Town plans history walk

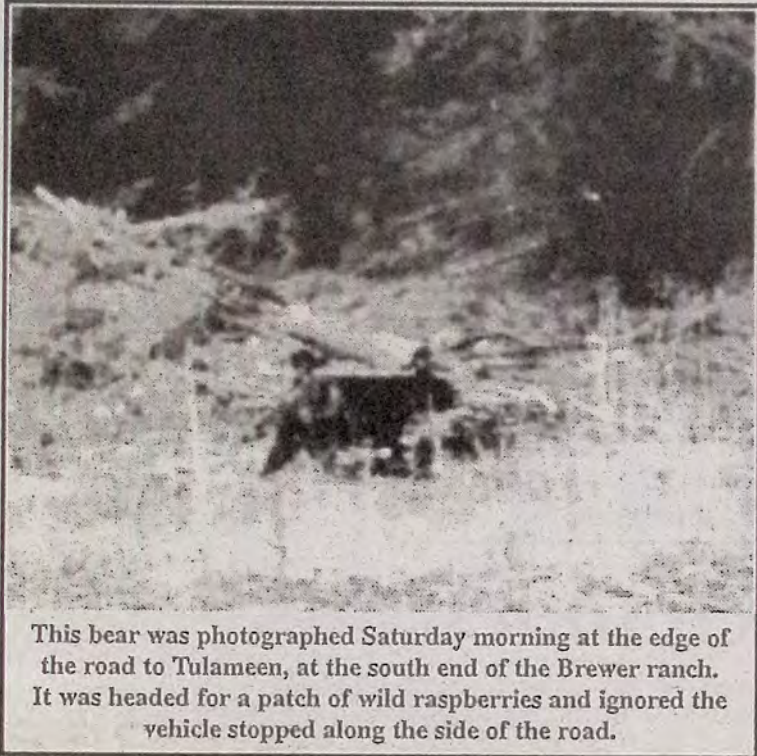

Mayor Randy McLean will unveil eight historic site plaques and inaugurate Princeton's Historic Walk on August 24. The unveiling will be part of a special event planned by Princeton and District Chamber of Commerce.

Alan Lawes, working for the Chamber of Commerce, has worked for two months on a brochure that pulls together information on the sites, photos, and a historic walk map identifying each site by a number code. These brochures will be handed out for the first time on the August 24 unveiling walk.

The Town of Princeton is paying for historic plaques to be attached to a historic building or post by a site. At a club presidents' breakfast hosted by the Town of Princeton earlier this year, the historic walk was identified as a priority project.

Following the first historic walk and unveiling, there will be refreshments at the Cenotaph.

The historic walk brochures will be available to distribute to tourists at the Tourist Information Centre for those who wish to see the history of Princeton.

This bear was photographed Saturday morning at the edge of the road to Tulameen, at the south end of the Brewer ranch. It was headed for a patch of wild raspberries and ignored the vehicle stopped along the side of the road.

High speed chase stops in Cawston

On Sunday, August 16, 1998, at approximately 3:00 a.m., a Keremeos detachment member signalled a vehicle to stop on Ashnola River road west of Keremeos on Highway 3. The registered owner and lone occupant of the vehicle was wanted on an arrest warrant from Saanich, B.C.

The driver refused to stop and a pursuit was launched. The chase went west into Ashnola Canyon. Police pursued for approximately 30 kms, where the trail was lost. Keremeos police call for assistance from the Penticton RCMP Police Service Dog Section, who went to the scene.

As the search for the man continued, police saw his vehicle approaching them at high speed. Due to the speed, police considered it unwise to attempt to obstruct the vehicle's path.

The chase was on again, and RCMP pursued the vehicle through Keremeos and ultimately to Cawston.

On Main Street in Cawston, RCMP cornered the suspect. He abandoned his vehicle, leaving it running and in gear while he fled on foot. The vehicle went on down Main Street until it collided with a shrub at a residence.

A ground search began, and additional assistance came from members of the South Okanagan Highway Patrol and Osoyoos RCMP Detachment. There were no immediate results, but with assistance from observant residents, the suspect's movements were discovered. He was apprehended at approximately 9:00 a.m. on the dyke along the Similkameen River just south of Keremeos.

The suspect is a Keremeos man. He is currently being held in custody in Penticton on a warrant from Saanich. Charges are contemplated for various driving offences under the Motor Vehicle Act and Criminal Code as well as for non-compliance of terms of judicial release.

Aspinall shines in Interior show

Christen Aspinall competed in the Miss Interior pageant in Penticton on August 13, 14 and 15. She was one of the 14 candidates representing Interior towns.

Christen was a semi-finalist. She was chosen to dance at the pageant, performing her revised folk dancing which has delighted Princeton residents this year.

Although she was not a finalist, she had the time of her life and enjoyed every minute.

The woods are hot, and bear food has dried up. Bears are heading for the lakes and rivers where lush food can be found. People are heading for lakes and rivers, too, and meeting bears on the beaches. "We've got bears coming out of the woodwork," says Conservation Officer Al Lay.

The worst area is Tulameen, where bears moved to the public beach on Otter Lake, and went shopping in downtown Tulameen. "I was driving through Tulameen (on Thursday) with a two year old bear in the trap in the back of the truck, and I see a bear sitting at the edge of the road going out of town," Lay told the Leader.

The same day, he had to set the trap at Missezula Lake where bears were "hanging around".

"It's just nuts. I'm chasing bears all day," Lay said.

The trap left at Missezula did not catch a bear, so Lay left it and spent time on Friday patrolling Tulameen.

In other locations within the area, evidence of bears has been found, including within town boundaries in Princeton. A bear was shot at a residence at the 29 km. point along Highway 40.

Along Highway 5A, there have been worrisome incidents in which a sow bear with cubs has moved in close. Generally, a sow with cubs will avoid human settlements. Lay took four out of the Camp Tulahead property.

Al Lay warns people against leaving garbage near the house and dumping stuff into compost piles.

"These bears can smell it for miles, and they'll go for it."

In addition to disposing of garbage at the dump, and stopping composting, residents should feed pets indoors and pick fruit from their trees and store it indoors or dispose of it.

Lay wants people to understand that bears posing a threat to human life will be shot.

"I will not move a dangerous bear from one area to become a problem somewhere else," he stated, "I will put it down."

If a bear is not considered a threat, it will be moved to another area.

Lay does not want people to shoot bears unless it is an emergency. There is great danger in shooting a bear and wounding it. Lay would prefer trapping the animal.

People bothered by bears (or other wildlife) should call Lay at 295-6343 or the RCMP at 295-6911.

Fire fighters beat the odds on B.C.'s wildfire summer

B.C. forest fire crews, along with the military and volunteers, have succeeded in beating the odds on the Salmon Arm, Silver Creek, and Kamloops wildfires after 10 days of unrelenting heat and effort.

