

Pensioners fight to save Medicare

We could lose medicare. That was Ben Swanky's message, and that is the war the 85 year old World War 2 veteran fights today. He fights well, with words and political opposition. He was in Princeton Friday evening at the Old Age Pensioners hall to talk about how Ottawa is eroding medicare.

Swanky has been working on issues affecting seniors for the past 20 years, lobbying in Ottawa, organizing and representing OAPO across Canada, and writing for seniors' publications. What he had to say should be a call to battle for all Canadians.

"There is a concerted effort to do away with the publicly funded medicare system in Canada,"

Spark ignites Firemaster

A spark from a grinder started the fire that did a quarter million dollars damage to SBC Firemaster, a Princeton manufacturer of packaged firewood. The fire started at approximately 4:15 p.m. Thursday, October 15. Princeton Volunteer Fire Department were at the scene immediately, but the blaze had moved rapidly into a pile of wood and the building.

"It started outside, and everybody followed procedures, but everything is so dry," said Wayne Wiren, owner of Firemaster.

The fire was contained quickly, but was difficult to put out. Approximately one truckload of finished product was ruined, but that was a small amount when compared with what was sitting on the lot.

Seventeen employees saw their jobs go up in smoke.

"They all came out, and they were great. There were a few tears, too," Wiren said.

He intends to have them back at work as soon as possible. The day after the fire, he was talking to insurance adjusters and planning to move as quickly as possible to rebuild.

"This is our busiest time of year," Wiren said, "We have orders like you wouldn't believe."

He plans to use as many employees as he can for the clean-up, which had begun the day after the fire. If all goes well, Firemaster employees will be back to work in a month at their regular jobs.

Swanky told the 50 people gathered for his speech.

When medicare started, the federal government paid 50 per cent, the provinces paid 50 per cent. The federal government now pays 12 per cent. To further erode medicare, the federal government now makes transfer payments in "block funding" which allows provinces to spend health dollars any way they want. (Swanky did not include B.C. in those provinces spending health dollars on other things. He praised the B.C. government for regular increases in health care spending.)

Further, Swanky outlined the ways in which Ottawa erodes organizations that administer medicare, such as Medical Prices Review Board, which has since come under investigation by a Parliamentary committee. He indicated that the Health Protection Branch is influenced by major drug companies. The Canadian Health Coalition and OAPO are campaigning to stop the erosion, and to save medicare.

He warned against big companies using political contributions to control politicians, and newspaper chains controlling what the public is allowed to know on any issue. He noted that politicians running for office do not deal with serious issues.

"We have to fight for medicare, but we have to fight the other things. We have to see what we're up against," Swanky said, pointing out that the real world, society today, must be seen and dealt with.

"Things are going haywire," he summed up.

He warned against privatization

Princeton Volunteer Fire Department arrived at SBC Firemaster at approximately 4:15 pm on Thursday.

The October 15 fire at SBC Firemaster in Princeton occurred at the company's busiest time of the year. Reconstruction began immediately with clean-up. The building and equipment were insured.

Princeton sawmill spared axe

Princeton residents undoubtedly heaved a sigh of relief on October 14 when Weyerhaeuser announced closure in Lumby sawmill and reduction in Merritt sawmill. Merritt will become a planer-only mill.

Two hundred jobs are under the axe, but not here. Weyerhaeuser will be offering early retirement packages to dislocated longterm employees, and will be finding new locations for younger employees. Changes in Princeton's mill are to be expected in what Weyerhaeuser calls "reconfiguring" of the sawmills at Kamloops, Okanagan Falls, Vavenby and Princeton.

Weyerhaeuser issued a public statement saying increased costs, the market impact of U.S. lumber quotas and the size and location of the mills had affected the company's ability to compete.

"We have to become more competitive to remain viable over the long term," said Reynold Hert, lumber business vice president for Weyerhaeuser Canada Ltd.

Hert added, "Government approval to implement the Innovative Forestry Practices Agreement in the Merritt Timber Supply Area is essential. The Ray Jarvis had the pleasure of presenting $20,000 to Laura Haw, a Superstar Bingo winner.

Bingo Superstar

"Oh my God, I don't believe it!" This was Laura Haw's reaction when she won $20,000 at the weekly Senior Citizens Superstar bingo. Haw, a Princeton resident, competed against thousands of others playing Superstar Bingo across B.C. The guaranteed $20,000 win or share jackpot is available seven nights a week at any of the 60 participating bingos. Haw won on October 12 at Princeton Senior Citizens Hall.

Ray Jarvis, who helped set up the Superstar Bingo in Princeton last January, was delighted with Haw's win.

"I've been waiting for this for months," he said, expressing his hope that a local person would win.

Storm blows roof off mobile home

A mobile home at San-Ang Estates, 3 km. east of Princeton, lost its roof in the storm that hit the valley on Saturday afternoon. The high winds knocked down trees in several locations, but without incident, except at Taylor's Mill, 2 km east of Princeton, where an old cottonwood poplar dropped and created a traffic hazard in one lane.

There were some brief power and cable outages east of Princeton.

Blowing snow proved to be a hazard between Princeton and Merritt, where the storm howled through in a white-out for a short time. As of press time, we have received no reports of motor vehicle accidents resulting from the storm.

resulting increase in forest productivity and annual allowable cut will help address the shortage of timber in the region, and secure the future of our four remaining mills."

Closure takes effect February 1999.

"Employees at Lumby and Merritt are skilled, productive, valuable people who have contributed significantly to these facilities over the years." Hertz said, "It is our goal to place as many qualified employees in positions within the company as possible. They have earned our appreciation, and will be treated with respect and dignity throughout this difficult but necessary repositioning process."

of health services, using the example of big American companies bidding on hospital laundry contracts "as if we Canadians don't know how to wash our own clothes."

He warned against the Multilateral Agreement (MAI) on Investments that regards health care as an industry, and in which industry under MAI does not have to follow labour, safety, or environmental laws of the country in which the industry operates.

Swanky told people they must make some demands now: medicare must be expanded, transfer payments for health must be restored, there must be national standards of health care enforced, and there must be a national home care program.

"We fought for medicare in Canada because Canadians deserve it," Swanky said, "We have to act now."

He urged letter-writing campaigns and protest marches. The initiative to do something is left with OAPO and their supporters.

Inside our Schools: on TV

The B.C. government is producing two 30-minute interactive television programs titled Inside Our Schools: the Search for Better Learning to be aired on Knowledge Network on October 21 and 28. These programs focus on B.C.'s public education system and include a public feedback component using a 1-800 line. Viewers will be able to leave comments or speak directly to elected officials or education experts and have their questions answered.

The programs are a call to action. They inform residents and ask them to participate and discuss key public education issues.

Some of the issues are: the effect of poverty on schooling, intolerance and violence, competence and assessment, the impact of technology, how parents can participate, and the impact of technology.

Keremeos movie-making Characters come to life

by Laura Lawson, South Similkameen reporter

After eight years of work, Joan Hopper, author of the original screenplay Shegalla Summer, is seeing her characters come to life.

Hopper arrived in Keremeos on Thanksgiving to watch the filming in Cawston and meet Lynn Redgrave. Describing her first visit to Carrie's cabin, Hopper said, "Lynn walked off the page." Hopper has been collaborating with writer, producer, director Mort Ransen since he read the story in 1993. She said the basics of her screenplay were never changed before she was consulted.

"A lot of people cared," Hopper said.

Born in Edmonton 35 years ago, Hopper currently lives in Vancouver with her commonlaw husband. She has no children.

Hopper's initial visit to the Similkameen Valley was in 1981. Like many teenage travelers, she lived at a camp on the riverbank and spent two summers picking cherries for the Christiansons. It was her "only small town experience and it stuck with me." Hopper's stay here sparked the beginning of the inspiration for a tale about a river called 'Shegalla'.

