

Hunting, trapping changes regulations

VICTORIA - The province's 1999-2000 hunting and trapping regulations, published in B.C. Hunting and Trapping Regulations Synopsis, are now available at the ministry's regional offices, government agent offices, sporting goods stores and other hunting licence outlets.

Several provincewide regulations change this year. Most regional hunting regulations remain unchanged, with some minor revisions to harmonize season dates among regions or to match days of the week.

Hunting regulations are changed each year to address conservation requirements and improve hunting opportunities in other areas. In setting the 1999-2000 hunting and trapping regulations, changes were discussed with hunters, guide outfitters First Nations and other affected interest groups.

PROVINCEWIDE CHANGES INCLUDE:

- Bobcat, lynx and wolverine are changed from small game to big game, and a separate species licence is required for each.
- Tanners are added to fur traders, taxidermists, meatcutters and cold storage plant operators required to keep records of wildlife received.
- There are changes to the trafficking regulations related to buying and selling dead wildlife and parts of wildlife. Some prohibitions are now in place.
- Evidence of species is required to be left on carcasses of elk, moose, mule (black-tailed) deer, whitetailed deer or fallow deer.
- A person who kills a grizzly bear, cougar or fur-bearing animal other than a black bear must take the hide home or to a meat cutter, a taxidermist, tanner, fur trader or the owner or operator of a cold storage plant.
- The holder of a hunter number card must notify a government agent or ministry employee authorized to issue hunter number cards of an address change or a legal name change within 30 days (and provide a document evidencing the name change.) A person must surrender their hunter number card to the director within 30 days of ceasing to be a resident. The hunter number is suspended while a person is not a resident.
- No change will be made to require hunters in the field to wear highly visible clothing; however, the wildlife branch will

Ministry plans Manning Park grizzly project

VICTORIA - Joan Sawicki, Minister of Environment, Lands and Parks, announced a plan to "restore threatened grizzly bear populations" in the North Cascades in the Manning Park area.

The "recovery" plan to date is the North Cascades project, with a draft plan expected to be complete by the end of 1999.

The plans will address habitat protection, access management, reduction of bear-human conflicts, protected areas management, improving public information and education, and research and monitoring of populations. The plans will also provide guidance for decisions made through existing land use planning processes.

"Development of recovery plans for threatened populations of grizzly bears is important to the management of this species in British Columbia," said Alton Harestad, co-chair of the Grizzly Bear Scientific Advisory Committee. "These efforts, especially if combined with other initiatives as outlined in the Grizzly Bear Conservation Strategy, are a welcome step towards securing the future of grizzlies in our province."

"These two pilot projects will provide us with invaluable information that will help to determine the formal designation of Grizzly Bear Management Areas," the minister said.

Measures to promote the survival of grizzly bear populations include:

- tighter hunting regulations, including limited entry hunting and guide outfitter quotas
- a surcharge on bear-hunting licence fees which goes to the Habitat Conservation Trust Fund for grizzly bear management projects
- protection for grizzly bear habitat under the Identified Wildlife Management Strategy, and important component of the Forest Practices Code.
- increased grizzly bear population research
- the "Be Bear Aware" program and bear-proofing of landfills to reduce bear-human conflicts and the number of bears destroyed over the long term
- support for the "Grizz Ed" program funded by the Vancouver Grizzlies basketball team.

Long weekend fun

Valley celebrates

SIMILKAMEEN - From Tulameen to Cawston, the long weekend was a time of celebrations of many kinds. Blessed with great weather (sunshine and heat), Tulameen Family Days welcomed hundreds of people in a population explosion that included the customary large groups of campers on the sandbar near the bridge over Otter Creek. Ball games, face painting and fish pond for children, vendors on the street, a sand castle contest, a canoe race - this is Tulameen Family Days. Organizers were impressed by the "super" police presence that made this year's celebration so much more community and people oriented.

In Keremeos and Cawston, old-time threshing bees were featured attractions (see more next week) as Rollie Bilodeau showed how grain was threshed in the old days, celebrating Canadian heritage of farming ingenuity.

In Hedley, John and Earline Cammidge welcomed friends and neighbours to a celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. (see story page 4)

In Princeton, two families celebrated being family.

The descendants of John Fall Allison, over 300 strong, gathered at Princeton fair grounds to review history, their own and the history of the Similkameen Valley. (see story page 2)

The Imler family, 91 strong, gathered at Castle Resort to celebrate a family who moved to Canada over 100 years ago to homestead in Alberta. (see story page 5)

Throughout the valley, rivers attracted swimmers, rafters, canoists and kayakers. The lakes attracted boaters, swimmers, campers and those people whose favourite days of summer include catching trout. Campgrounds were full. Bicyclists were on every backroad. These people were simply celebrating the kind of summer days all of us recall as "real summer".

Traffic on the highways was heavy, most of it related to vacationers from the city spending a long weekend in the Interior.

Thief enters rural garage

PRINCETON - On July 30, Princeton RCMP responded to a break and enter complaint at Bromley Crescent on Old Hedley Road.

The occupants of the home were away between July 28 and July 30, and came home to find their garage had been broken into. Several power tools were stolen from the garage. The items include a Mikita belt sander, a Mikita reciprocating saw, ad Delta chop saw and a Magnum air nailer.

If anyone has any information related to this crime, please contact Princeton RCMP at 295-6911 or CrimeStoppers at 1-800-337-8477.

History comes alive at Allison family reunion

PRINCETON - The descendants of John Fall Allison gathered at the fair grounds this past weekend to bring together their family from far and wide. Some came from England, others from South Africa, another from Mexico and the rest from British Columbia, Alberta and Yukon Territory. A total of 332 people were registered. Allison Blackmore, granddaughter of Rose Allison, won a prize for travelling furthest, from South Africa, while Michael and Jenny Bruce-Mitford, grandchilddren of Beatrice Allison, received prizes for their journey from England. Kathy Modesette won a prize for her journey from Anchorage, Alaska.

Saturday saw people meeting people, some as strangers and others as long-lost relatives remembered well.

The genealogy charts, prepared by Susan Allison, drew everyone to find their name and place on the chart. It was huge, as six generations of Allisons were shown on the chart.

Seminars were held to tell people about the role John Fall Allison played in the history of the Similkameen Valley, as well as stories and recollections about the way things were "way back when."

Family photo albums were on display in one fair building, and many people gathered to look at the photos and learn about, or recall, family members and family occasions.

There were pancake breakfasts, performers, prizes, cowboy events, a ball game (with Allison rules!) and a golf tournament offered for the entertainment of the crowd attending.

The elder of the family, Gladys Archibald, won a prize for being the oldest in attendance at age 92 years young. She had a lovely time. Gladys is the daughter of Alfred Allison.

There are a number of second generation Allisons as well as Gladys. Alberta Parsons (daughter of Louisa), Gertie Allison (daughter of Wilfred), Glen Allison (son of George), Patrick Holmes (son of Elfreda), Betty Ashe (daughter of Harry), Alan McDiarmid (son of Angie), Evadne McKenzie (daughter of Alice) and Edward "Slim" Allison (son of Wichie).

continue to encourage hunters to adopt this practice voluntarily.