The Salmon Arm fire burned 6,300 hectares and required the efforts of 100 regular fire fighters and 100 soldiers from Canadian Armed Forces. In addition, 12 helicopters and two Martin Mars water bombers and 77 pieces of heavy equipment were used to fight the blaze. The state of emergency had not been lifted last weekend, but the fire was under control and contained.

The Greenstone Mountain fire, near Kamloops, burned 3,600 hectares and occupied 233 fire fighters and 55 pieces of heavy equipment.

The Fountain fire, east of Lillooet, was actually two fires, one at Slok Creek, where 20 fire fighters and 22 soldiers battled the blaze, and at Gibbs Creek, where a 1,200 hectare fire took the effort of 50 fire fighters and 70 soldiers.

The Aberdeen/Lavington fire, near Vernon, burned 710 hectares and required 80 fire fighters and 63 pieces of heavy equipment.

The Avola/Elevator Mountain fire, north of Clearwater, burned 1,850 hectares. A total of 74 fire fighters, and four helicopters, plus heavy equipment, battled this fire, which came within 100 metres of Highway 5.

Major fires in other areas drew fire fighters to the north and to the coast. The Dore River fire, west of McBride and east of Prince George, kept 110 fire fighters occupied fighting a 2,555 hectare wildfire.

Near Boston Bar, fire crews battled five active fires in the Nahatlatch River Valley. Fifty residents and campers were evacuated from the area on August 4 and have not returned.

Jesse McLean, one of the organizers of the Aaron Heuser Basketball Bursary fund, was impressed when school district maintenance crew painted the number 13 A.H. in bright yellow at the basketball court at Riverside Intermediate School. Aaron's friends had painted the number and initials on the asphalt shortly after Aaron's death to commemorate the many games they and Aaron had played at that site.

Camp planned for October

The first Aaron Heuser Memorial Basketball Camp will be held October 3 and 4 at Princeton Secondary School. The camp will be led by instructors from Okanagan University College, Princeton Secondary School and Aaron's friends and team mates.

The camp will be free to young people in grades six to ten attending school in Princeton. There is room for 40 players in the camp. Mike Bertram is the organizer. Registration forms will be available in the News Leader at a later date.

"We didn't expect to be able to have a camp this year," says Jesse McLean, one of the most active committee members. "We wanted to build up the fund first, then use it as a foundation for holding the camps."

The Aaron Heuser Memorial Bursary Committee has held several fundraisers during the past four months, including a basketball game, a car wash, and a benefit concert. Donations are still coming in and funding is nearing the $10,000 goal set by the committee. They look forward to an anticipated donation from one of the major local employers, but this camp would not have been possible without the $500 donation from Glen Glowinski of Coldwell Bankers.

Project moves ahead

Princeton's official Millennium Project, the family history book, now has an established bank account, with two pre-paid book deposits.

New brochures on the project, with a form to enclose with a deposit are available at the News Leader, the museum and from Diane Huey, Ev McCallum and Dorothy Stenvold.

The cost of the book will be no more than $55 per book, and less as more people agree to buy the book.

The committee will have a booth at Fall Fair to display the brochures and the family album books that can help people organize family information.

The names of early miners, loggers, farmers and ranchers will be lost if people do not contribute information to the book. Anyone who is a descendant, or family friend, should make a point of encouraging families to put together a history. It does not have to be elaborate. Diane Huey suggested a point form, such as "John Doe arrived in the Princeton area in 1921 and worked as a ranch hand for 10 years before marrying Mary Smith" and so on.

Anyone who is now working on a history and plans to submit information is asked to call Diane Huey at 295-3751.

Club marks forty years

Founded in 1958, Otter Valley Fish and Game Club has been around for forty years. The club started by Bill Manion of Tulameen area has survived and now thrives on a 20 acre property featuring a clubhouse, a security and maintenance shed, camping and picnicking area, and a shooting range. Club members have done the work of developing their facility.

Saturday, August 15, was Open House for members and friends. Coffee, doughnuts and hot dogs were available at the clubhouse, and the horseshoe pits and picnic tables were available for games. The atmosphere was casual and friendly.

A stroll around the site leads through pine trees to the shooting range completed in June.

"Our members did a lot of work this year," brags President Ron White, "We had a work party and they really pitched in."

The shooter area at the range is now roofed. The grounds are neat, and White casually mentions how good it would be if there were campsites for members to use.

"We could make some extra money from camping, maybe," he suggests.

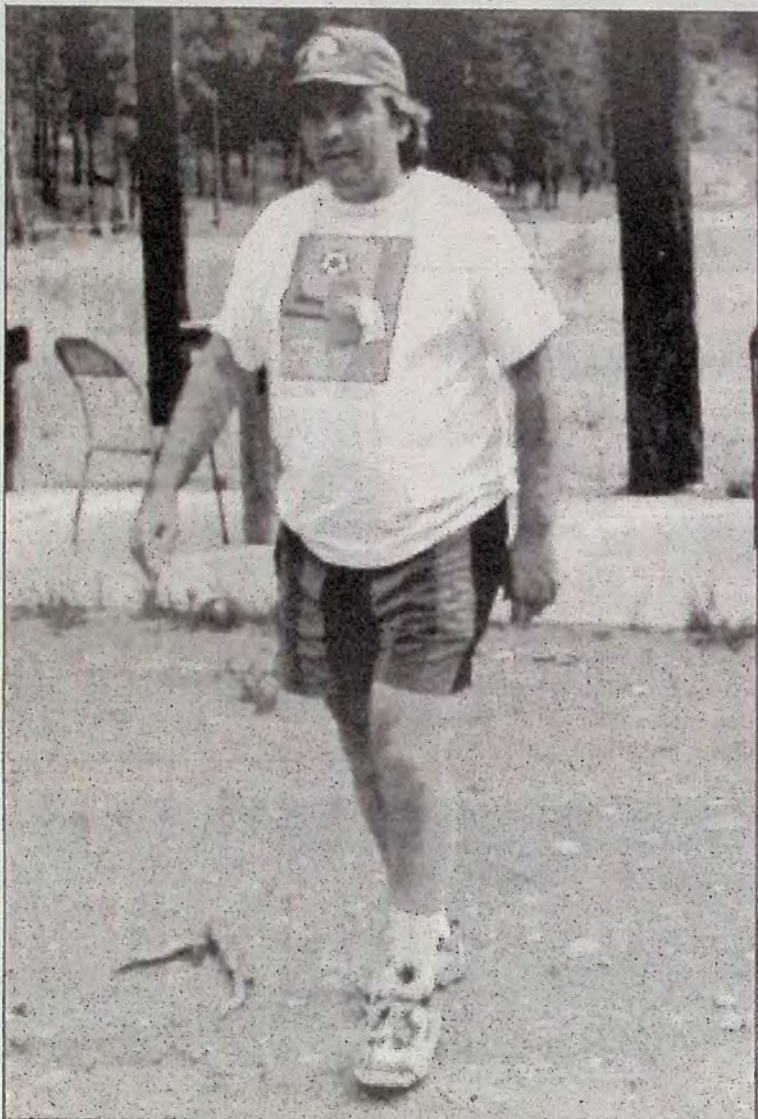

The continual improvements are being made on the property now that the 30 year lease from the government is firmly in place. The clubhouse was constructed in stages, and completed three years ago. Work began on the maintenance shed, and this year a septic system went in for the shed.