The catalyst for Hopper's project was a screenplay workshop she took called "Praxis", which is affiliated with Simon Fraser University. Previously, she studied television production and screenwriting in Montreal. Hopper said participant's critiques of one another's work at the six-week course was often brutal, but it helped her improve the shape of Shegalla Summer. Upon completion of the workshop, all of the writers' screenplays were made available to the Canadian National Film Board.

Hopper remembers her first call from Ransen.

"He said it was one of the most interesting, most disjointed things he's ever read."

It turned out Ransen had mistakenly received only every other page. She said one of the reasons it took so long to become a movie is that Ransen was also writing and directing Margaret's Museum.

For five years, Ransen had an option to by agreement with Hopper. In most cases, an option does not extend beyond two years. During each year, Hopper has received an annual fee. She received a larger last writer's fee the first day of shooting the film. Hopper's name will be listed in the movie credits.

The biggest change to her life is a renewed "faith in writing."

During her three-day visit in Keremeos, Hopper ran into half a dozen people she knew in 1981-82. She found their response to her success "nice, but it feels strange."

Hopper attends City University, where she is studying for a masters in Human Behaviour. She works as a student advisor and her goal is to become a counselor.

The author is currently working on a new screenplay called Cherry Picking. This story is about two teenage girls who leave home to work in an orchard.

"They never make it, they get stuck in Vancouver," Hopper says, "It is a dark coming of age."

Joan Hopper, Author of the original screenplay Shegalla Summer was in town last week to see her screenplay come to life and renew acquaintances in the Keremeos / Cawston area.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Thompson, center, with the wedding party at the home of Stan and Mildred Thompson.

Happy parents host local wedding

Bruce Thompson and Lisa Goode said their wedding vows on August 22 at the home of the groom's parents in Princeton. Marriage Commissioner Margaret Cormack conducted the ceremony.

Lisa is the daughter of Robin and Veronica Goode. Bruce is the son of Stan and Mildred Thompson.

The bride was beautiful in a champagne silk organza gown. The groom was handsome in a black tuxedo.

The attendants were Anna Cannon and Kim Dorval from Vancouver. They not only added grace to this occasion, but helped so much in the preparations.

Keith Sulentic did a fine job as Best Man. John Hooper, groom's man, offered his help all week and looked great despite black eye and stitches.

The bride's brother, Simon Goode, gave the toast to the bride and groom following the ceremony.

Many good friends and relations attended, who travelled far to make this a perfect day, and the weather was outstanding.

Alice Tweddle of Keremeos was a special guest at her grandson's wedding.

Out of country guests were Phyllis Calvert, the bride's grandmother from England. The bride's parents travelled to Princeton from Buenos Aires. David and Diane Calvert, the bride's aunt and uncle, travelled from England. The bride's brother, Simon Goode, and Melanie Thornton, came from Australia for the wedding.

Drug abuse leads woman to crime

Dichelle Marie Foss appeared for sentencing in Provincial Court in Princeton on October 15, 1998. She had entered a guilty plea to 11 charges of fraud involving forgery.

Crown Counsel Debra Pope told the court of a series of cheques stolen from another woman to which Foss had signed the woman's name. In addition, Foss had run up over $5,000 worth of debts on her stepfather's credit card. The crimes had occurred in 1997.

Crown Counsel described Foss as having been in a "pathetic situation" at the time, having two children, expecting a third, and addicted to cocaine.

Defense Counsel told the court Foss wrote the cheques to feed her cocaine habit, but had not touched cocaine since August, 1997, but later said she had gone back briefly to drugs two weeks before her court appearance. Both Crown and Defense Counsels asked for a sentence including substance abuse counselling.

The 26 year old mother of three had made restitution for the over $800 obtained through cheques. She had no prior criminal record. Judge G. Sinclair spoke to Foss at length on the hazards of using cocaine.

"Cocaine is one of the worst things I see as a judge," he said.

He cautioned Foss on attempting to deal with her addiction on her own, saying she must have professional assistance to help her stay off.

"It's a terrible, awful, insidious drug."

Judge Sinclair gave her a possible scenario of the future, in which she would lose her children and her health, and probably find herself in prison.

"You have to lick this problem," he told Foss.

Judge Sinclair ordered her to serve a two-year probation with a special condition that she attend drug abuse counselling as required. In addition, during her probation, she must pay her stepfather $100 a month.

Who's acting in Keremeos

Dwayne Parker, renowned owner of K-Mountain Inn in Keremeos, will have his moment under the hot lights of a film set. Parker has a speaking part in the movie Shogalla, playing the liquor store clerk.

Casting director Linda Theodosakis recently confirmed the following list of extras: Charlene Pierre, Serena Jack, Leon Marchand, Selena Edwards, Hazel Levesque, Barbra Godolphin, Ian Patterson, Cathryn Miskulin, Doug Wheeler, and Gerald Wills.

Special meetings next week for fisheries renewal plans

From October 26 to 29, a series of meetings will be held to discuss the development of a working relationship between Fisheries Renewal BC and various groups interested in fisheries. The objective of the meeting is to identify fisheries concerns within the Okanagan, Similkameen and Boundary areas, and discuss ways in which future fisheries funding should be applied to these issues. It is hoped that a common vision will result from the discussions.

Fisheries Renewal BC is a Crown Corporation established to serve all fish and fisheries in the province. It is concerned with environmental, economic, social and cultural values associated with our fish. Its purpose is to undertake initiatives for the renewal of B.C. fisheries, improve fish stocks, protect and restore fish habitat and strengthen fishing communities for generations to come.

Fisheries Renewal has retained the Okanagan Nation Fisheries Commission and Community Futures Development Corporation of Okanagan-Similkameen to assist in getting its work started in the Okanagan, Similkameen and Kettle/Granby drainages. The Commission and Community Futures will coordinate the meetings to:

- identify local fisheries issues
- seek a common vision for the direction of fisheries
- solicit ideas on how to implement the Salmonid Renewal Program
- determine the most appropriate delivery agent for the program in this area.

People interested in the future direction of fisheries in this area should attend one of the following meetings:

- October 27 - Penticton Trade and Convention Center, Salon C, 7 pm
- October 28 - Keremeos - Lower Similkameen Band Office, 7 pm

POINTS OF VIEW

OUR VIEW

Old have more courage

When Old Age Pensioners lead the fight to stop Ottawa from dumping our medicare program, then the rest of us have to take a hard look at how gutless we are.

Listening to Ben Swanky speak of his youth, when he was arrested for joining a hunger march during the Great Depression, and the years he spent fighting the Nazi war machine, one can only wonder there is still fight left in him and in his generation. They won so many battles for a better world for Canadians, yet so many of us sit back and do nothing as the people we elect attempt to take from us what this older generation fought for, and won for us.

Swanky warns of the corporations who try to control our political process. He warns of the people who own newspaper chains who try to control what we know, how much we know, and therefore what we think about any issue. We need to be warned, because our rights, our freedoms and our privileges are being eroded. When Swanky suggests we should be marching, he is right. His generation was not afraid to march for what they believed in and they are still not scared to take action.

What makes the rest of us so helpless? Is this the ultimate goal of all of the political scheming and manipulation, to make us feel too helpless, too powerless, to do anything about what is happening to our medicare? If that is the case, then we need to look at our elders, people ready to fight for us to their last breath. They had the courage to protect a nation. Do we?

There are people who would like our society to return to feudalism, a system in which some have power and privileges and wealth, and the majority have no money, no power except that which the overlords give them, and no privileges except to work for those who have power. Medicare is one of the ways we have been able to prevent social inequality. Are we ready to fight for it?

The miracle, marketing, ingredient of the 90's.

YOUR VIEW

No guns, no homicide? Not likely, he says.

Dear Editor;

The letter of Mr. H.P. Toews of Sept. 22, headline No guns means no homicides - Great! I wish I could really believe this, but as I see it, homicide has taken another turn. The knives, clubs, and just plain dirty fighting; re: the footwork of some of the latest crowd of killers, such as Verena Verk and the two girls beaten to death or near death, and the body found in the ravine, stabbed and throat cut.