- Tooth For The Truth, the voluntary tooth return program, is temporarily suspended for the 1999-2000 season. Tooth returns are still required for compulsory reporting and inspection where specified for both limited entry and general open season hunts.

- Guide outfitters must increase the minimum amount of basic insurance they carry to $1 million from the current $500,000.

Wildlife Act Amendments:

New legislation makes it an offence to intentionally feed bears, cougar, coyotes or wolves. Amendments also empower conservation officers, when public safety is at risk, to issue a dangerous wildlife protection order requiring the removal or containment of compost, food waste or domestic garbage that may attract wildlife.

These provisions are designed to lower the number of interactions between bears and humans and decrease the growing number of bears that learn to rely on people for food and must be killed by conservation officers because they pose too great a risk to humans.

many local people went to the family reunion to renew friendships with Allison family members who have moved away.

John Fall Allison was the first permanent European settler in the Similkameen Valley. He was born in Leeds, England, on January 3, 1825. He came to North America in 1837, living in New York and Illinois. He left there for the California gold fields in 1849 at age 24, and came to the Similkameen in 1858, at age 32 years. From 1860 to 1868, he lived with Nora Baptiste, and worked on trail building and maintenance. In 1868, he married Susan and began ranching in Princeton. In total, he had 16 children. He died October 28, 1897, at 72 years old.

The patriarch of the family has been honoured by having his name attached to Allison Pass, Allison Creek, Allison Flats, Allison Lake and John Allison Elementary School.

Susan Louisa (Moir) Allison became well-known when she wrote her memoirs, which were eventually edited by historian Margaret Ormsby, who wrote a book about Susan Allison's life.

The book is still used as a reference book for people studying the history of the Similkameen Valley. Susan Allison learned the language of the native people of the valley, and came to value their friendship. She wrote verses about some of the native people and events from the earliest days when she was the only non-native woman in the valley.

There were many great comments about the reunion, although Michael Bruce-Mitford was a little disappointed there were not banners raised in Princeton to welcome the descendants of its founding settler. Everyone appeared to be enthusiastic about the family get-together.

For some of the people in attendance, the highlight was the dinner at the arena on Saturday night, when everyone was gathered at the same place. Bill Barlee was a guest historian, along with Jean Barman, a professor from the University of British Columbia.

For the committee who put it all together, there was the feeling of satisfaction that all had gone well and the response to their project had been so well-received. No doubt, Lori Thomas, Pat Parsons, Juanita Meier and Bernie Allison heaved a sigh of relief when all of the registrations were counted. It was an outstanding event for the Similkameen Valley.

Kids are bored during summer vacation, right? They start driving their parents crazy, right?

Maybe not in Princeton. Summer Recreation programmer Jesse McLean is surprised at the low number of youngsters attending free summer day camp in local parks.

The day camps can accommodate up to 20 children from kindergarten age to Grade 5. Two supervisors are on hand to keep an eye on the children and keep them busy with games, crafts and exercise. There have been fewer than 20 on each day this summer, and sometimes only a few children are present.

The camps alternate between Lions Park on Third Bench or Memorial Park. The location of the day camp is advertised regularly or parents may call 295-7222.

Parents need only sign their children into the camp and sign them out, and provide a drink and a snack, but apparently, the children are too busy to attend and are not driving parents crazy.

Money to support these camps was raised at Vermilion Forks Elementary School by students for their own age group, yet participation levels are low. Funds raised by the school were matched by a federal government grant to cover the cost of the supervisors.

The program has been extended one week. Watch the News Leader for further information.

LOYD & HARLENE HOOPER 295-7164Pay attention to your fibre foods

Many foods, such as breakfast cereals, are labeled to be high in fibre. Over the past years, research has shown that increasing your daily intake of fibre is very important to your health. We are constantly encouraged to increase our fibre intake, but do we really understand why?

Fibre is important in the diet because our body cannot digest it. Due to its indigestibility, the fibre passes through the intestine and colon softening the stool through absorbing extra water and preventing constipation. The increased bulk of the stool and shorter transit time flushes many cancer-causing toxins found in the digestive tract; and for those with high cholesterol, dietary fibre also has a cholesterol lowering effect.

Debris causes hazard

by Laurel Arnold

KEREMEOS - Keremeos RCMP are still investigating a hazardous spill that occurred at approximately 3:00 a.m. on Friday, July 29, on the by-pass near Bear's Fruit Stand. When police arrived at the scene, they noted that a number of objects were strewn on the highway and there was a diesel spill on the eastbound lane. A large truck struck one of the pieces of debris and damaged its fuel tank, causing the spill. There were no injuries, and no charges have been laid.

Fall Fair free entry

All children under age 13 will be admitted free to the Fall Fair. Parents will be able to obtain weekend passes for the family which include children 13 and older.

The Junior Fair will be held again this year. Extra copies of the Fall Fair rules and prizes are available at the News Leader office. Please assist younger children with preparing their exhibits. It is time to start thinking about their art work, flowers, crafts and baking for entry in the fair.

Vandals hit school

For the second time in a week, Hedley Elementary School was damaged. Late on the night of July 25 or early on July 26, somebody threw an object at the second story of the building and smashed a window.

Anyone who has information about this incident is asked to call Princeton RCMP at 295-6911 or CrimeStoppers at 1-800-337-8477.

Generally, most people's diets do not contain sufficient levels of fibre. The average daily intake of dietary fibre in the United States is only 11-13 grams while the suggested amounts of fibre are 20-30 grams daily.

Dietary fibre is found in plant products such as fruit, vegetables, nuts, and grains.

Canadian food packaging regulations now make it easier to determine amounts of dietary fibre in foods as the number of grams per serving are often listed. Start looking at these lists and become more fibre conscious trying to increase your daily intake levels closer to the 20-30 gram level.

John and Earline Cammidge celebrated fifty years of marriage, welcoming neighbours, friends and relatives to a lawn party at their home in Hedley.

Fifty years together!

Earline recalls she was just 13 years old the first time she met John Cammidge.

"I'm going to marry him," she told her mother.

Earline Downer was 20, and John Cammidge was 24, when they were married in Toronto in 1949.

John worked for Canada Post, and was transferred to Vancouver in 1960, then to Cawston. They moved to Hedley in 1963, bought a house there for $30 a month, and moved in with their seven children. They have been in Hedley ever since, and 36 years later, they were pleased to welcome all of their dear friends from Hedley to a fiftieth wedding anniversary.

The party was held Sunday afternoon, on the Cammidge lawn in the shade of a large maple tree the Cammidges planted in their early years in Hedley.

Friends and neighbours shared recollections of the days when the Cammidges worked at Slim Koston's truck stop and restaurant in Hedley.