The club boasts over 100 members: 32 family memberships, 70 single memberships, five life memberships and five complimentary memberships. Dues are $20 a year. The big attraction is the facility, friendships, shooting range privileges, hunter insurance, and club events, such as the campout, fishing derby, banquet, and the major Walk for Wildlife each spring.

The newest event is the Big Buck contest. Registration forms are available from Ron White (295-7343) or Paul Adams (295-4191). The clubhouse perches on benchland overlooking Otter Lake and Tulameen, on an isolated back road, giving members a place to enjoy their activities in any season.

Ron White, president of Otter Valley Fish and Game Club, was proud to show off the new rifle range and other improvements during the August 15 Open House at the club property in Tulameen.

Former resident dies in Vancouver

Daphne Langford, formerly of Princeton, passed away peacefully on August 3, 1998, at age 93. She and her husband, Sam, were well-known residents of Princeton and lived here until the late 1970's. Sam had been a businessman in Princeton for many years. They raised three children in Princeton.

Their daughter, Diana Engel, owned The Camelot, a dress shop on Bridge Street, until her final illness. Diana's children, Trevor and Sally, completed their education at Princeton Secondary school.

Those who knew Daphne Langford will remember her as a gracious woman devoted to family, who made friends easily and kept them for a long time.

B.C. invests in value-added

Forest Renewal B.C. is investing $22.4 million this year to help B.C.'s value-added wood manufacturing sector realize its growth and job creation potential.

The value-added sector already makes a significant contribution to the B.C. forest economy. A recent survey by Dr. Bill Wilson of the Canadian Forest Service found that in 1994, B.C.'s value-added industry had over 650 firms, $2 billion annual sales, and employed over 1,400 people (18 per cent of B.C. forest workers).

At the same time, there is tremendous potential for growth. Compared with other value-added economies, B.C.'s industry is still in a development stage.

The industry must overcome several challenges to meet its economic and job creation potential, according to Forest Renewal. The challenges include obtaining a stable supply of quality raw materials, improving the understanding of market trends and needs, obtaining the specialized training and technological assistance to produce high-value products, and improving relationships with investors and lenders.

These challenges will be difficult to meet, as B.C. manufacturers are typically small and medium-sized businesses - lacking the in-house resources possessed by large international companies.

The Forest Renewal Value-Added Strategy, announced August 13 by Forests Minister Dave Zirnelt, outlines five strategic areas in which Forest Renewal B.C. will focus its investments:

1. Industry Infrastructure
2. Marketing
3. Training
4. Technology
5. Business Development

The B.C. government recognized that accessing a stable, quality supply of wood fibre has long been the value-added industry's biggest obstacle to development. The recently announced Jobs and Timber Accord Wood Fibre Transfer Program and Small Business 2000 initiatives are designed to address the industry's need for wood fibre.

Forest Renewal B.C. has stated that it is committed to assisting industry in meeting the other challenges facing the sector. The goal is to have B.C. become a leading competitor in the international wood products market, to provide new economic benefits to B.C. communities and employment opportunities to B.C. workers.

The infrastructure support will improve the co-ordination and communication of industry resources, speed up an increase in fibre transfers to the value-added sector and strengthen the value-added industry associations. Forest Renewal has budgeted $2.7 million for this initiative.

Value-added marketing strategy will gather and distribute specific market information, improve market penetration and develop new products. FRBC has dedicated $7 million to this area.

Value-added training will spend $8.2 million on the BC Wood specialties group training pilot program, Abbotsford Skills Centre, regional training initiatives and the BC Wood Products Industry Education Society (WoodLinks). Technology will absorb $1.4 million under the Technology Transfer Program.

Business development includes loans and minimizing risk, up to $1.6 million. Further support will come under the $1.3 million research program.

The Essential Fatty Acids Answer

ULTRA PRIME EVENING PRIMROSE OIL

Fatty acids are the basic building blocks of which fats and oils are composed. Contrary to popular myth, the body does need fat. The fatty acids that are necessary for health and that cannot be made by the body are called essential fatty acids (EFAs).

EFAs improve the skin and hair, reduce blood pressure, aid in the prevention of arthritis, lower cholesterol and triglyceride levels and reduce the risk of blood clot formation. They are beneficial for candidiasis, cardiovascular disease, eczema and psoriasis. They aid in weight loss, are helpful in the treatment of alcoholism, hot flashes, menstrual problems and many other disorders.

POINTS OF VIEW

OUR VIEW It could happen here

During the past two weeks, we have witnessed the power of forest fires to change people's lives. We saw destruction of homes, evacuation of thousands of people, and disruption of our highway system.

We saw something else: tremendous effort by B.C. Forest Service personnel, along with the combined effort of emergency service personnel and the military. Working with the agencies, hundreds of private citizens turned out to help in any way they could.

We commend the B.C. Forest Service for their ability to keep everything co-ordinated and keep the public informed at the same time. We British Columbians have every reason to be proud of our Forest Service personnel. The stress under which they have worked to battle over five hundred fires is impossible to measure.

We commend the emergency services and the volunteers for doing what was needed during the crisis. Their contribution was essential.

At the same time, as we give credit where it is due, we might stop to remember that it could have happened here, and it might have been worse. If we look at our town, we see how close we are to the forest. People have big pine and fir trees growing alongside their homes. In a wind-driven fire, such as the Salmon Arm fire, the flames leap from treetop to treetop. Imagine what it could do to homes here. The big evergreens light up like torches in a forest fire.

We might be clever to re-evaluate our community in terms of whose house would burn if wind swept the flames into town. We should take a good look at where the trees are located around town and ask ourselves how we could protect our businesses and homes from a forest fire. Those trees in the back yard may look green and inviting, but imagine them on fire in a gusting wind.

A Salmon Arm fire could happen here, but good planning in advance could protect our homes.

YOUR VIEW We could develop our fossil resource

Dear Editor:

The News Leader printed an interesting article in the July 21 edition about Republic, Washington, famous for its fossils. The town bought a number of lots, one a natural fossil deposit. This gives them the right to charge a fee to dig for fossils, supervise the dig and keep the most interesting fossil samples. When they decide to keep a fossil, the finder is given credit by being named as the donor. It is an excellent controlled tourist system with substantial financial benefits for the museum and town. Although Princeton has similar potential it would be difficult to duplicate the Republic model.