What about the electric cord killing in the Homolka case?

Now, our masters say no pepper spray as a defense against these potential killers. Older people are now helpless.

As to the statistics he quotes: they look good on paper when there is no other comparison, but where there is the greatest proliferation of guns - Switzerland, their every household and male occupant must have a gun and plenty of ammunition - I see by the statistics that there are even less deaths by gunshot in that country.

No, Mr. Toews! I would suggest that all the facts must be on the table, for all to see. These statistics do not show how, why, or what gun was used. You just say 'guns'. A lot of the gun-related deaths have been racial and drug executions. I would hope that the people of Canada are not including responsible citizens in this category.

In Canada, there seems to be no justice. Failing to register a gun can draw a sentence of 10 years yet the killer can get a sentence of four years. There is no deterrent for killers in Canada.

Note the two fellows who fought deportation so as to escape the possible death penalty in the U.S.

Our laws are too easy. Our judges are too soft. Why? Because it will cost too much to house these criminals. There is too much plea-bargaining by

Liberals write to Premier

An open letter from Gordon Campbell, Leader of the Official Opposition, to Premier Glen Clark:

Dear Premier;

British Columbians are astounded and outraged by your government's decision to reimburse MLAs for travel expenses incurred by spouses and dependents. Taxpayers are frustrated and angry that your representatives on the Legislative Assembly Management Committee have rammed through this policy, and they demand that it be reversed immediately.

Our caucus is adamantly opposed to your new policy and we will have no part of it. We urge you to immediately reconvene the Committee, to repeal the policy, and to apologize today to all British Columbians for your government's conduct on this matter.

Dear Editor;

The Okanagan Similkameen Health Region is seeking applications from interested persons in the South Similkameen for a 1, 2 or 3 year director position on the Health Board. In the past, directors were appointed to give a regional perspective, but also geographically.

It is important for the South Similkameen to be represented in the Health Region for input and visibility. Keremeos services are not yet amalgamated with the Region, funding and service provision can be affected.

I have been a member of the Health Board for the last two years. I urge residents to come forward to use your interest in health care. Please contact me for more information 499-2455. Sincerely, Helen Bishop

These kittens were dropped off at the side of Highway 40 on October 14. The friendly kittens were completely defenseless against wild animals that would have eaten them, and did not know enough to stay off the road. Fortunately, a kind passerby picked them up and took them home. People who live in the rural area frequently find kittens abandoned by the roadside. Abandoning the kittens is not a kindness, as they are unable to survive without a home and humans to care for them.

The Draft Plan has been circulated within the 4 - H community and the Provincial Council is looking for comments and feedback. (The Draft Plan has been published in full on the B.C. 4 - H Program website at 222.bc4h.bc.ca

After comments and feedback are gathered this fall, the final "Draft Plan" will be reviewed. Acceptance of the plan is expected by June, 1999.

The survey showed there will be no big change, just some fine-tuning. Skill development and personal development remain the strong pillars of the 4-H Program and were supported as the most important goals of the 4-H Program in B.C.

Heart Food

by Dave Machin

And He came down with them and stood on a level place with a crowd of His disciples, and a great multitude of people from all of Judea and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, who came to hear Him and be healed of their diseases, as well as those who were tormented with unclean spirits, and they were healed, and the whole multitude sought to touch Him, for power went out from Him and healed them all. (Luke 6:17-19)

By definition, a multitude is a great crowd of people. Not even in this great multitude was there a person that Jesus would not or did not heal. Think this through: in a great multitude of people there are all kinds of people, both believers and non-believers, both good and bad people, but it said that Jesus healed them all. If there was anything that could or would disqualify anyone from receiving healing, surely you would find one in a great multitude who was so undeserving that God would not heal them. But without respect of persons, Jesus healed them all. For, during His earthly ministry, Jesus revealed to men the express will of God in action. He did not take credit for any of the works that He did, but said that His Father in Him did the works. Everything that He said and did was a picture of God's will towards mankind. Hebrews 13:8 tells us that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever. He's still alive today and has not changed and He never will. His attitude toward healing and toward you is still the same as it was then. The only record of anything stopping Jesus from doing the will of God in people's lives occurred in Mark 6:5 and 6, where it said that He could do no mighty works there because of their unbelief. It was not God's will that stopped His healing power, rather it was the will of the people. Unbelief will always leave you where you are. The scriptures clearly show beyond doubt that Jesus, while fulfilling the will of God, offered healing unconditionally in His ministry on earth. God has never been stingy with His healing power and has always desired that you be healed even more than you do.

Man jailed for prohibited drive

Arthur Clayton Brooks was sentenced to 17 days in jail after he pled guilty to two charges of driving while prohibited. Brooks appeared in Provincial Court in Princeton on October 15.

The 25 year old Princeton man had been apprehended in August 1997 near Peachland while under a three-month driving prohibition. He was apprehended again in February 1998 in Princeton for driving while prohibited.

Judge G. Sinclair ordered Brooks to pay a $300 fine for the 1997 offense and serve seven days, and a $300 fine plus 10 consecutive days for the 1998 infraction. He will serve his sentence on the Electronic Monitoring Program.

B.C. builds Trail pavilion

The B.C. government built a pavilion at Granville Island as a tribute to the hundreds of donors and volunteers who have worked on the Trans Canada Trail project. Cathy McGregor, Minister of Environment, Lands and Parks, opened the pavilion on October 12. The pavilion will display approximately 12,000 names and messages from donors who sponsored metres of trail.

New Fall storytime

The Princeton Public Library offers a children's pre-school (ages 3 to 5) storytime program free of charge throughout the community. You do not have to be a member of the library to enroll your little one. However, membership will allow you to take out books for them. The seven sessions will begin Friday, October 30 and run to December 11, with sittings at 1:15 and 2:00 p.m. PLEASE NOTE: new times, new day. You can enroll in person or by telephoning the Library at 295-6495 on Tuesday, Wednesday or Friday afternoons.

The Similkameen Hospice Society

The Similkameen Hospice Society is a group of volunteers who give freely of their time and dedicate their lives to ensuring comfort, quality of life, dignity and care in the home for those approaching death with a terminal illness. They also provide support for the caregivers and family members.

The Society provides this service free of charge to the residents of Keremeos, Cawston, Olalla and Hedley with no restrictions on the time (24 hours), day of the week or holidays. While no one can deny the service a hospital or palliative care facility can provide, those who live in this area do not have these type of facilities in our immediate community. This often means that the caregiver and family have to travel outside their own community to visit their loved one. In some instances the caregiver or spouse may not be able to drive on their own, or in the winter months are reluctant to do so. The Similkameen Hospice Society is focused on helping people in their own home.

The Hospice Society provides hospital beds, medical equipment and other aids, not available through the Red Cross equipment lending program to help in the comfort and mobility of the patient. Volunteer drivers deliver and remove the heavier equipment. At the present time there are 12 beds with five of them being take-apart hospital beds.

The Society provided support for 26 persons in 1997 and 13 to date for 1998. Hospice care is provided along with the other health care services in the community and the local doctors have been supportive of the efforts made in the care of their patients.

Library says thanks

Keremeos Library extended a special thank you to "Bruno the Bear" for delighting the children during the "Bruno the Bear" program at the library.

The fall session of Storytime for 3 to 5 year olds will run from October 20 to December 8 on Tuesday mornings, 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. To register, or for more information, call the library at 499-2313.

As the Hospice Society does not have any government funding all monies received are by donations to the society or come from fundraising activities throughout the year. In the fall an auction is held. This year's event will be on November 7 at 1:00 p.m. in the Keremeos Elks Hall.