Earline has been the outgoing member of the couple, busy in community activities, participating in all of Hedley's events. Many recalled the May Day celebrations of the past, and Earline remembered doing the May Pole dance when a young fellow refused to do his part.

John is a less social type, more inclined to stay quietly at home. He and Earline liked to have their children find activity around home, too, and put up a pool table in the living room when the children were at home.

Only two of their seven children were able to attend the anniversary party. Kathy and Sherry, both of Prince George, catered the event.

Son Gary is working at a diamond mine in Northwest Territories, Gail is in Bowmanville, Ontario, Ivan lives in Calgary, daughter Lee is in Prince George, and Melody is in Winfield.

Earline and John were pleased to welcome sister Jean Alexander, of Sarnia, Ontario, and Earline's niece, Carol Downer, from Victoria.

How did this couple last through 50 years of marriage?

"We never fought," Earline says, "If I got mad, John just went for a walk and I cooled off by the time he came back."

Following a lunch, guests were invited to have a piece of anniversary cake, while John and Earline opened gifts and cards from their many friends.

Imlers unite at Castle

PRINCETON - The Imler family has a reunion every second year, a tradition they started 14 years ago. This year, they were invited to come to Princeton by Lucille Cleggett. Lucille and husband Gary run The Fallow Deer Farm, and Lucille is the only Imler descendant who lives in Princeton.

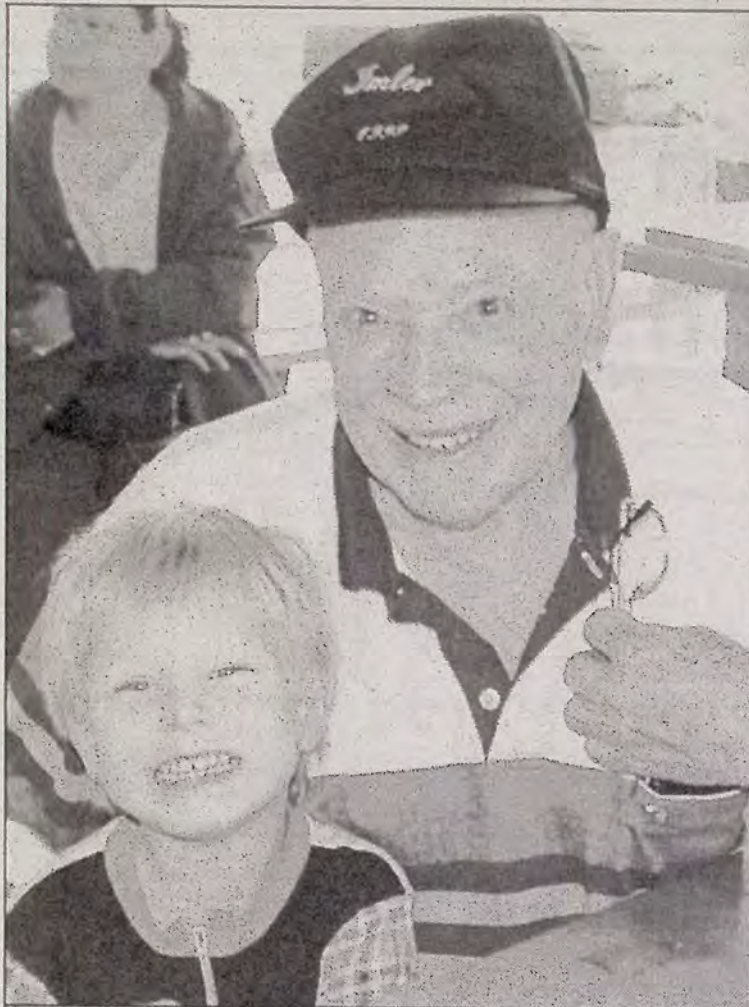

Castle Park was chosen as a great location because of the facilities open to large groups who want to camp or rent a cabin.

Over 90 people attended the reunion, coming from all over B.C. and Alberta. They are descendants of George and Rachel Imler, who immigrated to Okotoks, Alberta, in 1895. They homesteaded, and George worked as a carpenter. George and Rachel had come from Pennsylvania. George was a descendant of German immigrant Erick Mens Imler, who arrived in Pennsylvania in 1732, and founded Imlerville. This family has roots 267 years old in North America.

The new Canadian branch of Imlers raised 14 children. The last of those original 14 died just last year. A few of the Imlers still live near Okotoks.

The family decided to begin holding reunions every second year as a way of bringing people together so family members do not lose contact. One family member, Robert, spent his time with his laptop computer updating the genealogy chart. The family is still expanding.

The oldest and the youngest at the Imlerfamily reunion: three year old Cameron Scott Ellis and his grandfather, George Ellis, with an 80-year age difference.

A hot cribbage tournament kept adults busy while children played on playground equipment and in the creek at the Imler family reunion at Castle Park Resort. There were prizes all around.

POINTS OF VIEW

OUR VIEW

Families shape history

We offer our congratulations to the Allison family on bringing together the many branches of the family from our own area and from distant lands. The Allisons and Allison descendants have shaped the history of the Similkameen Valley. They have seen the Allison name attached to a creek, a lake, a mountain pass, a section of Princeton and a school. Some members have been honoured provincially and nationally for their service to their community.

Susan Allison, in recording her memories, provided the groundwork of historical reference for the early settler days of the Similkameen Valley, not only for the early European settlers, but for the Similkameen native people. Her memoirs are used as reference material for local history and for British Columbia's history.

The Allisons and their descendants have been an enterprising group, working in logging and ranching, operating businesses, and helping with major community projects. They helped establish the Fall Fair, 4-H, Racing Days, and have participated in rodeos for generations.

This family reunion is a reminder to us that we make history through the lives we live. There is a family history in the works, and those families who take the time to record the family history will begin to see that their own families shaped the history of the valley as much as any other family. Each family tends to lose sight of the importance of their contribution to history. History is the story of people, and the stories of families record the history of a place and a community. The places where people work, the businesses they run, the schools they attend, and their involvement in community activities make up the fabric of history.

We tend to forget that there is more to history than the "big" names of so-called "important" people. Some people make more of an impact, or make a greater contribution, than others, and their individual names mark historic milestones, but without the majority, they would go unnoticed.

Drugs are new slave trade

Dear Editor;

The front page of the July 13 issue headlined "Deadly new drug hits the valley" sat me back into my chair.

My compliments to Paul Huycke upon preparing the write-up with knowledge, courage and commitment. I also applaud the Editor for considering it worthy of front page.

What a chilling article! Slavers in early American history enslaved others by force, transporting them far from friends and family, causing each victim to be subject to suppression and control.

Black tar heroin, by comparison, lures its "slaves" by the promise of quick pleasure. Quickly, side effects squeeze joy and life out of its users. The horror is that the numbers grow.

The slavers of old desired their victims to be alive and healthy so that they could work hard, so these slaves retained hope.

Victims of the modern slavers (drugs) soon lose all hope.

Legislation and policing aided the American slaves but the best policing and legislation are helpless when we take that first use by choice.