Princeton is built on what has been described as the world's best-preserved plant fossil sites. Fossil beds in this area are abundant and widely dispersed, making it difficult to control digging, collecting and fee taking. Our area is so rich with diverse species of plants, fish and insect fossils that many tourists, amateur collectors and paleontologists come to Princeton to extract them. Thousands of pounds of fossils have been removed from this area to grace the collections, and extend the research base of numerous universities, museums and private collections across Canada, United States and Europe. We are sitting on a natural resource with unlimited economic potential for Princeton, and educational potential for the world.

The Princeton and District Museum and Archives Society has long been aware of this and has worked hard to preserve and promote this resource. Constituting some protection of fossil sites is the bigger question we have not been able to answer entirely, but we keep working at it.

Princeton has many local collectors who have bolstered interest in the wealth of fossils and helped conserve them locally. Two of the most serious scientific collectors have been the late Phyllis Miller and the late Joe Pollard. The Museum has part of Phyllis Miller's collection on display for everyone to enjoy. Joe Pollard helped identify various species for the museum. This spring the board and society members made our fossil collection a priority. In the main museum we have over 300 local fossil samples encased in a 9-drawer cabinet with clear plexiglass covers for easy viewing. We have a fossil found by John Ure and on loan to the museum by the Thomas family. The famous Stonebergia Columbiana is there, a fossil leaf of the now extinct genus of the rosaceous shrub. Professor Wesley Wehr of the Burke Museum named this fossil in honour of Margaret Stoneberg who, at that time, assisted and supported his research. We have another display case filled with permineralized (petrified) wood donated by local collectors such as Ruth Kavanagh, the Coyle family and the Thomas family. Numerous young people such as Robbie Hurd and Scott Aiken have donated excellent plant and insect fossils which are displayed in their names. We have thunder eggs, mineral samples and a mystery fossil that people can examine and try to determine what it might be. Thanks to the efforts of Joe Pollard and Ken Pugh, the museum has been able to copy photographs they took of the museum's collection. The over 104 samples have been officially identified, geographically placed and labeled. People bringing in species can use this photo catalogue to identify fossils. We also have fossils from around the world, including 17 dinosaur bones from Alberta and Wyoming donated by Dan Bruce. Professor Wehr left a donation of five fossils from the Tindouf Basin in Morocco. Princeton fossils seem young as they date to the Eocene Series some 48 to 50 million years ago. All of this has been available in Princeton museum this summer for visitors.

The Skills Centre created a new web page featuring fossils and local history, an excellent promotional tool. As a community, we can and have made positive changes. Our fossil collection can be improved if residents donate fossils they have found and stored. I go out regularly to dig fossils and bring my discoveries to the museum. Last year, the young students involved in an organized school dig donated some of their fossils, one of which is our "mystery fossil." When collecting fossils remember where you found each one. The site is as scientifically important as the sample itself. When you leave your donations at the museum, make sure you get a receipt. It is important to know who the donor is so we can give credit to you. On Saturday mornings, from 10 to noon, I will be at the museum to examine fossils, receive donated fossils and talk about fossils. Even if you don't want to donate fossils, bring in your samples. I find each fossil unique, often a work of art, and I am delighted to see the variety available.

Republic, Washington is an example of one town's ability to promote a single resource. I agree with Dawn Johnson. We can learn from their obvious success and work together to develop our abundant fossil resource. We can only gain from it.

Rosemary Doughty, President, Princeton and District Museum and Archives, and amateur fossil collector.

Postal soldiers deserve medals for fine service

Dear Editor:

In the past 20 years I've had little need of our much-maligned postal service. I heard the negativity and tended to believe the rhetoric about over-paid, under-educated bums I either read or heard about in media.

More recently, I've had the pleasant, surprising experience of mailing a letter in Princeton before 5:00 p.m. and having it hand delivered in Penticton before noon the next day.

Let's give credit where it's due. I know Perrin Beatty needs to have his knuckles rapped for his cuts to rural service, but the soldiers in the trenches deserve medals for a fine performance. I do not know any postal person by his/her name, but I know I will smile, wave and/or pass the time of day with the next postie I meet. Thanks, Posties!

Princeton needs to leave a good impression

Dear Editor:

On my recent visit to your town to visit my sister who lives here, we noticed a rather disturbing matter we thought needed to be addressed.

When we went to make our purchase at the liquor store, the clerk there did not greet us at all; no smile, no 'Have a nice day', nothing. Our next stop was the drugstore, where the clerk was nice. But then, at the grocery store, we made a point of noticing how we were treated. While waiting in line, a clerk from another store (in uniform) rudely grabbed a handbasket out from where my nephew was leaning, without an 'excuse me' or anything. The clerk at the grocery store then looked right at us, took my sister's card, used it, handed it back, still without saying a word! At this point, I started to lean forward while staring at her, hoping she would pass our curious test to see how tourists are being treated. Finally, I spoke first and told her, "Oh, darn, I was so hoping for some kind of a greeting and you didn't pass the test."

She then went on to say she usually does but she was having a bad day. Sorry, when you work with the public, that excuse doesn't cut it.

My sister and I have worked with the public for more than 25 years combined, and we know and have been trained to know that there is simply no excuse for poor manners.

I enjoyed visiting your town, but I failed on this shopping day to see the 'small town' atmosphere my sister keeps telling me about. This makes us both disappointed and frankly, my sister was quite embarrassed.

We hope that all the businesses in Princeton will do their best to leave tourists and locals alike with a lasting good impression of your town. And a special thank you to the staff at Centennial Pool, Garden Pride, Chevron and Mohawk, who did help make my visit a pleasant one.

Carolyn Stipic and family,
Delta, B.C.

From the Grand Forks Gazette

Thanks to Donna Wilson for drawing our attention to an article in her home town newspaper. A person who writes about what is happening in Victoria decided to drive to the Interior.

"I hadn't stopped in Princeton for about 15 years. More's the pity," says Hubert Beyer in the August 5 edition of the Grand Forks Gazette.

He was looking for a place to eat and discovered the place he was looking for had become an antique shop. He went looking.

"Driving to town, looking for another place to eat, I nearly did a double-take. The drab streets and somewhat dilapidated sidewalks I remembered from years ago had been transformed into a landscaper's delight.

Wide meridians, landscaped with trees and shrubs, now divide some of the streets. The sidewalks feature ornamental bricks.

Hanging flower baskets adorn lamp posts. And most of the businesses have undergone extensive upgrading.

It's one of the best beautification programs I have ever seen."

He and his wife decided to spend the night.

Hubert Beyer is a columnist who is syndicated with the Stirling chain of newspapers. His article will praise Princeton in several B.C. weeklies.

The risk of not taking a risk

by Kerry Klamut

In deciding how to invest their money, Canadians want to avoid risk. What exactly is risk? For many people, risk is associated with the potential loss of capital. Investors who avoid risk are willing to give up performance for safety. Is this wise?