Donations from local persons and businesses provide us with the items to be auctioned and the generosity and support of the community makes this event our main fundraiser for the year. In December, we have the Angel Tree which is taken throughout the community during the Christmas season. Numerous citizens, service groups and business organizations in the community have supported Hospice in a variety of ways which are always

Little Scoop

Techno-crazies

Technology is always changing and one of the areas that has really been moving ahead at a steady pace is our communications. In the last 50 years the innovation of the fax machine, the personal computer and internet services, and the modifications of our telephone services have changed the way we communicate to one another. The new ways we communicate have also created new types of people in our society:

Techno-dinosaur - a person who denies the changes will help them and sticks to a simple rotary telephone and still writes letters that use stamps. A lot of our grandparents will fit in this category.

Techno-blab - a person who has every option on their telephone; voice mail, call waiting, three way calling, call display and fax machine. They flood everyone's email with a letter every two hours and have everyone on their speed dial. These people can get annoying and you might not want to give them your email address or phone number.

Techno-snob - a person who checks their call display on every call and decides if they feel like appreciated.

This year's goal is to purchase an infusion pump which releases medication to control pain. As the cost of this item is significant, the society hopes the upcoming fundraising events, along with money set aside over the past year, will provide enough funds to purchase this item in 1999.

While the Similkameen Hospice Society role is not a subject that many people like to talk about, as the discussion of death in our culture is often avoided, the volunteers are dedicated to providing care and compassion to the terminally ill, their families and friends. The often unspoken, or spoken, words of encouragement and support from the community are all these volunteers need in their endeavor to continue providing this service in the future.

talking to that person and when on the line ignore the beeps of call waiting. These people should be punished with confiscation of their telephone and given two cans and some string.

Techno-geek - a person who has one telephone line and spends hours and hours online, making it impossible for anyone to contact them. These people can often be identified by their square eyes and zero social skills.

Techno-gigolo - These people are the ones who "love you and leave you" whether with a message or an email, they tell you they'll call and never do, you always get stuck with the phone bill calling them. These people need to be dealt with harshly, call them collect or flood their email with chain letters!

These people didn't exist 50 years ago, but with the changes in technology come changes in our society and I'm sure that in years to come their will be a new list of new stereotypes that go with the new products of the future.

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

OKANAGAN SIMILKAMEEN HEALTH REGION BOARD OF DIRECTORS

In December 1998, the Minister of Health will appoint individuals to the Okanagan Similkameen Health Region (OSHR) Board. Appointments are made for 1, 2 or 3-year terms, beginning January 1999.

The Regional Health Board has a vacant position to represent the PRINCETON COMMUNITY.

RHB directors are volunteers appointed for their interest, knowledge, skills and experience, as well as their ability to represent their community. The RHB develops policy, sets priorities, and allocates resources for the delivery of health care services in this Region. There is no remuneration for directors; however, expenses are reimbursed in accordance with RHB guidelines. This is an excellent opportunity to play a role in meeting the health care needs of the Princeton community. The OSHR Board will recommend candidates to the Minister. If you are interested in being nominated as an RHB director, contact the OSHR office at (250) 862-4200.

NOMINATIONS CLOSE ON FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1998.

Betty-Jo O'Hara, manager of Keremeos branch of Valley First Credit Union presents a $1,000 cheque to Karin Schulze-Berosha for the Similkameen Hospice Society. The Society needs to raise approximately $5,000 for an infusion pump that allows patients to administer their own painkillers. The Society hopes to raise more money at their upcoming auction.

Tea room king brings visitors to Hedley

Chuck Schmidt knows how to bring in the visitors at the Hedley Museum. From July 1997 to last week, over 6,000 people have dropped by.

Schmidt began leasing the tea room and Wild Goat Gift shop inside the museum building one year ago. Museum Director Helen Martens said the numbers have climbed because of his dedication. Although he has done "lots of advertising", Schmidt believes "consistency is the key."

The gift shop has many locally-made items but books on local history are the best sellers. Schmidt boasts that he has the only new book store between hope and Penticton. Mascot Mine posters are also favorite buys.

His knowledge is not limited to Hedley's history but spills over into the kitchen where Schmidt prepares fresh soup, sandwiches and cakes. He offers an on-site gold panning experience, too. At a cost of seven dollars, tourists are guaranteed a third of an ounce from Schmidt's pre-mixed bags.

The museum has 15 volunteers, including Bob Bishop, the official greeter on the porch. Bishop has positioned a chair behind a spotting scope and visitors are encouraged to have a look at the Mascot Mine buildings high on the mountain.

Volunteers have recently started creating an authentic blacksmith shop in the heritage barn. Among tools on display is the original bellows from the mine. Schmidt and another volunteer brought the bellows down this spring.

The attraction is open seven days a week.

Poetry contest awards prizes to amateurs

Toronto - The Poetry Guild has announced that over $20,000 in prizes will be awarded this year in their 1998 International Poetry Contest. Through this prestigious competition, poets from the Similkameen Valley, particularly beginners, are invited to submit original poetry for consideration by a panel of judges. Deadline for submissions is October 31, 1998. No entry fee is charged. To enter, send one original poem, any subject, any style, to: The Poetry Guild, Contest CPA-223, 253 College St., Suite 382, Toronto, ON M5T 1R5 or go to www.poetryguild.com The poem should be no more than 20 lines and the poet's name, address and phone number should appear at the top of the page. Entries must be postmarked or sent via Internet by October 31. A new contest opens on November 1, 1998.

Trick or Treat safely

by Pam McCluskey, Public Health Nurse, OSHR

Trick or treat, Hallowe'en apples, ghosts, goblins, princesses, clowns, Bat Man or Robin, whatever your theme this year, catch the spirit and join in. Hallowe'en - what a great time for creativity, and adventure. This year get the whole family involved. Everyone don a costume, tell a spooky tale, decorate your house inside and out, bake batwing brownies and serve them with vampire blood, create an atmosphere, and I'm certain you will all have a great time.

Here are a few tips to help make your Hallowe'en adventures successful. When picking a costume choose the light colours, purchase or make your costume with extra room for warm clothing underneath and watch the length, you don't want to be tripping over your cape all night. Also use strips of reflective tape so you can be seen. This year try using face paints to create your look. Face paints eliminate struggles with broken face masks and difficulty seeing through the eye slots. Carry a flashlight and always stay together (groups of 3 to 5 work well.)

Check through your goodies. Don't just look for the good stuff, look for the bad stuff. Candies that are not packaged should not be eaten.

Children should never talk to or go with strangers, and should have a clear idea of how far they can go and when they are expected to go home.

Stick to going around the block. Do not criss-cross back and forth across the street.

Jim Ferguson, left, a local golfer, tries out a park bench at Princeton's golf course. Maria Walman, President of Royal Canadian Legion Branch #56 was at the course representing the Legion and its donation of a Mego Wood bench for hole number 2. The bench is a great place for golfers to wait for their turn or just rest their weary legs. The cost of the bench is approximately $135. A plaque naming the donor will be placed on the bench next spring.

Legion membership changes

A new membership resolution was passed at the Royal Canadian Legion dominion convention held in June. Persons formerly ineligible for membership in a Legion may now qualify under a new category known as affiliate non-voting. Once accepted by a Legion branch, affiliate non-voting members would have the right to attend branch general meetings, wear Legion dress and insignia, become a member of a branch committee and participate in sports at all levels of the organization.

The adoption of the resolution eliminates the categories of fraternal affiliate and non-voting associate. Affiliate non-voting members may now apply for affiliate voting membership. This is another new category offering full Legion privileges.

Those who currently hold fraternal affiliate or non-voting associate status can now become affiliate non-voting members as of October 1, 1998, and their time served as fraternal affiliate or non-voting associate can be applied to the two-year service requirement for the new affiliate voting category. These applications must be approved by the general membership of the branch.

The new affiliate non-voting category will give Legion branches the opportunity to recruit any person of good character who is of the federal voting age and who is a Canadian citizen or Commonwealth subject and who supports the aims and objects of the Legion. It could be a boon for rural areas where many branches are struggling to maintain operations with fewer members.