Addictive drug trade is such a persistent problem because each person must be strong by choosing "No! I am fine just as I am."

Sincerely,
Nelson Skomorowski

Rude teens drive away tourists

Dear Editor;

Yesterday, as I walked on the sidewalk between the bridge and the downtown area, I was forced into the street by two teenagers on bicycles.

As I watched them pedal south, scattering pedestrians and doing "wheelies" as they went, I noticed that the sidewalk was full of tourists. Well, at least they were on the sidewalk until they were scattered by these young hooligans.

As I got to an intersection, I looked down, and there, in bright yellow letters, I read, "No bicycles allowed."

This experience has left me wondering if we have by-law enforcement in Princeton?

If we do, where is it? Do the city fathers know? Can teenagers read? Do they have parents? If they do have parents, what have those parents taught them?

I believe I can reach one conclusion on my own and that is - the tourists who were scattered like leaves in the wind will not come back and I daresay they will also spread the word.

H.P. Toews

Intersection needs light

Dear Editor;

I would like to give thanks to the three people who directed traffic at the Mohawk and Highway #3 road accident. I came up the hill and couldn't believe my eyes - a two-lane highway, no signal flares, no road hazard signs, nothing to slow the traffic and no vests on the volunteers trying to divert traffic.

Do the RCMP not carry this necessary equipment with them to alert a 10 on the scale for an accident?

I would like to see a flashing yellow light here for traffic speeding up on this hill, as we do have a crossroads here.

I am a newcomer to your town and no offense intended here, just missed the road precautions being in place.

Yours truly,
A. MacDonald,
Princeton.

(Editor's note: lights and reduced speed have been requested repeatedly in the past without effect by local residents. It is interesting to hear the same kind of concerns from a newcomer to our community.)

Dateline Tulameen

by Joe Schwarz, local philosopher and humorist

Like a lot of residents in areas like Tulameen, our original seasonal residence was a little old cabin. An outhouse was then in fashion. Ours was a masterpiece of disastrous construction, but with gold spray paint, appropriate wall hangings and poetic exhibits, King Solomon's throne room, in all its glory, couldn't match it. Its relaxing solitude provided moments of relief, meditation and good reading with a Sears catalogue.

The cabin was eventually replaced with a modern home and the outhouse was made obsolete and illegal, replaced by a septic field. The outhouse ended up as fuel for a summer evening's campfire.

It is mandatory that one septic sanitary field per residence be 100 feet from the residence well. A mix-up of septic water with well drinking water could create serious health problems like Hepatitis B where one turns a yellow pallor and it affects the liver and could be fatal. We know of one such case years ago in Tulameen.

We have a drilled, sealed well approximately 25 feet deep. The other day we thought we would test its water. We took a sample in a sterilized plastic juice bottle to CARA in Kelowna, a firm used by the Regional Health office in Penticton (770-3530).

The next day we received these astounding results: "The total coliform approximately 1010 colonies/100 ml." The maximum acceptable concentration is 0 colonies/100 ml of water.

They recommended we boil our drinking water and asked if we lived near a swamp!

We live within one block of the Tulameen Hall in an area considered the high point of the townsite. The surface is approximately two feet of soil seated on an infinite depth of gravel, sand and rock. Why we have the well water problem is not clear. We do have a high water table and strange environmental conditions, so perhaps it was a combination of circumstances.

We were told to put two cups of bleach down the well in the evening and leave it for at least 12 to 24 hours, gradually letting it work through the system. In about a week, we will take another sample of our water. The cost is $35 per sample. The government used to pay for it but have cut back, perhaps to augment their legal defence fund.

Tulameen is building up more, which results in a shrinking natural environment to service the water and sanitation requirements. Eventually, a sewer and water will have to be implemented. To prolong our present system as long as possible, we may be wise to initiate periodic well testing and pumping of septic tanks.

With the squeeze on the environment, what about our wildlife? There is the unverifiable story of the little woman who learned how to retrieve firewood from the forest and neatly stack it for the winter (this was accomplished by infinite patient training by her man). One day she noticed a good amount of her wood missing, leaving her very perplexed. Inadvertently, she looked at her well. Peering into it, she couldn't believe her eyes. Here was a beaver, displaced by the tourists setting up housekeeping with her wood in her well. Moral of the story: keep your well covered from little critters.

Heart Food

by Dave Machin

The word 'grace' as used in the Bible far more than just praying over a meal. It actually means God's willingness to use his power and ability on our behalf even though we don't deserve it. God is so good that He has and is extending his grace toward us and desires to have us avail ourselves of it. None of us actually deserve this grace and, but for the fact that God does indeed love us, we would never have access to His grace. This definition is best illustrated by what Jesus did when he fulfilled God's plan on the earth. The primary focus of His whole ministry was to draw man back into relationship with God. This had been lost because man had, through religious rulers, been subjected to so much pressure and bondage that in many cases they simply gave up. Everywhere Jesus travelled, He acted like a physician. In fact, in the four Gospel accounts of His ministry, there are forty-one distinct cases of physical and mental healings (a total of seventy-two in all, counting duplications). You might say that's not much, but remember transportation then was not as today, it was mostly on foot and in many instance it was not just one person but multitudes that were healed. He was then, and is still today, the instrument that God used to pour out His 'grace' to enhance people's lives. Heb. 13:8 declares "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever." That means God's grace that flowed through Jesus almost 2000 years ago is still available to you today. Now, I realize that Jesus is not physically here now as He was then, but He has delegated the authority and power that He used then to His church today. You might say it sounds well and good, but there are so many 'churches' around today, where do I go? Find a church that believes the Bible is true today and that the things Jesus did then, He is still doing today. You will find God's 'grace' is sufficient to help you in all areas of your life. God is good all the time.

Legion plans restoration

by Laurel Arnold

KEREMEOS - Keremeos Council has approved staff time and Village equipment and materials to assist Legion volunteers to rebuild the Cenotaph in Memorial Park. Before giving approval at its July 5 regular meeting, Council discussed taking the opportunity to perhaps put some "time capsule" material in the monument, but decided that the Cenotaph itself already filled that role.

Village staff will remove the 3 standing cenotaph walls and 1-2 feet of soil. The Legion will build a terraced wall with interlocking retaining wall bricks. Village staff will plant the cenotaph top with "slow grow no mow" grasses and the terraced area with perennial flowers and/or shrubs, using landscaping fabric and bark mulch etc..

In her report accompanying the Legion's request for Cenotaph rebuilding, Village C.A.O. Eileen Oliver-Bauer said, "We believe that any permanent renovation to structures in the park should be beautiful and an enhancement to our park. In addition, the flowers will be a lovely tribute to those who have fallen in the wars."

Volunteers study tracking

KEREMEOS - When the Keremeos Search and Rescue (SAR) has an emergency, it has no problem getting volunteers, says Bob Stanley, Search and Rescue Manager.

Many people promptly respond when needed. But this fall SAR will be holding a recruiting drive, looking for more regular members who are willing to get trained in some of the necessary SAR skills, such as learning to track people lost in the bush.