Twenty years ago it cost eight cents to mail a letter - today it costs 45 cents. Thus, the greatest risk may not be the loss of capital, but the reduction in buying power. A fixed rate investment, such as a GIC, may actually be risky since it may not grow enough to offset inflation. Inflation, which diminishes your buying power, is relatively low right now, but so are interest rates one receives on GICs. A Diversified portfolio of equities has historically offered higher returns and more flexibility, making them increasingly popular.

One should not necessarily invest all or most of ones savings in equities, but manage risk effectively to ensure their investments outpace inflation and allow one to achieve their financial goals. How is this done? The key to managing risk is to assess long-term goals. Then implement three easy strategies: Diversification, Dollar Cost Averaging, and Investing for the Long-term.

A portfolio will normally perform best over the long-term if it contains a variety of investments. Therefore, a portfolio should be diversified by asset class using a combination of short-term investments, equities and bonds. One should also diversify geographically - by mixing international investments with your Canadian investments.

KERRY KLAMUT
Investment Advisor

A second way to manage risk is through a dollar cost averaging strategy. By investing a set dollar amount each month, the investor automatically purchases more when the unit price is down, and less when the price is high.

Finally, invest for the long term. Determine the best investments, then refuse to be shaken by short-term uncertainties. Patient investors are usually well-rewarded.

Safety starts with diversification, the experts agree. So, if you're looking for diversification in the U.S., you can now invest in SPIDERS and invest in the 500 companies that make up the Standard & Poor's 500. A SPIDER is an Index Fund, and it's set up as a trust, with the units trading like stocks. SPIDERS trade at 10% of the value of the S&P 500 index. That means if the index goes up 100 points, the value of a SPIDER goes up US$10. So, don't be afraid of SPIDERS.

Trout talk

The belly boat

by John Sandness
Local Outdoorsman

Do you feel adventurous? Have you ever wondered what a duck or frog felt like? Try a belly boat.

Some wizard put together the inner tube of our swimming hole days and the swim fins of the snorkeler, and the latest fishing craft was created. Basically – the inner tube has been fitted with a canvas seat.

For safety, should you ram a sharp snag or rock and puncture one tube, there is a second, spare chamber. On the back of the "craft" is a back rest which lets one recline in comfort. Up front are pockets to store your fishing gear, such as a spare reel, flies, lunch, etc.

Should you want a deluxe model with all the extras, you can get a rod holder – handy when you are trying to unhook your fish, change flies, or just trolling.

Yes, you can troll from a belly boat. My estimate of a top speed of the belly boat is about three miles per hour. However, if nature were calling, one might get an extra half-mile to one-mile per hour as you head for shore.

Other extras are an anchor with 30 to 40 feet of 1/8 inch nylon line. It serves the same purpose as in any other craft. An exception to this purpose is when a severe wind starts pushing you down the lake in a direction you do not want to go. Lacking the manoeuvrability and motive power of a boat with motor and oars, the belly boater is "out of luck" if he does not have his anchor aboard.

A real extra is a bracket on which to mount your fish finder. Yes, I have seen the "Cadillac" of belly boats with a finder on it. That is what you call loaded.

For those who do not have the constitution to withstand cold water, a must is a pair of neoprene waders.

A pair of flippers to give your legs added thrust is a necessity, not an extra.

If you want to see belly boaters in action, almost any weekend, travel up the Merritt Highway. An extremely popular spot recently has been Borgeson Lake.

For wildlife and water fowl viewing, you cannot do much better than a belly boat. These craft are silent, low to the water, and can stealthily creep up on loons, ducks, beaver, muskrats, mink, shore birds and so on. I could go on endlessly listing the animals and birds that frequent the water and shorelines of our beautiful lakes.

Should you hook a very good Kamlooper, say in the three-pound to five-pound range, you can expect to be towed, or at least spun around. As any belly boater, those size trout have power.

For thrills, chills and downright fun, it is hard to beat the adventures one can have on our small area lakes when cruising in a belly boat.

Have fun fishing this week. It is now time to try the higher lakes, such as Hans (Rampart), Stringer, Boomerang and others. Do not forget that the Tulameen River is now open for fishing - check the regulations before fishing it.

Good fishing!

RCMP consumer alert

The RCMP Southeast District Commercial Crime Section has received several complaints from the public pertaining to a business from Modena, Italy, which goes by the name of Future Strategies and/or Pentagone. These complaints have come from various places throughout the Okanagan Valley.

The documentation dealing with this company has been reviewed by an investigator who has formed the opinion that this business is a pyramid scheme and, as such, is contrary to Section 206(1)(e) of the Criminal Code of Canada. Simply put, this Section of the Criminal Code states it is illegal to participate in a scheme where you receive more money than what you paid in, simply as a result of recruiting new participants into the scheme.

Under ideal conditions these schemes require an ever-increasing number of people to participate so that all the participants can make the amount of money the operators claim can be made.

Because of the sheer number of people required to participate, these businesses eventually collapse. Thus the people who originally started in the scheme will receive funds but the participants who join later will not. The only people guaranteed to make money are the operators of such schemes.

For further information, contact Sgt. G.A. Penner, NCO i/c Commercial Crime Section, Kelowna, B.C. Phone 250-491-2321 or fax 250-491-2380.

Tulameen residents review Daze problems

Approximately 50 people attended the monthly meeting of the Tulameen Community Club, held August 13. The main topic was Tulameen Daze, the annual August long weekend fundraising event.

The Club raised $5,057.19, the Sports Club raised $704, and Tulameen Fire Department raised close to $3,000. The money raised by the groups will go toward maintenance of the hall, library, outdoor ice rink, fire hall, and to help support other community programs and events.