Find pushes back history

University of Oregon scientists announced on October 8 they have found a home site in Oregon dating back 10,000 year, 4,000 years older than the pit houses found in the Great Basin. The structure used poles and had a hearth, and was similar in shape to a teepee.

The home site was located near Paulina Lake, twenty miles south of Bend, Oregon. Crude tools made of obsidian were found at the site. These were examined for blood residue. Analysis revealed they had been used on rabbits, bison, elk and bear. Evidence of hazelnuts, blackberries and chokecherries were found at the site.

A number of recent archaeological sites have revealed startling evidence which calls to question the theory that native North Americans migrated from Asia. A growing controversy over mounting evidence derived from DNA studies as well as ancient sites has archaeologists arguing over the origins of native North Americans. Some cling to the theory of Asian migration, others say there may have been a migration from Asia but those Asians met people here when they arrived. The arguing continues.

Rifle theft brings fine

Blair Thomas White appeared in Provincial Court in Princeton on October 15 to plead guilty to illegal possession of a firearm. On August 11, 1998, a police officer observed White carrying what appeared to be a rifle case. He stopped White to ask what was in the box, and White revealed a new rifle. White did not have a Firearms Acquisition Certificate, and claimed it belonged to his employer.

After further investigation, White admitted to having taken it from his employer's residence while his employer was absent.

The 18 year old Princeton man had no prior criminal record. Judge G. Sinclair ordered White to pay a $350 fine and $35 surcharge.

Preschool children were treated to a special visit by Bruno the Bear at the Keremeos Library on October 14. Bruno is a character created by author Sylvie Daigneault. Local librarian Debra Holley led the children and Bruno through the song "If you're happy and you know it". After shaking hands with the kids Bruno presented gifts of crayons, coloring book and reader to each child. Florence Brown of Salmon Arm Regional Library and Bruno have been traveling for two weeks, visiting 10 other libraries.

lived in perilous times. The biggest change for most people was the need for better roads to accommodate those Model T Fords.

How well will the world be, politically, as we enter the new century? Will we be closer to peace or to chaos?

The years 1909 and 1910 continued the pattern of political change and turmoil. A revolution in Portugal led to a republic. The Shah of Persia (now Iran) was deposed. There was civil war in Honduras. The Mexican Revolution began. There was a revolt in Albania.

Good things happened. China abolished slavery. The National Association for the Advancement of Coloured People (NAACP) was founded. Prince Albert of Monaco founded the first Institute for Oceanography. The first deep-sea research project was undertaken. A cure for syphilis was found, although it was not 100 per cent effective.

Peary reached the North Pole. T.H. Morgan started research in genetics. The first plastics went into production under the name Bakelite.

Women were admitted to German universities for the first time.

Women were suddenly able to go curly with the first permanent waves in London.

Telephone use was spreading rapidly. The first long flights took place, one across the English Channel and one of 130 kms. How far will planes fly non-stop in the next century? Does anybody care? Will their be planes or will everybody be on strike all the time?

The Boy Scouts had been established in 1907 and the Girl Guides were started in 1909, still thriving today. Will Girl Guides go into space 100 years from now?

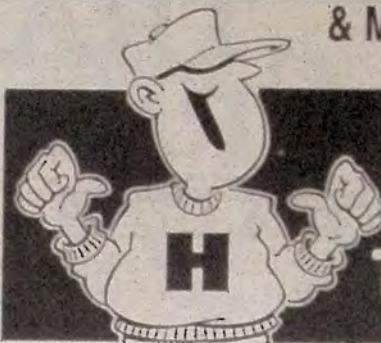

The century, at this point, seems to be speeding up, but it did not affect most people. Life continued much as it had, but the automobile, airplane, telephone and radio were to accelerate change in the next few years. What will be the most change-producing item in the next century?

Footprints in the sands of time are never made by sitting down.

Princeton Light & Power's TRANS-X RATE DESIGN PROGRAM

WHAT ARE TRANS - X RATES?

TRANS - X ("TX") Rates are based upon the actual cost of providing delivery of electric power to the customer's doorstep. This is established by doing an extensive study called a "Fully Allocated Cost of Service Study" ("FACOS"). The FACOS determines what is the appropriate contribution to the overall revenue requirement by each customer class. TX Rates are broken into three distinct charges - SERVICE - ACCESS - ENERGY.

SERVICE is the direct cost of metering, billing and customer services.

ENERGY is the direct cost of the power purchases to supply the system.

ACCESS is the charge which collects the rest of the revenue required. The ACCESS Charge is further broken into a charge for maximum Capacity used during the billing period and another relating to the amount of Energy consumed for that same period.

The Ratio between the Capacity (KVA) charge and the Energy (kWh) charge is different for each customer class and reflects the affect which each class has on the costs of operating the distribution system.

The TX Rates attempt to recover, in a fair manner, the costs created on the system by each customer class. The ACCESS charge goes even further toward rewarding those individual customers who maintain a superior load profile and power factor.

The Secret House Next Door

by Patty Ann Peale

The house next door sat right in the middle of a long-dead, straw like field of tall grass, its gray weathered wooden siding another sign of neglect. It was a big old farmhouse, but the farmer and his family were long gone. A garden overgrown with weeds and field plants sat abandoned behind the house. One lonely tree stood guard a short way from the front. Its barren, leafless limbs bent toward the house as if to embrace it and swayed gently in the light but cool fall afternoon breeze.

I watched the house from behind the wire fence separating the two properties. This fence went the entire distance between them, but that was all. There was no fence to the back, in the front, or on the other side of either property. It was just one long wall of wire fence.

I had been watching the house all summer. It was really strange. I never saw anyone outside the house except for the grocery store delivery man. I never saw anyone visit. Once in a while I could see someone walking behind the windows of the house, a silhouette framed by the daylight from an opposite window. I never saw any lights on over there.

"Who is that?" I wondered. "Could it be a criminal? Maybe it's a witch who lives there!" I had been a little nervous about things for a while, but I really didn't think whoever lived next door would appreciate some kid nosing around. Or what might happen to that kid, if he did nose around. But I had to find out what was going on. My family needed to know if there was something dangerous next door.

I casually strolled to the end of the fence. I glanced over toward the house, taking care to appear to be looking at a weed at my feet. Nothing moved. I got down on my knees and really looked at that weed good. Would the tall grass be enough to hide me? I lifted my head. Yes! I could crawl through the grass and at least get a bit closer.

My heart was pounding in my throat. Slowly I crawled closer to the house. Every few feet, I looked up. It was taking so long to get near enough. "I should head for the tree," I thought. "If I could get there, I could stand up hidden behind it."

I raised my head to look for the tree. "You there!" said a voice behind me. "Please don't hurt me!" I begged as I whirled around and backed up. I looked at what had to be the oldest woman on the planet, glaring at me with her hands on her hips.

"Just what do you think you're doing?" she snapped.

"I'm s-sorry," I stammered. I just wanted to make sure everything was okay."

"You've been watching me all summer," said the old woman. "What took you so long? You scared?"

"Ah, n-no ma'am, not really," I said. "I didn't want to bother you."

The old woman looked at me a long time. Finally she said, "come with me," and turned away. I wanted to turn away myself, the other way, in a fast run. But I didn't. I followed her.

We went through her front door and stepped into another century. The old woman took me from room to room, all filled with things she had collected since she'd been a child.

As we entered the kitchen, she pointed me to a chair. "Sit," she commanded. I did as I was told. "My name is Sarah. Would you like some tea?"

"Uh, yes please," I said, confused now. Tea? "Uh, S-Sarah? Why don't you have lights on at night?" I blurted out.

For the next half hour, Sarah told me all about how she had been born in the house. How she had never gone outside much. She had a skin condition and could not tolerate light. She only allowed enough light to see by. And she told me about her family, all gone now.

It seemed that there was nothing very sinister at all about this house or the person who lived in it.