On Monday, July 26, several SAR members gathered to hone their tracking skills. Instructors Bob Stanley and Eugene Deschamps explained and demonstrated how searchers must become familiar with the particular footprint qualities of the person being tracked by making a drawing of the footprints, by measuring their length and the length between strides. They pointed out details to be noted such as tread marks and walking over on the inside or outside of the shoe.

The instructors explained that searchers work in teams of three, with some teams going ahead and to each side to look for more of the same footprints. As more prints are discovered the teams will flag them, mark them with tape. They will check all the footprints in between to make sure they belong to the same person. Signs such as a cigarette butt or a comb will also be marked. Searchers must also watch for disturbed or transferred soil, a rock that has been compressed into the soil, broken grass or plants that have been bruised or flagged--pushed in one direction. As they move along, the trackers will pick up more clues.

Bob and Eugene explained to those present that tracking takes a lot of practice, but when a person is good at it he is able to tell what the tracked individual was doing.

Tracking courses teach searchers about likely behaviors of missing persons in different categories such as the elderly, hunters, hikers and children. The instructors cited an example of a lost child who stayed hidden until she heard a woman's voice, because she had been strictly taught not to talk to strangers, especially to men.

General skills Search and Rescue members learn are compass, map work, and survival. SAR also teaches such courses as climbing and swift water rescue.

SAR trains its members to use Global Positioning Devices (GPSs). Unlike compasses, GPSs use satellite signals. Combined with a grid map, they will tell searchers how long it might have taken a person to go to a certain location and the path taken. Keremeos has one of the few Solar Powered Repeaters in B.C.. It can pick up a radio signal and send it again, allowing people with hand-held radios to talk over much greater distances than they could with radio alone.

Keremeos Search and Rescue has many dedicated local members and supporters such as Helen McGlashing who has been involved since 1989 and, according to Bob and Eugene, is very bush wise and familiar with local wilderness areas, and Rob Biro, who like Bob Stanley, is an SAR manager.

Regional District, Keremeos Council, the Legion and the Lions Club have all given financial support.

People interested in joining, can call Bob at 499-2801.

KEREMEOS - The two students manning the Keremeos and District Chamber of Commerce Info Centre in Memorial Park say they are using skills learned in school to perform their work. Jamie Curr, who has lived in Keremeos since grade 2 and who is going into grade 12, says she uses skills learned in high school computer and English classes to create brochures for the Info Centre. Her co-worker, Lana Agar, who has lived in Keremeos all her life, and who is going into grade 11, agrees, adding that the Info Centre job is helping her further develop communication skills.

Jamie and Lana perform several duties at the Info-Centre. They have prepared brochures containing maps, diagrams and illustrations on such topics as the Keremeos to Princeton Circle Tour, the Driving Tour "E" through Twin Lakes to Oliver and back, the Seven Stones of the Similkameen, fishing spots, the Similkameen Museum, and area motels.

They provide information and directions to drop-in visitors. Lana says that the warmer weather is bringing out more people. In one day alone, Wednesday July 27, the centre had 60 visitors who brought 80 people with them. The Info Centre is open from 10:00-5:00 daily throughout July and August and can be reached at 499-5225.

I have never heard of ETS. Is this new? ETS has been in the United States since the early 70's and has been utilized in Europe dating back to 1960. Even though it may be relatively new in our area, this technology has been proven all across North America to deliver high comfort at low operating costs.

I have a 1000 square foot home. What size(s) equipment do I need? There are several factors involved in determining the correct size of equipment for your home. A heatloss calculation should be performed in order to determine the appropriate model(s). The quality of the insulation package in the home, and number & size of windows and doors are all factors involved in making this determination.

PLP Safety Tips: Keep ladders, antennas, kites and poles away from the power lines. If you're caught in a lightning storm, get out of the water and stay away from trees. Go indoors and keep clear of windows. Turn off TV and other appliances.

Princeton & District Recreation Commission SUMMER RECREATION PROGRAM

GIRLS EXPLORING TRADES & TECHNOLOGY WOODWORKING COURSE

This year the Princeton Summer Recreation Program is extremely fortunate to have acquired a GETT camp grant to run three sessions of this woodworking course. In this course, the girls learn skills in carpentry, auto mechanics, drafting and more to build go-karts ... and race them! The five day long sessions are held in the summer for girls in grades 6-8. This type of camp has been very successful in introducing girls to many skills and occupations in many parts of the country! The course will be instructed by a woman who is competent in the trades field. As the course is still in the works, more details will be available in the weeks to come. Lunch, snacks and a T-shirt are provided. The camp is first come, first serve - so hurry & register today! FREE!!!

SESSION #1 - AUG 9-13; SESSION #2 - AUG 16-20; SESSION #3 - AUG 23-27
ALL COURSES - 9:00AM - 5:00PM PRINCETON AREA/COMMUNITY SKILLS CENTRE

10:00 pm CITY (29) "Caddyshack" (1980, Comedy) Chevy Chase. A caddy at an exclusive country club encounters bizarre characters

Horoscopes August 3 to 10

ARIES - Your recent sense of power and control goes down the drain this week, leaving you frustrated by events. Take care of unfinished business, establish personal values.
TAURUS - You face some difficult times this week as conflicts arise and some people try to deceive you. You will learn the truth and may be angry. Your challenge is to tell the truth when it counts.
GEMINI - This is a good week to stay close to home and care for your health. Stay away from sea and lakes, and stay sober. Travel now is not a good idea.
CANCER - Move ahead now. You have plenty of energy and it needs an outlet in work or you will feel frustrated. Make positive gains. Guard your health with sensible living.
LEO - Don't plan anything major now, just deal with events. Be prepared for anything. You have an eclipse in your sign, considered a harbinger of chaotic events. Conditions are adverse this week.
VIRGO - You need to pay attention to everything this week. Use positive energy to advance in your work. Organize for effectiveness. Worries may be the result of events beyond your control.
LIBRA - You face a major change in goals and values this week, and you may feel a sense of anger and frustration about some deception. You are out on a limb.
SCORPIO - Career, partners, home life and self-esteem are mixed in conflict. You may generate a crisis or be involved in somebody else's crisis. You feel frustrated by a turn of events.
SAGITTARIUS - Hard work, worry and deception could take a toll on you, but favourable influences prevail. Somebody tries a power trip on you, and you find it frustrating. This week, just keep truckin'.
CAPRICORN - Your challenge this week is to hold things together as others seem to be in chaos. Brace yourself for a hectic week of solving problems, mostly other people's.
AQUARIUS - This is not a good week for you. Relationships do flip-flops and unexpected events at home and work cause disruption. Take a deep breath and muddle through.
PISCES - You make some gains this week, but you may have to give up a favourite fantasy. Reality may anger you, but it has its benefits.

