their winter-damaged nest. The male Osprey flies by a twig, scrutinizing it for suitability, before snapping it off with his powerful talons to return it to the nest. Saturday, the female was comfortably nesting while the male was actively fishing in the lake (which will not be open to human fishermen until May 1st). A resident living on Chain lake reported the return of the lake loons on Saturday, and there was a report that four white swans were seen on Separation Lakes last Tuesday.

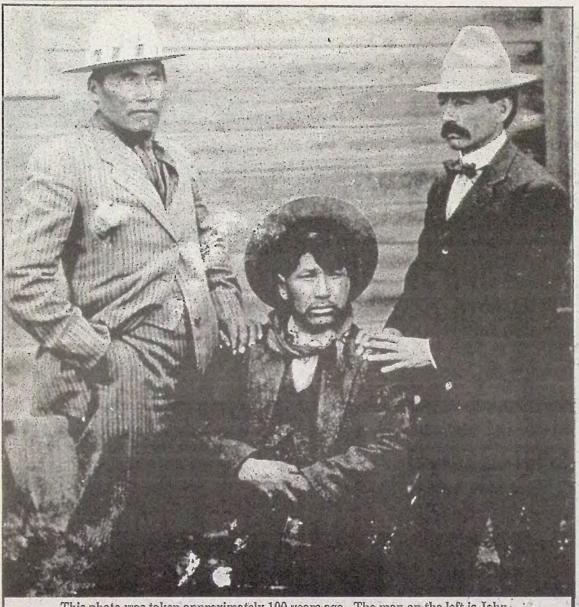

With lake ice gone, Fishermen on Osprey Lake were enjoying warm temperatures and sunshine for most of this third week of April. They report that fish are biting really well in the afternoon when the sun is shining.

The word of local anglers is that fishing regulations have not changed since last year. The limit stands at six fish per day under 5 centimeters, and 1 fish per day over 5 centimeters.

Chain Lake campground, which had been closed for the winter season, has re-opened.

A sure sign of spring. Osprey builds a nest on Osprey Lake.

Every month is Cancer Month

by Diane Araki, Public Health Nurse Okanagan Similkameen Health Region.

As April and Cancer Awareness month draws to a close, we can't forget about it for the rest of the year. With last weeks passing of Linda McCartney, we are once again reminded that cancer knows no bounds.

Whether you are rich or poor, famous, unknown, male or female, vegetarian, meat eater, young or old... it doesn't matter, you too could end up with cancer.

The Canadian Cancer Society states that the most common kind of cancer in woman is breast cancer with lung cancer coming up close behind, (it is interesting to note that 85% of deaths related to lung cancer were smokers!!!). The most common cancer in men is prostate

There are things that you can do to reduce your risk of cancer:

1. Breathe smoke-free air.

Cigarette smoke inhaled both directly and indirectly has been proven to increase you risk of lung cancer. It is important that we continue to get this information out to our children as research shows that 90% of young people who smoke become addicted before their 18th birthday, there has been a noteable increase in the number of young girls/women who smoke over the last few years.

2. Eat Well.

A balanced diet with no more than 30% of calories form fat and one that is high in fibre, antioxidants and vitamins C, E, & A will reduce your risks of breast and bowel cancer. Limit the amount of cured meats and when firing up the BBQ, choose low fat cuts of meat. Nitrates used in curing and the smoke produced when fat drops on hot coals increase your risk of stomach cancer. Variety and moderation are the key words when choosing the food energy that fuels your body.

3. Protect yourself from the Sun. Using a sunscreen with a SPF of 15 or higher everytime you are in the sun will decrease your chance of getting skin cancer by 75%. Do not be fooled if it's a cloudy day, 80% of the suns rays can get through.

4. Make your work environment

Second hand smoke is probably the biggest health hazard in some workplaces. Industrial chemicals such as asbestos, vinyl chloride and benzene increase risks of developing some types of cancer. Become informed about your work environment and get the training to handle and store dangerous substances

5. Regular screening and check-

The Canadian Cancer Society now recommends that women over 50 should have mammography every 2 years. To book an appointment with the travelling mammography van please call 1-800-663-9203. Women should regularly check their breasts every month and if you don't know how, there are regular BREAST SELF EXAMINATION clinics held at Penticton Regional Hospital ONCOLOGY Department. To book an appointment, please call the local office of the Canadian Cancer Society at 490-

Men should have yearly checkups with their family doctor especially those over the age of 40 as this seems to be the age when the prostate begins to enlarge and show changes that may be cancerous.

There are choices which you can make to reduce your risks of cancer. For more information please contact the Canadian Cancer Society at 490-9861 or your local Public Health Nurse.

Chef opens new restaurant

Ron and Evelyn Stevens are opening Rustler's Hideaway on May 1 in the Princeton Hotel.

Ron is well-known in Princeton. Many people will recall his parents' fish and chip shop, operated while Ron was growing up here. In 1982, Ron began a two-year cook training course at Northern Lights College. Following his formal training, he apprenticed at hotels in Victoria, then went to Powell River, where he was kitchen manager and banquet chef at Beach Gardens.

He moved to Falkland, where he owned his own restaurant for six years. He has been working in Princeton for the past year and is ready to open a restaurant featuring fine dining, Canadian-style.

Rustler's Hideaway will offer a full menu from breakfast to dinner, 6:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. The menu will feature steaks, seafood platter, chicken Cordon bleu, and a daily special. Friday will be seafood night.

The restaurant will have a western atmosphere, and Ron will insist on serving the highest quality Canadian beef.

Ron Stevens likes to cook and he likes to make his own food. He will use as little pre-portioned food as possible, and will make his own sauces and salad dressings. Drop in, say hello, and take a look at the menu.