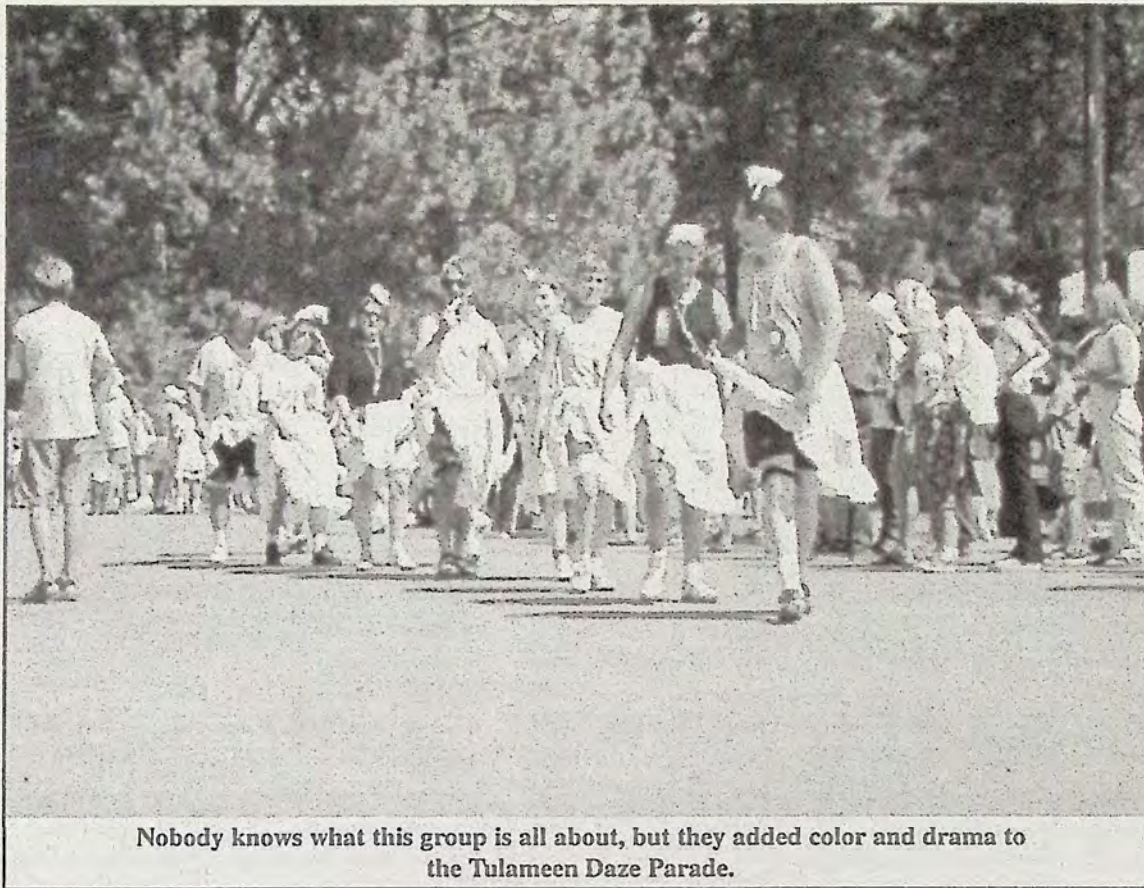

While Tulameen Daze was considered to be a financial success, the residents showed up to express their great concern over what they feel is an increasing amount of rowdiness during this weekend, which is intended for family fun. Residents felt that the problems with noise, drunkenness, unlicensed vehicles on the road, campfires, fighting, and intrusions on private property are getting to be more than some people are willing to bear any longer. A big concern is that the local police detachment is spread far too thin to effectively control the masses of party-goers.

A large group of people want to see the end of Tulameen Daze, but others present at the meeting felt that the community should look at other ways to take control of their own town so that this fundraiser can continue.

A motion was brought to the floor by "Cubby" Addison, that the Community Club members be allowed to vote on whether or not they want Tulameen Daze cancelled in the future. A letter will be mailed out to all Community Club members along with their November newsletter, explaining the motion brought forward by Mr. Addison to see what the consensus is. Anyone in the the Tulameen/Coalmont area who wishes to express an opinion on this issue in the upcoming vote must be a paid-up member of the club. (Application forms will be available at the Trading Post and Library).

Small communities such as Tulameen need fundraisers like Tulameen Daze to cover the costs of community buildings and activities.

President Gina Hall said, "Tulameen Daze requires a lot of hard work and planning by many volunteers who work all year long to help out in their community. It is very unfortunate that the inconsiderate actions of people coming into our area have tarnished our fun weekend and brought our community to this point."

Nobody knows what this group is all about, but they added color and drama to the Tulameen Daze Parade.

George Elliott displays his booklets on sale in Princeton this week.

Local dust fills ink in new booklets

Vermilion ochre dust was mixed into the printers ink in a new booklet called Princeton Area Points of Interest. Blakeburn coal dust was mixed into the ink for Princeton Area Ghost Towns.

The booklets, and the idea of grinding local dust into the printer's ink, are the brainchild of local author George Elliott.

Princeton Area Ghost Towns talks about the history of places where people once lived and thrived, such as Blakeburn, Allenby, Copper Mountain and Granite City.

The history of Coalmont, Tulameen and Princeton are included to some extent, and detailed area maps pinpoint the locations of the ghost towns.

Princeton Area Points of Interest covers a number of different sites such as the Vermilion Cave, cement plant, the mural on the liquor store building, the old brewery, the drillers' rock, and the vermilion ochre.

Elliott decided to go ahead with the project because "the last history of Princeton was published 10 years ago and I brought everything up to date."

The booklets will sell for one dollar each, at the News Leader, Southern Ridge Trading Company in Princeton Plaza, Village Kitchen Restaurant and CIOR radio station.

George Elliott has lived in Princeton since 1986, published a book of poetry in 1987, developed and edited the Chamber of Commerce tourist information brochure for five years, and had a number of short stories published locally.

Beyond year 2000

As the Victorian era came to an end, the United States advanced its domain. In 1903, the Alaskan border was settled, and remains as it is today. Will there be border changes between Canada and the U.S. in the next century?

The Wright brothers successfully flew a powered plane, and launched the era of aircraft. From that day to this, air travel has expanded, even to the moon. What will the next century bring?

R.A. Zsigmondy invented the ultramicroscope, Wilhelm Einthoven invented the electrocardiograph, and Marie Curie won the Nobel Prize for physics. Medicine changed rapidly with these inventions, but the electrocardiograph machine is still in use. Microscope technology continued to improve, giving us better and better pictures of things we cannot see with the naked eye. How many more advances can we expect?

The first coast-to-coast crossing of America took 65 days in 1903. Today, five days is the average. Will cars become faster and safer in the next century, or will we give them up for something better?

The following year, the 10-hour work day was established in France, deaf and blind Helen Keller graduated from Radcliffe College, and the first company to produce phonographs and records was founded in Germany.

The century would see the refinement of phonograph records, and finally, the downtrend of the same, as cassette tapes and CDs replaced records. Music videos came to replace CDs. What will replace music videos, if anything?

Dateline Tulameen

You need to be street wise

by Joe Schwarz

Tulameen philosopher and humorist

The annual street re-construction and paving has begun in Tulameen. Of the three small communities of Hedley, Coalmont and Tulameen, Tulameen streets are the worst but have the most traffic. Since our freeway has been re-paved, the driving is good except for the big dip. However, throughout our area there is always work that could be done. Straighten out corners. Widen and fill certain sectors.

It's too bad the full winter maintenance crew couldn't be retained to do this during the non-snow season, considering we are getting a larger influx of people and tourism is becoming a larger player and employer.

Peterson Bluffs is a constant hazard for falling rocks. Early this year we were showered with them as though they were meteorites. You've heard that song "pennies from heaven". We thought it was going to be miniature harps. It was scary and very loud, damaging the car roof and hood, side and muffler. ICBC were quick, courteous, and efficient in their response. Over a thousand dollars later the car was like new again. Perhaps a wire curtain could be hung on the cliff face to restrict the falling rock.