Suddenly, Sarah stood up, opened the back door and said, "it is time for you to go now. Thank you for your visit. Please, do come again."

I stared at her a second before I stood up to leave. "Uh, yes ma'am. Thank you for the tea."

As I stepped off the porch, I looked back at Sarah. She was sort of smiling at me. "Next time you visit," she said, "come to the door and knock."

Freda Macmillan shows off her Sumac Ridge Cup that she won at the Summerland Fall Fair for Best Overall Grape Wine.

Hedley water helps win wine award

Last month Freda Macmillan, of Hedley's "Let's Brew It", got a big surprise when she won the Sumac Ridge Cup at the Summerland Fall Fair.

Macmillan's white wine took first place and two of her reds came in third. She was given a plaque for Grand Aggregate Champion and the cup for Best Overall grape wine.

Macmillan has only been making wine for three years and this is the first contest she entered.

The novice had no idea she would receive a cup and plaque. After being given three ribbons and nine dollars, Macmillan was about to go home. Organizers told there were more prizes to collect, including a wine kit.

When asked what made her wines so special, Macmillan said, "Hedley water."

Trout Talk

Slow and easy catches more fish

by John Sandness, Similkameen Valley outdoorsman

Ants don't swim, as a rule! And the fresh water shrimp doesn't swim through the water at a speed of 15 feet in 30 seconds!

Why do I say these things? They seem obvious, don't they? But I have to remind myself, and maybe you should also, when fishing, to slow down our retrieves!

Last week, I was up at Kump Lake. It is a beautifully situated lake, high on the mountain side. The limit is one fish, on barbless fly only. There are big fish in Kump, but they can sure be stubborn. And why not! The lake is loaded with natural food. I didn't catch any fish at Kump until I slowed down and thought things over.

Dragonflies were darting about the lake. They were catching small insects like midges and mosquitoes. These dragonflies had grown up in Kump Lake. Their larva, which we used to be able to use for bait, are a terrific food source for trout. One dragonfly nymph has got to be the equivalent of at least 100 chironomids (midge larvae) or 50 adult mosquitoes. I call the dragonfly larvae the "steaks of the lakes". And trout love them. This secret weapon, as the old timers of our area called them, used to be harvested from our lakes for bait.

Do not fish with real dragonfly larva now. They are strictly banned, as are other aquatic insects and invertebrates.

But the next best thing is an olive green nymph fly. Many good dragonfly patterns exist. I like to tie mine with medium olive green chenille and make them with thick bodies. Putting a pair of weighted eyes up front also makes the fly more natural in shape and action.

How should you fish the dragonfly? Well, after casting my arm off fruitlessly for a couple of hours at Kump, I settled down and thought it out. Why use a Doc Spratley when with all these dragonfly adults buzzing around,

NDP proud of job picture

According to Employment and Investment Minister Mike Farnworth, another 11,000 jobs were created in B.C. in September, bring the unemployment rate down to 8.3 per cent, the lowest since January 1997. Figures released October 9 indicated the number of unemployed dropped by 7,000.

"An upward trend in employment is being seen despite the effect of the global downturn", Farnworth said. "While resource industries continue to experience economic problems, we are seeing positive growth trends in sectors such as high tech, film, tourism and the oil and gas industry."

there have to be larvae in the lake!

I rowed over to a shallow weed bed, put on a #4-3XL dragonfly pattern I call the Green Grub, and on my second cast, was slowly retrieving my fly. Letting the sinking line carry the fly right to the bottom, I hadn't retrieved more than ten feet when "Bingo!" a real nice Kamloops rainbow had it. Next second, it was up and out of the water, and so was my adrenaline level. There is nothing quite like that to wake you up when you are fishing.

Reverend Bob Miller, Doc Huston, Bob Garrett and Frank were fishing Kump Lake also. Each of us was fishing different methods, but, guess what? When we checked out our successful patterns, the #1 fly had been an olive green nymph pattern of some sort. And we had fished them slowly, over weed beds.

We ate our fish for supper that evening. It is an old expression but true, "That was a meal fit for a king."

Oxbow river near Oliver restored in wildlife habitat project

A wildlife habitat restoration project was initiated near Oliver this weekend. An oxbow that meanders through privately owned land is the site of a riparian area restoration project funded by the Habitat Conservation Trust Fund. With an estimated 85% reduction of the riparian and wetland habitat in the South Okanagan valley, these important wildlife areas are considered at risk.

The oxbow was originally part of the Okanagan River, prior to channelization in the 1950s. In recent times, the oxbow banks have been damaged by horses which trample and consume native plants along the river's edge. The result is unstable, eroding banks, decreased water quality, weed invasion and a reduction in habitat available for wildlife.

Sections of the oxbow were excavated this past weekend in an effort to improve the flow and quality of water, and provide some diversity to the aquatic environment. Excavated material was Fresh trout, fried potatoes and Chilliwack corn on the cob. It doesn't get much better! There were even enough left-over trout fillets to have some for breakfast. Guess who ate most of them?

Next time, I would like to describe how I fish the Tom Thumb in a lake and in the river.

By the way, October is the best time of the year to fish, in my opinion! And with everyone out after their buck, you will have most of the lakes to yourself. The weather is just gorgeous, the fish are active as the insect hatches decrease and the trout are hungrier.

Rory Schwarz, of the Tulameen Trading Post, says he has been having good fishing up on Thalia Lake with some wedding rings he "borrowed" from the Post's tackle department. In fact, he caught his biggest trout so far on his last trip there.

So, October fishing is worth checking out. Good fishing to you.

used to create islands within the oxbow. Fencing will be installed along the length of the oxbow to prevent horse access, and allow the natural regeneration of the riparian plant community along the river bank. Bat houses and nest boxes for swallows and wood ducks will be placed throughout the project area. Weeds will be controlled and some riparian vegetation planted, to enhance wildlife opportunities. West Kootenay Power donated old power poles for the construction of a bridge and an osprey nesting platform. Oliver Ready-Mix donated concrete blocks for bridge support structures.

This project is a cooperative endeavor involving the Wildlife Program at BC Environment and private landowners. It will provide a demonstration site to raise public awareness, and will assist stewardship opportunities by increasing landowner interest in riparian and wetland enhancement.

Thief takes furniture from Tulameen motel

Police responded to a break-in at the Otter Sleep Inn Motel in Tulameen. The culprits made off with many of the motel room's furnishings, including a colour TV, fridge, lamp, loveseat and other numerous fixtures and appliances. The theft occurred the evening of Saturday, October 10 between the hours of 10 p.m. and midnight.

A white van was seen in the area, possibly related to this incident. The van in question had "Oliver, B.C." written on the side of the van. Two males and a female in their late teens to early twenties were occupants of the suspect vehicle.

Anyone with information concerning this occurrence are asked to contact the Princeton RCMP (295-6911) or Crimestoppers.

OBITUARIES

ROBERT ALLEN SHORE (BOB)

Of Keremeos, passed away October 11, 1998 at the age of 62 after fighting a courageous ten month battle with cancer. Bob spent his last day at home with family at his side. Bob is sadly missed by his wife Marie, sons Gordon (Beverly), Douglas (Judy), Gregory (Gail), Donald (Connie) and daughter Darlene (Cooper), 11 grandchildren, mother and stepfather - Dorothy and Wes Boyd, sister Joyce (Norman), brothers William (Sharlene), Kenneth (Jane), and many nieces and nephews. Bob was predeceased by his father William. Bob spent his working career in the forest industry, before retiring to Missizula Lake. Bob was an avid golfer, hunter and fisherman and a member of the Princeton Golf and Country Club. Special thanks to Dr. Jeans and Mr. and Mrs. Schultz and the Similkameen Hospice Society for their special care. Donations - if desired to the Similkameen Hospice Society or the Canadian Cancer Society. Marie Shore and Family.