The caboose at the fair grounds was moved into place on rails last week for a permanent location. Princeton Exhibition Association will make some improvements to the caboose, making it a usable building as well as a historical attraction. The men who put the caboose in place managed the job as neatly as if they moved cabooses every day. Volunteers were Rollo Cecon, Stan Thompson, Glen Sellers, Skip Jones, Gord Walker and Merle Graham.

Stop nuisance phone calls

If you have ever gone to your telephone and had it go dead the minute you answered, you were probably annoyed. If it keeps happening, you become suspicious, as well as annoyed. There is a way to put a stop to these calls, as well as those calls at supper time asking for donations.

The News Leader had phone calls with nobody at the other end. Then, individual staff members had the same kind of calls at home. We became suspicious and contacted Princeton RCMP. Cst. Steve Barton tracked down the source of the calls after we gave him the number we had obtained by using 'star 69'. Cst. Barton went further: he found out for us how to put a stop to those calls and we want to share that information with our readers.

The calls were coming from one of those telemarketing companies. The phone numbers are on a computer, and the computer automatically dials the numbers. If you pick up your phone when the computer has dialed your number, and no operator is available at the telemarketing company, then the computer automatically disconnects.

You may receive a call with a real person at the other end of the line if an operator is available. Then, the person will try to sell you something or ask for a donation to some worthy cause.

These calls often come at meal times as well as during the day. For people doing shift work, these calls are especially annoying, as the calls interrupt their much-needed sleep.

To put an end to these nuisance calls, you can write to Do Not Call Service, c/o Canadian Marketing Association, Box 706, Don Mills, ON M3C 2T6.

Tell this service your name and phone number(s), your phone service company (BC Tel), and tell them you do not want telemarketing calls. Cst. Barton says it may take a few weeks for your name to be removed from the lists.

Trout Talk

Why tie your own flies?

by John Sandness, Similkameen Valley Outdoorsman

A pretty black and white feather was sticking out through the ticking on the pillow. At age eight, I couldn't resist pulling it out. Now I know it was a teal breast feather, but then it was a potential fishing fly. With some red yarn and Mom's sewing thread, I made a colourful little trout fly. I probably used it a few times before it fell apart, my Granny knots not being too durable, but I'm sure it gave me satisfaction in trying for a chub (a small minnow) or trout.

Did it catch fish? I really don't remember. I do know that I spent a lot of time at the local hardware store, looking at the beautiful flies on display. There were flies that looked like the water striders I saw scooting across the pools in Lester River. There were also the shiny black ants I saw in our backyard anthill, and mosquitoes, too! They fascinated me.

Some 50 years later, I still go into sports shops to look at flies made by other fly tiers. I tie flies in my "fly room" (as my wife named it) almost every day. Some days, I tie 30 or more. Nothing like the number that George Merrill, another professional tier, used to make. Every morning, George tied 144 flies! But, when I am tired of tying, I have the option (as a retired pensioner) of doing other things, like writing this column, or even - going fishing!

Then, something interesting happens - the very next morning, I am in the Fly Room again, tying more flies, maybe a dozen Dr. Spratleys, or even some more Mosquitoes to populate the world! Or a few more Muddler Minnows. When the spirit moves me, I get creative and put together a fly that no one has ever made before, to my knowledge anyway. Then I have the anticipation of it being a real good one and can hardly wait to see if a trout likes it.

Our orange tabby cat, Klinger, walked by the Fly Room one day, and some of his beautiful hair ended up on the fly I call the Klinger. On trying it in Tulameen River, it out-fished the Tom Thumb, which I normally find best. At least, on that day I did!

If you want to save money, don't tie your own flies. I've probably spent $5,000 through the 50 years I have tied flies, and you can buy an awful lot of flies for that money. However, if you want to enjoy a wonderful creative hobby, where you have the satisfaction of making a fly that fools a wily trout, by all means try fly-tying. It's a great way to spend those days when the snow lays two feet deep and the thermometer reads minus 15 degrees Celsius.

Government proclaims Arts and Culture Week

The provincial government has proclaimed November 1 to 7 as Arts and Culture Week in British Columbia.

"Cultural activity provides jobs for more than 50,000 British Columbians," said Small Business, Tourism and Culture Minister Ian Waddell when he announced the proclamation on July 16.

Ann Mortifee, chair of the B.C. Arts Council, said that while the level of artistic activity in B.C. is high, its relevance to the community and the province is not always recognized.

B.C. Arts Council will co-ordinate activities throughout B.C. with the Assembly of B.C. Arts Councils, Vancouver Cultural Alliance, Arts Starts in Schools, and other partners. Activities will include community and school-based events, a commemorative poster and fact sheets, a reception at Government House honouring contributors to the arts, and media events.

Be the 'safety' host this summer

by Colleen Maloney, Public Health Nurse

Summer has arrived. Summer is generally a time to kick back, relax and socialize with family and friends. Residents of Okanagan Similkameen Health Region, with its sun, sand and beaches, often play host to many get-togethers. Alcohol, man's oldest and most popular drug, is regularly used at these occasions. Most adults can enjoy a drink or two with no health risks. However, when taken in excess or in combination with the operation of a vehicle on the roads, water or trails, it becomes a dangerous drug.

Drinking driving accidents are the single most common cause of death for those under 30. Every year in B.C., and average of 250 people are killed and 7200 injured in alcohol-related traffic accidents. Drinking drivers cost the people of B.C. $130 million each year in medical, insurance and justice system costs. A price tag cannot be put on the social and emotional impact to those personally affected. These scars last a lifetime.

Alcohol enters your bloodstream directly from your stomach. This blood travels to your brain and begins to quickly and steadily sedate it. Judgement, concentration and learned skills such as driving are the first to be affected. Co-ordination, speech, vision and hearing begin to suffer as you consume more alcohol. This directly affects your ability to gauge the distance between moving and stationary objects, check your environment and respond to changes. Once alcohol is in your bloodstream, the effects cannot be counteracted by coffee, water, exercise or a cold shower.

Here are a few suggestions to make sure you are a safe summer host:

- 1) Drink responsibly yourself. This will help to set the tone for your gathering.
- 2) Keep your fridge well-stocked with non-alcoholic beverages and offer them as an alternative to alcohol or between drinks.
- 3) Provide places so that your guests can sit their drinks down rather than holding and sipping them constantly.
- 4) Keep alcohol out of reach of children.
- 5) Talk with your teens about the dangers of alcohol and set a good example of responsible behaviour.
- 6) Provide your guests with alternatives to drinking and driving. Do not let your friends or family members risk their lives or the lives of others.
- 7) Promote activities and entertainment that provide an alternative to just drinking.

Second year begins for Visions for the Future aboriginal program

A successful program offering aboriginal youth information and guidance on career planning, entrepreneurship and education was launched July 21 for a second year. The program, called Visions for the Future, was instrumental in creating many educational, cross-cultural and business partnerships with aboriginal youth in B.C. in 1998.

The $700,000 Visions program was announced at the Assembly of First Nations Nexus '99 International Indigenous Business Conference, held at Vancouver Convention Centre.