We met a very becoming young lady from the upper reaches of Highway 40, Osprey Lake way, who described their very unique expansion potholes. She said they were considering implementing a very unusual solution. Turn them upside down and use them as speed bumps!

Roads are used by all to reach some kind of destination. However, we are never certain if we're going to get there or what we may find when we get there. In this regard one of the most fascinating historical accounts loaded with intrigue, mystery and adventure is the journeys of St. Paul in the Biblical book of Acts of the Apostles.

It is probably appropriate to recount the story of a very despondent lady who felt her world was ending when St. Peter appeared to her.

"Lady", he said, "You may as well know you'll be here for some time. We're renovating upstairs and taking in no one at the moment. There's a heat wave in hell so they're downsizing rather than accepting new applicants."

So the lady took a cold shower and got her wits about her. She had a face lift, got a new hairdo, re-shifted her shape, put on some exotic perfume and a new outfit. Now ready to meet the world, she stepped into the street only to be unceremoniously and fatally run over by a semi-trailer load of hogs.

Appearing before St. Peter's reception desk somewhat disheveled and re-ordered, she furiously demanded why she was there because he said it wasn't her turn.

"Sorry, lady," St. Peter said rather sheepishly, "We just didn't recognize you. Sometimes it's hard to be streetwise."

When the KKK beat
Princeton's striking miners

by Dawn Johnson

News Leader Editor

The Ku Klux Klan burning crosses in Princeton? The KKK fighting communism with brutal attacks on hard-working citizens?

Every town has skeletons in its closet, events people would rather forget. The Ku Klux Klan and their treatment of striking miners is part of Similkameen Valley history most people would like to forget, if they were involved. This article is dedicated to the memory of the men who have mined the Similkameen Valley since the beginning of time. We want to tell this as part of our history, and to give meaning to Labour Day.

The Great Depression was in progress, and the Blakeburn Mine disaster of August 13, 1930, with its subsequent investigation into safety violations, was still fresh in the minds of local miners. Times were tough beyond anything we know today.

The story of the KKK and the miners is recorded in court documents from the trial of Arthur "Slim" Evans held in Vernon in 1933.

Evans was an organizer for the Workers Unity League. He received a message from miners in Princeton that they would like him to assist them.

Princeton miners had a problem; the coal company had asked the miners to take a ten percent drop in their wages that spring. The company had promised to restore the wage level by September 10. When the miner's committee went to management to ask that the wage level be restored, the miners were told they would have another reduction in wages. A miner who accused the coal company owner, a Mr. Bennett, of not being a man of his word, the miner was fired immediately.

Evans asked them if they would like to organize a local of the Mine Workers Union of Canada. The miners contacted Evans later and he arrived in Princeton on November 17, 1932. He began speaking at public meetings and at a wedding dance. The miners were preparing for strike action.

One of the first moves of the miners' organization was a letter to the provincial government protesting extra police sent to intimidate and harass miners. A total of 37 extra police were sent to Princeton.

The police were busy visiting all hall owners to tell them they would be prosecuted if they allowed the union to rent their halls. The police attended all of the miners' public meetings, and people selling left-wing and labor brochures were often arrested and their brochures confiscated.

The miners had genuine concerns, concerns which today would bring the government running to the aid of the miners. Harold Hayes, leader of the miners union local, stated during Evans' trial that men were "getting hurt every day."

The mines were hiring men who did not have qualifications as miners, and paid them 90 cents a day less than the $4.50 paid to licensed miners. Contract miners earned 44 cents for each ton they mined, while the company sold the same ton of coal for $10.50 on the Vancouver market.

On November 30, the miners made their demands, which included a 19 per cent raise in pay and several safety issues, as well as an end to hiring unqualified people. The miners went on strike.

When the miners walked off the job an set up their picket lines, the police took action against them. Local businessmen, with encouragement from the coal company, formed a branch of the Ku Klux Klan.

Next week: KKK opposes labour movement, burns crosses.

Members of GETT (Girls Exploring Trades and Technology) program line up the go-karts they built in one week. The program will remain open for two more weeks for girls grade 6 - 8. The girls learned how to use workshop tools to create the go-karts. On the last day, they raced their go-karts around the Arena after enjoying a barbeque lunch.

The happy face go-kart featured Tiffany Tessier seated, with Christine Small providing the push power. The girls made it around the course in two minutes in this fun race.

New rules for mobile home park tenants

The B.C. Ministry of the Attorney General has made some new rules to resolve rent increase disputes between manufactured home park tenants and landlords.

Effective August 15, changes to the Residential Tenancy Act and a new regulation includes a streamlined formula to calculate rent increases. This formula greatly reduces the information required from the park owner and will make the rent increase calculation easier.

According to Attorney General Ujjal Dosanjh, "My ministry consulted extensively with home and park owners to develop a regulation that protects tenants from unreasonable rent hikes yet takes into account landlords' income and costs."

Other changes include one allowing government to bring in standard park rules, and another increasing the time limit to prosecute serious offenses from six months to two years.

The regulations will apply to rent increases given on or after January 1, 1999.

Tenants can now apply to dispute any rent increase given since October 1, 1992. Under the new legislation, tenants will have a 90-day transition period to apply for review of past rent increases given by their landlords.

Other amendments to the Residential Tenancy Act give arbitrators the authority to order a landlord or tenant to comply with the act or a tenancy agreement, and to make an interim order and impose conditions on any order.

Princeton's urban transit system serves all by Joyce Fraser, Administrator

Princeton District Community Services

Princeton and District Community Services Society has provided 25 years of service to Princeton, Tulameen, Coalmont and Hedley. The society continues to showcase the programs, and this article will explain the transportation service which is currently funded by BC Transit Corporation, Town of Princeton and Regional District.

We operate two vehicles, a 10 passenger van and 20 passenger bus. Both buses are lift-equipped to handle wheelchairs and small motor scooters. All drivers are trained in safe handling of all equipment and passengers and have first aid training. We have regular 7,000 and 21,000 km. checks and yearly visits from BC Transit officials who inspect the vehicles and make recommendations. We are proud of our safety record.

In 1973, like the Home Support program, transportation was funded by a grant from the Ministry of Human Resources. The first two vehicles, a station wagon and 1974 Ford van, were privately owned by the society administrator.

In 1977, a Dodge van was purchased to replace the 1974 Ford Club wagon, which was showing its age. A great deal of money was donated from the community and service clubs. The Rotary Club donated $5,000, the Elks and other service clubs also generously donated. Once again, we were able to relax, our transportation service was secure for a few more years, until this vehicle also began to wear out. Considerable repairs were needed and the wheelchair lift was not considered safe.