LINDA BOUVETTE January 19, 1909 to October 10, 1998

To a dear Wife & Mother who gave herself asking nothing in return. She shared her love with those who knew not the meaning of Love, Gently guided those who were aimless and in need of direction Spoke softly in the midst of turmoil when reassurance was needed. Your suffering is past May you rest in peace. The Family left to mourn, Bob, Allan, Michael, Aida, John Louie & Daniel We would also like to thank all those at the Hospital and Community Services, Lynn Smith and Dr. Adams who saw to her care in these trying times. All the ladies who cared for her while she was at home. The homemakers were great. R.W.B.

IN MEMORIAM

Ian Robinson
 May 14, 1973 to October 22, 1997
 One year has passed since that sad day. When one we loved was called away. God took him home - it was his will: within our hearts he liveth still. Love Always, Mom & Greg Dad, Brother Rod & Sister Sher.

APPRECIATION

Thank you to the Patry family (A & P Ranch) for inviting us to their Thanksgiving Dinner, the food & hospitality was fabulous. From the Lazy K Ranch Thelma, Ruth & Norm.

Dateline Tulameen: Only in Canada!

by Joe Schwarz, local philosopher and humorist

The Apec protest hearings, the drug trade, immigration, refugees (illegal and otherwise) and unemployment are the present headlines. In May, 1971, we took the night train from Munich through Communist East Germany to West Berlin. No one spoke on that train. In the early hours of the morning, before exiting East Germany, the train stopped at an embankment guarded by communist soldiers with weapons and machine guns. The coach doors and windows were secured, all the passengers and their passports were checked and bags searched.

Peering out the window, we saw one covered officer with a German Shepherd dog sniffing out the undercarriage of the entire train. When officials were satisfied, the train was allowed to proceed. This was peacetime.

The entire country facing west had a high, barbed wire fence surrounding it, with armed guard towers. In West Berlin, we saw the Wall, about 3 or 4 Volkswagen Beetles high, which divided the city. Beyond were mine fields, tank traps and armed towers. On the west side, here and there were photographs of those shot trying to exit East Germany.

Compare this to the Apec protest at UBC, the pushing over of a demarcation fence and the response of the Mounties with pepper spray. We do not live in a perfect world. Supposing, in the confusion, there was among the students a deranged assassin or anarchist, and one or more of the students, officers, or others was killed or crippled. What then? Even a touching funeral eulogy would be too late. UBC is a place of learning perhaps the students may learn that actions often have consequences.

The idea that our government wants to pay their legal fees doesn't seem to support the idea of respect for authority. Being broke and poor would mean the same old procedure, close a hospital bed, cancel a heart operation, increase the nurse's workload and blame the doctors.

The whole Apec episode continues the erosion of respect for our underpaid Mounties, who are continually frustrated by our docile justice and immigration system and are subject to lawsuits. Every criminal and drug gang and trader in the world is aware that Canada, especially B.C., is the best place to ply their trade in crime.

Even the most experienced idiot knows the devil himself has his headquarters in Vancouver. If you don't believe me, look at the crowd in front of the old library at

Red Light cameras roll

B.C. has begun testing for cameras that nab vehicles running red lights at high-risk intersections.

Vancouver, Richmond and Surrey have agreed to provide sites for equipment performance testing.

One in five accidents in B.C. occurs at intersections with traffic lights, and those involving red-light runners are often the most serious. The cameras will encourage drivers to obey red-light laws.

The intersection safety camera program will eventually rotate up to 30 cameras among as many as 120 locations where crash and population data show the greatest safety benefits. Local police will decide which intersections should have camera equipment.

the corner of Main and Hastings. I don't think you would like to get off the bus there even in daylight. Personally, I would stop the entrance of immigrants and refugees until we got our own house in order, but that will never happen.

What happened to the Okanagan Lake sport fishery

Two decades ago, sport fishing in Okanagan Lake was "world quality" for large rainbow trout and kokanee. In fact record kokanee in the eight pound class were caught. Rainbow, which fed primarily on juvenile kokanee grew to 20 pounds. Since then the sport fish picture has deteriorated, much to the despair of both the Fisheries Branch, Ministry of Environment, and the anglers represented to a large extent by the B.C. Wildlife Federation clubs of the Okanagan valley.

In spite of years of habitat rehabilitation in tributary streams by fish and game clubs and other public groups and the fact that kokanee fishing has been closed for the last three years, kokanee spawning populations continue to plummet, reaching a new low of 63,000 in the fall of 1997. Twenty years ago annual kokanee spawning populations in Okanagan Lake were usually in excess of one million.

Many years of investigations indicate that the kokanee problem in Okanagan Lake centers around a small planktonic crustacean called the opossum shrimp (Mysis relicta). Mysis were foreign to B.C. and were introduced into a number of our large lakes, including Kootenay and Okanagan Lakes, in southern B.C. in the 1960s. The expectation was that they would form an increased food base for sport fish. In fact, Mysis introductions have either failed or proven a liability. It turns out that Mysis eat the same zooplankton organisms as do juvenile kokanee, but are able to out-compete kokanee. Further, Mysis rise at night from deep water to feed while the young kokanee feed only during daylight. Kokanee could utilize the opossum shrimp as food, but the two species do not occupy the same depths during daylight when the kokanee are able to feed. The overall result has been a drastic decline in the survival rate of young kokanee leading to the rapid and continuous diminishing kokanee population in Okanagan Lake that we have seen in recent years.

at present, there is a glimmer of hope on the horizon. It seems the opossum shrimp is of considerable value to some people. They are in significant demand as aquarium fish food and a number of people are interested in obtain-

Premier urges First Nations to continue negotiations

Tripartite treaty negotiations between First Nations, British Columbia and the federal government are the most efficient and just means to resolve aboriginal land claims in the province, Premier Glen Clark told the First Nations Summit in Vancouver on October 8.

"The progress we have made in settling land claims, exemplified by the Nisga'a treaty, show that negotiating - not litigating - is the way to go," Clark said. "Resolving these issues in court, as opponents of the Nisga'a treaty seem to be recommending, would be divisive, protracted and expensive. I reject that course, and I urge all members of the summit to do likewise."

The Premier went on to say, "There are some who would like us to abandon land claims negotiations, but it would be wrong to leave the status of so much of this province's future in the hands of the Supreme Court, which itself has said, quite clearly, that governments have an obligation to negotiate in good faith. We intend to live up to that obligation by working with you toward our common goals of resolving outstanding land claims and making aboriginal communities stronger and more dynamic."

ing permits to commercially capture Mysis in trawl nets. Such netting would be done at night when the opossum shrimp populations approach the lake surface. Funding is being proposed through the government's Fisheries Renewal B.C. program to "ground truth" the feasibility of such harvesting.

Research indicates that as little as a 5% reduction in Mysis populations could result in a significant increase in survival of juvenile kokanee. It may be that improved sport fishing in Okanagan Lake is not too far around the corner. More and better trees are growing in BC

Last year, Forest Renewal BC continued the spadework to speed the growth of more and higher quality timber in the future. We funded projects resulting in:

- 23,026 hectares planted to restock forests
- 17,521 hectares pruned to improve wood quality
- 54,439 hectares thinned to enhance growth and yield.

These activities are part of Forest Renewal BC's $596 million investment in communities throughout BC last year - an investment which directly created 7,375 jobs for BC workers.

Eighty per cent of our investments went to resource communities outside the Lower Mainland - most delivered by private sector companies in communities like yours.

A & W Bears

blast into new season

The South Okanagan Senior Atom Rep A & W Bears hockey team rolled over the visiting Penticton team, beating them 6 - 4 to finish their exhibition season with a record of 3-1-0. they then exploded to start their regular season play with an overwhelming 9-2 win over Kelowna #3 team. Heath Conwright and Brad Mason displayed great goaltending.