Culture Minister Ian Waddell commented, when making the announcement, "Many of the challenges faced by young people today are compounded for those who live in smaller, more remote communities. The Visions program addresses serious youth employment concerns and motivates young people to achieve their long-term personal and professional goals. The program is consistent with government's youth employment strategy to build a highly skilled, knowledge-based work force for the new century."

Visions for the Future consists of one-day conferences presented in communities across the province and features a variety of workshops led by representatives from small businesses, advanced education institutions, regional industries, provincial and national employers, aboriginal leaders and government.

Each conference integrates an employment fair where participants can learn about career options, job search strategies, entrepreneurship, business training and post-secondary education. Planning is underway to conduct 14 regional conferences across B.C. beginning in September.

Agricultural Land Commission visits T.L. Timber in Cawston

CAWSTON - When the Agricultural Land Commission (ALC) came through the Similkameen the week of July 19, they stopped to examine the T.L. Timber operation in Cawston. Unfortunately, owner Dave Lusted was out of town at the time, but Lusted did speak by phone to Ross Blackwell of the ALC on Wednesday, July 28.

Lusted reports that though Ross Blackwell didn't have an answer for him yet as to the future of his mill, Ross did say to him that being at the mill and seeing things first hand will help the Commission to make a more informed decision, and the Commission realizes the operation is important to the community.

Dave Lusted recently supplied the ALC with soil test information that proves that his mill operation is not harming the soil's agricultural potential.

Dave remains determined and hopeful, and says, "I believe the scientific information is hard for them to argue with."

OBITUARIES

ELIZABETH (BETTY) MARY WARD passed away in Princeton, on July 16, 1999, at the age of 83 years. Funeral Services for Mrs. Ward will be held at St. Paul's United Church, on Thursday, August 5, 1999 at 1:30 p.m., Reverend Chris Haugland Officiating. Interment Cremation. Princeton Similkameen Funeral Service in care of arrangements.

WELCOME TO THE WORLD!

It's a Boy!

Great Great Grandpa Chase would like to happily announce the arrival of his fifth generation namesake, Chase Sydney Rempel born on July 22, 1999 at 6:18 a.m. at Penticton Regional Hospital. He weighed 7 lbs. 8 oz.. Proud parents are Ken Rempel and Tara Atkinson, brothers Steve and Alex Rempel, grandparents George and Win Rempel, David and Jaymie Atkinson, and great grandparents Arch and Lois Bell.

APPRECIATION

Chase and Tara would like to thank the Doctors and Nurses at Penticton Regional Hospital for assistance with Chase's birth and Dr. Bosomworth for the prenatal care. We would especially like to thank my Dad and Grandma for the numerous trips to Penticton to visit us and their help in the delivery room. Thank you to everyone who sent gifts and good wishes while we were in the Hospital and once we got home. Thanks again!

Judith and Darrell Tompkins would like to thank Lori, John and Jill for their great job of catering, Brian Bertrand for his music, Kathy Smart for her bartending and a great job insuring safe driving, Peter Wolfe for the use of his wagon, Dawn at Princeton Bakery for her beautiful cake, Rosalie from Gold Water florist for the very beautiful flowers, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Goodfellow. Also thanks to all of our friends who attend and also to our beautiful children who gave us such a wonderful 25th Anniversary.

APPRECIATION

Princeton Highway Rescue Society extend their Thanks to Paula Pateman (Pinewood Pottery) for her support and generosity in allowing us to sell smokies at the Jazz Festival to help raise and match funds toward a new Rescue Truck.

ENGAGEMENTS

It is with great pleasure George and Zennie Merrill announce the engagement of their grandson, Jesse Brewster to Tara McConnell both of Cranbrook, B.C.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of
TED GEE
August 2, 1994
A heart of gold stopped beating.
Hard working hands at rest.
God broke our hearts
to prove to us,
He only takes the best.
The leaves and flowers may wither,
The golden sun may set,
But the hearts that loved so dearly,
Are the ones that won't forget.
Always in our hearts
Forever missed
Therese, Tasha & Justin

Arts Council expands sights and sounds

Paintings, live music, crafts, Princeton Writers' new book, tai chi, weaving, and Garden Club displays are being drawn together for the August 14 Celebration of Sights and Sounds. The museum grounds on Vermilion Avenue is the location. The museum will be open for the occasion.

The celebration begins at 10:00 a.m. and ends at 3:00 p.m.

Paintings and crafts will be on sale as well as on exhibit.

The first event of this kind took place in 1998 and was a success, so the Arts Council decided to do it again. Ross Chaston is the contact person (295-7060). He encourages all artists, craftspeople and musicians to join in the fun for a day. Everyone is welcome.

Committee looks for Company

PRINCETON - Sharon Brum is one of a committee of five who have been running the Youth Ambassador program, and they desperately need some more people to help now and in the future. The committee advertised for more members, but received no response. The committee is not disbanding, just looking for a few more hands to help with the work.

Brum says she fears the Youth Ambassador program may not last if there are not enough people on the committee to carry it from year to year. The program itself is not a problem. It is clearly laid out for committee members. No experience is necessary. However, the workload for five people is heavy, and more members would make the load lighter for every member.

Committee members enjoy working with the candidates. They meet all of the girls during the selection process, then watch the girls grow in self-confidence and self-esteem. The entire experience is rewarding.

The Youth Ambassador program tends to be a very feminine endeavour involving modeling, fashion, make-up, and personal development.

"It's a great way to meet people and make friends," Brum says.

Working with the girls is the best part for the committee.

"You feel young being with them," Brum says.

People of all ages are welcome on the committee. Personal skills may vary, but committee members should be women who like to encourage girls to put their best foot forward and watch the girls gain social skills.

Anyone interested in being a member, or having questions about the work of the committee, can call Sharon Brum at 295-6482.

Local cyclists ride for Life and Breath

A group of Princeton cyclists has helped push the number of riders in the British Columbia Lung Association's popular Bicycle Trek for Life and Breath to record levels, and organizers are anticipating the biggest and best event yet this September.

Rosemarie Dunsmore, Trish Fox, and Tracy Ross have done the 200 km. weekend ride through the Fraser Valley and Washington state before. Kelley Cook and Shauna Jorgenson, also of Princeton, are first-timers, and hundreds of newcomers like them are pushing the total number of riders to new heights, says organizer Ruby Campbell.

"I'm thrilled that a fifteen-year-old event continues to attract new people, yet we maintain a strong core of veteran riders who are dedicated to the event and look forward to it each year," says

Campbell.

Interest in the Bicycle Trek for Life and Breath is at an all-time high, and Campbell says she's never seen this number of people sign up so early.

"We're anticipating a record number of riders. This creates even more momentum, energy, and fun for participants and sponsors. And, most importantly, we're anticipating a record amount of money raised for the people who suffer from lung disease and who rely on these funds."

Last year's event raised $252,000 and this year's target is $285,000. Money raised from the Bicycle Trek for Life and Breath funds medical research, educational programs and patient support activities. British Columbians who are committed to lung health often want to do more than just send a cheque.