In 1981, we submitted a proposal to the Town of Princeton requesting we enter into an agreement with BC Transit to ensure the importance of this service. The Council did not feel comfortable with the idea and asked for a referendum to enter into an agreement with BC Transit. The referendum passed with over 80 per cent approval. In April 1982, we entered into a cost-sharing formula for a Paratransit service, which was pursuant to section 81(D) of the Municipal Act, at which time we discovered we did not have to go to referendum.

The next vehicle, a 1984 Econoline van, was purchased by sponsoring a 20 mile walkathon. The campaign was called "Save our Van" and was organized by employees Kim Fraser-Beswick and Kathryn Dukes. It was a tremendous success. We raised $17,000 through the enthusiasm and commitment of staff (Donna Wilson brought in nearly $800 in pledges), the participation of the service clubs, the entire community and area, who are always ready to help when the need arises. You can't buy this kind of community spirit!

An attempt by dedicated Snow Patch members to bring back the ski hill as "The Family Ski Hill" to its former popular ski destination was organized. Our agency wished to participate in promoting the ski hill. We contacted BC Transit and asked if our "old van" could be provided to shuttle the youth of the community on weekends. Being community-minded, they agreed to use the van as a shuttle bus to the ski hill. We made the first of many trips to the ski hill on December 23, 1994 and continued for several winters.

Again, finding ourselves with an aging van with nearly 200,000 km, we had many discussions regarding how to replace the 1984 Econoline bus. Demands for service continued to expand while the financial and human resources did not keep pace. As usual, our agency once again was challenged to respond to the transportation needs of our community and area.

Can you imagine our joy when Steven Segal of BC Transit telephoned to say that Princeton had been selected to receive a new 1990, 10 passenger paratransit vehicle. They recognized all of our efforts and struggles to provide this valuable service. We were ecstatic! NO MORE APPEALS OR FUNDRAISERS. This and current vehicles are now leased from BC Transit. Our agency is the systems operator and we are responsible for operating the service, coordinating the schedules, receiving the fares and maintaining the vehicles. BC Transit is committed to providing planning, services, support and operating budgets. The cost sharing formula for small communities is broken down into percentages of dollars, 47 per cent is the transit share, 23 per cent is the municipal share which includes regional areas H and G, 10 per cent is user fares and 20 per cent is provincial supplement.

This agreement includes the Town of Princeton Regional District Areas G and H, and Community Services as the operators. BC Transit provides the operating budget which includes wages, maintenance, field inspections, etc.

NEXT WEEK: MORE ON BC TRANSIT IN THE VALLEY

Thieves used these back stairs at the teen drop-in centre on August 10 to steal 2 speakers that had been attached to a stereo upstairs the speakers were approximately 1 metre tall. Anyone who observed this activity in the late afternoon of Monday last week, please contact Princeton RCMP at 295-6911.

Heart Food

by Dave Machin

"The thief comes only to steal, kill and destroy, but I have come that you may have life and have it more abundantly." (John 10:10)

These are words that Jesus said and these words are the dividing line for our lives regarding good and bad. The thief, who is Satan, came to this earth when he was thrown out of heaven for wanting to be above his Creator. Now, while he is here, he is trying to tempt man to give in to his kind of life and give up on God's kind of life. He does this by trying to get us to doubt the goodness of God. His intention is to destroy our lives, for he has nothing good to give us.

On the other hand, Jesus came to earth in defense of life. He showed through His words and actions that He was opposed to any thing, force or person that tried to diminish life. He demonstrated the heart of God and his goodness toward people, and He is still doing that today.

The Bible says that Satan is a liar and there is no truth in him. He is a master deceiver and he has tricked people into thinking that "bad" things are God's fault. The Bible is God's love letter to us to show us what truth is. God is not "mad" at anyone, rather he is always reaching out to us to show us his goodness so that we can enter a daily personal relationship with Him and enjoy life as He meant us to. That does not mean life will be all roses, because the thief still tries to work against God in our lives, but once we know God's truth we know how to be free.

The caretaker must live on-site and be available from 8 p.m. to 8 am to respond to calls from tenants. Our Forest Development Plan was approved on June 13, 1997 and was to expire on July 31, 1998. The extension request covers areas that have been reviewed and approved under the current Forest Development Plan where harvesting and road building are proposed.

Infant development program

by Beatrice Bibby,
Infant Development Consultant

What is the Infant Development Program?

The Princeton Infant Development Program is sponsored by the Princeton Child Care Services Society. It is a home-based service for families and their infants and children aged birth to three years who are at risk for or have delays in such areas as motor skills, problem solving or communication. The philosophy of the program is that the early years of a child's life are very important and the home is where learning takes place. The family is seen as the most crucial source of learning and emotional support.

How does the program work?

Participation in the program is voluntary and all services are provided free of charge. A referral can come from any source: parent, nurse, doctor, childcare provider, etc. The family must be aware and accepting of the referral before the consultant can contact the home and help the parent(s) decide if their child would benefit from Infant Development Services. A developmental assessment is an important part of this process.

One major aspect of the program is to work with the family to plan daily activities that will provide the most suitable environment for learning. This may involve using other resources in the district such as a physical or occupational therapist, speech therapist, child development specialist, Moms and Tots group, daycare placement, etc. The Infant Development Consultant visits the home a regular basis to monitor progress and modify the plan as the child masters new skills. The direction for change is based upon the child's readiness for new challenges.

Parent education and help obtaining information is also provided. What about the community?

The opportunity for the parent(s) to work with many interested members of the community is provided. Taking part in a full range of community activities is strongly encouraged and supported. This may involve getting to know other parents who share similar concerns or just making new friends.

How do I contact the program?

Please come to the office at 56 Kenley Avenue or phone Princeton Child Care Services at 295-3126 and ask for Beatrice if you have any questions or would like further information.

Hart attacks Reform leader

"The current leadership has taken Reform as far as it can go," Jim Hart stated in Penticton on August 12.

Hart called a press conference to indicate he would reinstate his participation in the MP Pension Plan, then shocked listeners by going on to say he had "lost confidence in the leadership" of the federal Reform Party.

"I am also announcing today that I am stepping down from the Shadow Cabinet as the Chief Justice Critic for the Official Opposition. I will continue to serve the constituents of Okanagan-Coquihalla as Member of Parliament, and I will continue to remain a member of the Reform Party of Canada."

Hart told the conference he respects Preston Manning for his success at bringing the party to Official Opposition status. He added that the decision had been "difficult", but he felt that, if he was going to level criticism at the leadership, the honourable thing to do was to remove himself from the Shadow Cabinet.

The pension issue has sparked dissension within the ranks of Reform Party MPs. The Liberal government offered MPs who opted out of the Commons pension plan in 1995 a chance to enter into the old plan Reformers had criticized long and loud in the 1993 election.

Hart will receive approximately $22,000 a year when he turns 55, despite previous statements of the Reform Party that the pension plan is too generous in comparison with private industry plans.