The General Coach PeeWee team started their season with a well-deserved tie. Keremeos was ahead 2-0 by the third period, but General Coach rallied back with determination and scored three goals to lead the game. Tyler Gludovatz scored two and Danny Holmes the other. Outstanding goaltending by Brad Pavao kept us in the game. Unfortunately, Keremeos scored in the last minute to tie the game.

Last Wednesday morning the K- Cafe sign was changed to Carrie's Cafe. The filming of Shegalla in Downtown Keremeos was beginning and bystanders watched as several takes were done of Lynn Redgrave getting in and out of an old battered green pick-up truck. Hart says RCMP need money

Less than one month after the federal government announced that it is stepping up its national attack against organized crime, Canada's Solicitor General, Andy Scott, has instead stepped up his attack on the budget for the RCMP in B.C. The results of this attack, which was done the first week of October without any advance notice, are the grounding of RCMP helicopters and dock boats, both of which are used to fight the war on drugs coming into Canada, where cocaine use among street youth in Vancouver is an astonishing 85 per cent.

Another restriction placed on the RCMP is the banning of all non-emergency overtime by force members in the province, including plainclothes investigators who track high-level drug traffickers, white-collar crooks and organized crime figures.

Andy Scott says he is confident the RCMP in B.C. can still do its job. For the most part, the contract policing to municipalities will not be affected. Nor will you see a decrease in the number of radar traps or photo-radar cracking down on those vicious, pre-meditated criminals, such as speeders. As for the federal government's commitment to fight organized crime? Well, it will continue, as long as they can convince crooks to work a 37 and a half hour week.

Last month, when federal government presented its chilling report on the increase of organized crime, the Solicitor General stated that an "unprecedented" strategic partnership is needed between Ottawa, the provinces, police and customs officials. One must admit that taking police off the streets, instead of the criminals, is unprecedented.

The total 1998 operating budget for the RCMP is just under $1.8 billion, while the total cost for the Liberal's gun registration program, which has been even further delayed, is now estimated at $1.5 billion. Why is this government continuing to sacrifice the real work of the RCMP in order to push through a faulty piece of legislation that will do nothing but punish the millions of legitimate Canadian gun owners? The federal Liberal's commitment to safer streets has always been in question, but this new policy of taking police off the streets instead of the criminals makes it crystal clear.

The Grits are soft on crime, and it is only going to get worse as the RCMP will soon take on their new administrative role enforcing the registration of the hunting rifles of law-abiding citizens. Remember that the next time you hear of the impact that organized crime is having on us Canadians, which, according to the government's own Impact Study, is $5 billion annually.

Man faces tough conditions in sentence

A 36 year old Princeton man faces tough conditions in an 18 month probation following his guilty plea to assault. Monty Maxwell McIntyre appeared in Provincial Court in Princeton on October 15 on two charges: assault and mischief. The mischief charge drew him a $300 fine plus $30 victim surcharge. The assault of Diane Kristen on May 9, 1998, brought a more serious sentence.

McIntyre's problems were outlined as abuse of alcohol and cocaine, and occasional marijuana use. He had arrived drunk and violent at Kristen's residence, and had assaulted her in front of her children. Crown Counsel Debra Pope emphasized the point that adults make choices about the people with whom they associate, but the children had no choice.

McIntyre had a prior record for assault.

In sentencing McIntyre, Judge G. Sinclair placed conditions on the probation which are intended to assist McIntyre's rehabilitation. McIntyre is to undergo counselling for alcohol and substance abuse, anger management and spousal abuse, and is to use no alcohol or non-prescription drugs. He is to submit to a breath test on demand by a peace officer.

RE/MAX CLOSING DOORS FOR PENTICTON.

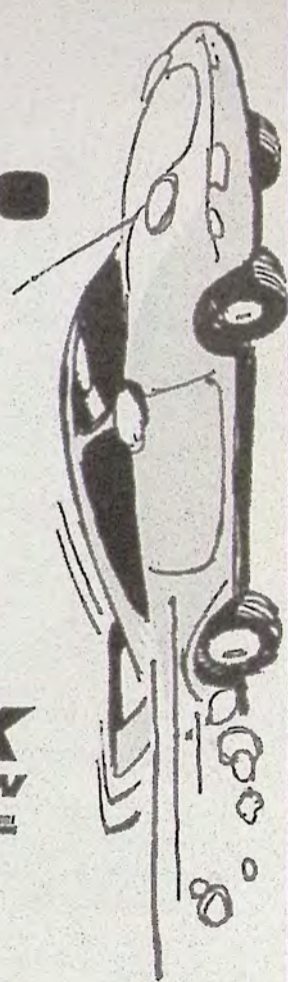

On October 9th the RE/MAX office was closed for the day while the entire RE/MAX Team attended an educational seminar in Penticton. The seminar, sponsored by the British Columbia Real Estate Association, is designed to ensure that real estate practitioners have the information and skills necessary to provide the highest level of service to their clients, customers and colleagues. As the business of real estate becomes more complex due in part to legislative changes, technological advances and greater consumer awareness, it is absolutely essential that all real estate professionals attend educational seminars on a continuing basis. Congratulations to Penny Lott, Linda Kirkham and Janice Barclay at RE/MAX country for continuing to lead the way in real estate.

This week, the RE/MAX office will be closed again while the Team attends several new seminars in Banff Alberta. They look forward to sharing their new ideas and answering your questions on all the changes in the real estate industry.

Hallowe'en came early for the members of Vermilion Rebekah Lodge as a fun event at their regular meeting.

Rebekahs enjoy Hallowe'en fun

by Dorothy Stenvold

Vermilion Rebekah Sisters celebrated Hallowe'en a bit early. On October 15, they dressed in their choice of costume. Each was different. Judges chose three to receive prizes. "Witch" Sister Haayer, "Prisoner" Sister Raine, and "Mandarin" Sister Marsel each received a chocolate bar award.

A Past-President of the Rebekah Assembly, Sister Isabel Budd, passed away after a lengthy illness. We honoured her memory with a short memorial service.

Students reclaim spirit in special camp program

John Chenoweth runs a program for School District #58 called "Reclaiming the Spirit", a program to encourage students to stay in school. The program originates with the directed study centre in Merritt. It is geared to draw students off the street and back into the classroom.

Self-awareness is generated through "adventure counselling" and going into the outdoors for challenging activities. Many of the students are aboriginal origin and many are considered "at risk". A therapist works with the 64 students, and The Raven Program is used in a combination that ensures students stay in school.

Trustees gave permission for a "Reclaiming the Spirit" camp, a five-day camp-out at a cost of $7,800 from First Nations targeted funds. Two teachers and two 'camp facilitators' accompanied the students.

Our charter was draped and we sang a hymn. All of us will miss Isabel's dynamic, helpful personality.

Princeton urged to support Christmas seal campaign '98

Organizers of this year's Christmas Seal campaign are looking to Princeton, Coalmont and Hedley residents to help the 72nd annual edition of the British Columbia Lung Association fundraiser recover from its 1997 shortfall.

"The Princeton area goal is $2,700, just one per cent more than the total that we raised last year," said Marilyn Lawrence, local Christmas Seal chairperson.

The same percentage increase applies to the province-wide goal of $1,515,000. The 1997 campaign raised $1,500,000, a three per cent decline from the previous year.

"A relatively small commitment from everyone in our community will translate into badly-needed support of vital health programs for the one in five British Columbians with breathing problems," said Lawrence. "We know these are hard times for many of our neighbours, but we hope that the people who can afford it will be especially generous in 1998. This campaign is our largest single fundraiser, an annual event generating revenue to keep important programs going all year round."

Prior B.C. Lung Association Princeton-area supporters should receive their colourful Christmas Seals by the end of October, with a broader mailing to most B.C. households scheduled early next month. The campaign runs through January.

The province's only voluntary agency focussing on respiratory health and environmental issues, the Lung Association receives no direct government funding. It relies for support on Christmas Seals and other activities to fund advanced medical research in B.C., public and professional health education and air quality programs.