"Many organizations do effective fundraising at the local level, which is good, but we've found that people enjoy a group activity which involves cycling and the outdoors. It's one of the few events sponsored by a health organization that brings people together from all over British Columbia, and I think that's because lung disease, air quality and tobacco issues directly affect so many people."

To enter, cyclists must raise at least $375 each. The B.C. Lung Association provides the cyclists with meals, snacks and refreshments, accommodation and mechanical support along the route.

Vermilion Forks Field Naturalists

Hikers enjoy grand view from the top of Oliphant

Monday, July 19, was a wonderfully sunny day, perfect for five field naturalists who found their way to the top of Oliphant Mountain. There was first a lovely drive to the back of the mountain, and then a walk along a shady road. Then off into the woods, so typical of the Princeton area, open enough to walk in and shady enough to be comfortable.

There are many old majestic trees along this walk, as well as a lush growth of pine grass, the sort cows do not like. Consequently, the walk was very easy on the feet. The wildflowers were shy, but when seen and inspected, found to be pretty. There was some moss, and several lichens the group was able to stop and inspect closely. The world on the ground is so intricate, we speculated on the wonders of some close-up photography!

We reached the lower peak and the general reaction was one of awe. The view is really spectacular, one can see quite far up Summers Creek and lands above, around to the breathtaking Jura Ranch, to the valley of Allison Creek leading to town. We saw many ravens and some hawks flying below.

We then walked down to the "neck" of the the mountain and scrambled up to the higher peak. There, the first sight was a rabbit running with great disgust at being disturbed. Lunch was a time for looking, drinking in the view, which now included a look up the Merritt Highway to the north. A ramble through the forest on the way back was rewarding in its beauty.

We finished off the trip with a refreshing dabble in Summers Creek at Linda Neuman's.

The next trip will be to Pacer Meadows on August 7. There is a long climb from Placer Lake to the high peaks above, where the wildflowers are usually overwhelming. This is one of the really rewarding and exciting trips in our area. Call Janina Wetselaar if you wish to join or just to ask about the trip: 295-3640.

Lightning Lakes - Three Falls combo in Manning Park

by Janina Wetselaar and Lisa Loepky

Ten survivors of the Vermilion Forks Field Naturalists plunged through dust, rain, cold, and snow on a forced march on Saturday, July 24, through the wilds of Manning Park, and ended up proud of being hardy enough to enjoy a good day in bad weather. We walked around Lightning Lake and stopped for lunch (always a priority) at the beach picnic area during a healthy drizzle, which added to our pleasure, although it took some time to convince certain members of the group that they were enjoying it.

There were numerous small white flowers on the forest floor - bunchberry with its four white petals, the elegant Queen's Cup, three-leaved Goldthread, strawberry, spotted saxifrage, false Solomon's Seal, and even some white-flowered rhododendron. There were plenty of different kinds of mushrooms, and some pinesaps, weird fleshy yellow plants which lack chlorophyll, and dine on decaying vegetation. Generally we identified at least 40 wildflowers.

Crash sends six to hospital

On July 29, at 4:00 p.m. Princeton RCMP and B.C. Ambulance responded to a crash on Highway 3 at a location 13 km. east of Princeton. The driver lost control of a 1978 GMC van and went off the road on the right, before the driver gained control, the van hit the ditch and rolled.

The six occupants, all from Quebec, sustained various injuries. Five were released from hospital after examination. One received fractures requiring her to be admitted. None of the six appeared to have been wearing seat belts. The van was damaged beyond repair.

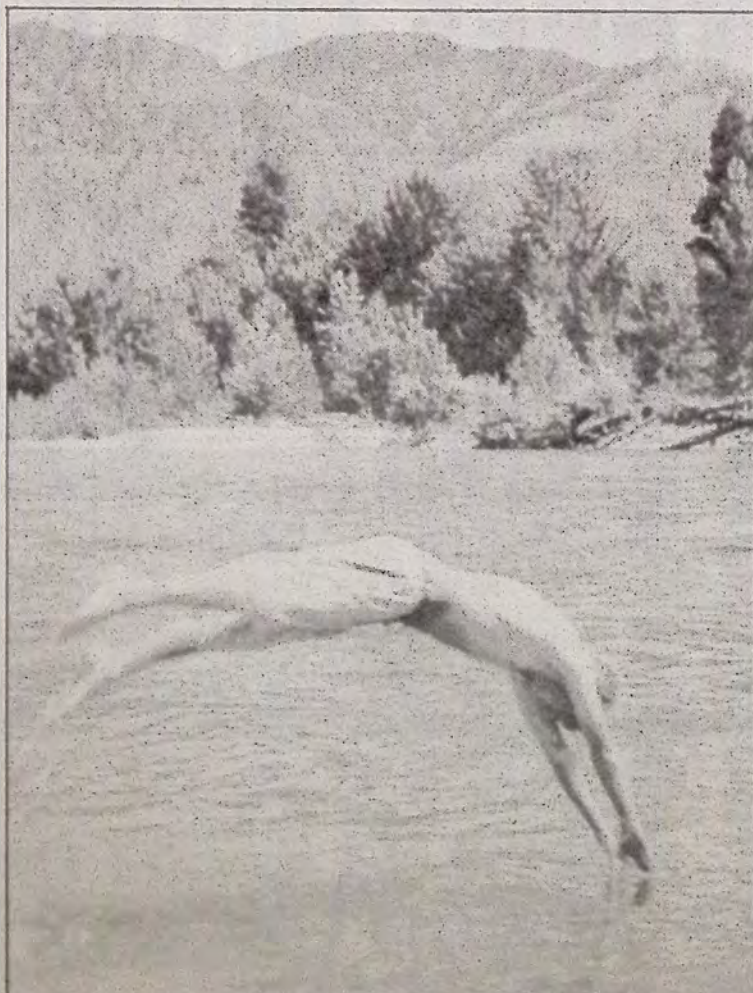

The walk was so interesting, with constant conversation, that we were surprised to find ourselves back at the vehicles by 12:30.

After a debate, the group was coerced into a 'quick' stroll to the three falls up the creek from Strawberry Flats. (One laggard actually sneaked back to his vehicle and slept, while the rest went on the trail.)

Further plant identification was curtailed by order of one hiker who did her best to keep the group up to an allotted time schedule, but we did pass through a lovely field of American brooklime, said to be a great salad herb. Returning hikers warned us to watch for a bear ahead, but we were unlucky enough to miss it. We did have full pleasure from the three falls along the trail: Shadow, Nepopekum and Derek.

Despite the rain, all hikers agreed the day was worthwhile and look forward to the next trip, August 7, to Placer Meadows. If the snow has gone and the flowers are out, this could be the highlight of the year, but it can be a very strenuous hike, since much of the trail is steeply uphill from Placer Lake. Remember to bring extra water and a good lunch. Call Janina Wetselaar at 295-3640 or Don Burbidge at 295-6009 if you would like to participate. We welcome newcomers.
