

Three-car collision injures one

Ambulance and rescue crews were called to a three-car collision at the intersection of Highway 5A and Old Hedley Road at 4:39 on January 2, 2001. The driver of a Honda Civic pulled into the intersection from the direction of the arena. The Honda collided with a utility truck heading north and the Honda spun out of control up the highway. The utility truck was knocked into a pick-up truck at the stop sign on Old Hedley Road east of the highway and the two trucks went into the ditch. The driver of the Honda was taken to Princeton General Hospital to be treated for airbag injuries. See photo lower left.

Drivers of two pick-up trucks in the ditch on the east side of the intersection tell Cst. Tracy Ross what they saw happening during the accident. Neither of these drivers was injured.

Argo took avalanche threat "very seriously" says manager

Jim Richards, Operations Manager for Argo Road Maintenance, was distressed after reading the story, in the News Leader, of a motorist caught in an "avalanche" on Otter Valley Road. He told the News Leader that Argo took the matter "very seriously" and a complete review of the situation, and the number of messages, was done internally.

According to Richards, "A lot of money was spent on a major response to a single phone call."

He states Argo received only one phone call from a person who said a motorist was trying to go up Otter Valley Road and there was snow in the way. The caller did not say there was an avalanche. Richards received the call at 8:30 p.m. on December 16.

Richards said he called the man on the job that evening, who could not attend, so Richards then called the senior foreman, who drove out past where the caller had said the problem existed and ran into an area where the snow was two feet deep. The foreman decided to close the road, and contacted the Merritt end to have them close it. The foreman then called all people in the closure area who accessed the road.

Argo contacted the Ministry of Highways at 11:00 p.m. to say the snow was deep and there was a concern about possible avalanche problems, as there are known avalanche sites in the area. A helicopter was chartered for daybreak the next morning, when an avalanche technician flew in to look at the road. This person saw tracks of where a vehicle had been stuck, but there was no avalanche.

Argo began plowing at 11:00 a.m. and worked until 9:00 p.m. that day.

Richards stated Argo inspects Otter Valley Road every 16 hours. The main road to Tulameen is a priority and is checked much more frequently.

Avalanches close roads

Roads to Tulameen were closed on Friday afternoon due to avalanches.

An avalanche at Red Bluffs, between Princeton and Coalmont, blocked the road and had to be cleared. The road between Tulameen and Highway 5A (Aspen Grove area) was closed due to an avalanche which was soon cleared out, then closed again due to the threat of avalanche. An avalanche technician was called in to deal with the situation.

The problem with avalanches occurred because of rain and higher temperatures following a period of heavy snowfall. The melting and the rain combined to create hazardous conditions. The Highways crew in Tulameen had received updated training and were alert and ready for the threat of avalanches in areas where they occurred in the past.

Tulameen Community Club prepares for a year of action

Tulameen Community Club held its annual general meeting on Thursday, January 4, and elected a new executive for 2001.

Gina Hall was returned as President, with Marg Reichert as Vice-President. Anne Passey will serve another year as Secretary, and Debbie Schwarz as Treasurer.

Wayne Passey, Cubby Addison

and Loretta McDiarmid were elected for two-year terms as Directors.

Tulameen Community Club is currently looking at a project to put a roof on the skating rink. The cost of such a project is estimated at $80,000, and the club has architectural plans in place for the project. They intend to apply to Sports BC for a grant.

SnoCross welcomes racers

SnoCross 2001 will be held January 20 and 21 in Princeton, on the tailings pond. Access is via Copper Mountain Road, turn left on first road past the first cattle guard. There will be a concession for spectators, and plenty of parking. Dress warmly if you plan to attend.

There is a racing circuit for snowmobile racers, and the host club, Timberline Cruisers, is expecting a lot of racers as well as the best racers. Many of the best live in Tulameen and Princeton area.

For the spectator, snowmobile racing is fun. The machines do some incredible climbs and jumps, and there are all kinds of spills and thrills. Some of the racers are very young, racing small machines. There are several age categories, and a separate division for women.

Locally, the Reichert brothers, Tyson Leduc, and Larry Robinson and Cody Robinson have made some big wins on the circuit in the past and did well here last year.

Timberline Cruisers are ironing out the final details for this year's SnoCross. Check the News Leader next week.

Taxpayers see small break in taxes

Personal and small business taxes have been cut, effective January 1, 2001. Basic personal tax credit will rise to $8,000 from $7,231 and spousal tax credit will rise to $6,850 from $6,140. Most other provincial credits and tax brackets will be indexed to prevent taxes from rising as inflation increases.

Provincial surtaxes will be incorporated into provincial income tax rates and tax-bracket thresholds.

The tax rate on income between $30,000 and $60,000 will fall by half a percentage point.

The top marginal tax rate for personal income will fall to 48.7 per cent from 51.3 per cent, due to changes in provincial and federal income tax rates.

The threshold at which the corporation capital tax applies will rise to $5 million from $3.5 million. As a result, 90 per cent of businesses in B.C. will not be subject to the tax.

Pneumonia vaccinations are available

As of January 1, British Columbia's pneumococcal vaccination program was expanded to protect people aged two to 64 who are at risk from contracting pneumococcal infection. Pneumococcal diseases are life-threatening bacterial infections such as pneumococcal pneumonia, bacteremia and meningitis.

This provincial program has been available to all B.C. seniors aged 65 years or older, and is now expanded to protect younger people with chronic illnesses or those at risk of complications of respiratory tract infections. It is estimated the program will prevent eight to 21 deaths per year, hundreds of hospitalizations and thousands of doctor visits. Money savings are estimated to be between $1.1 and $2.8 million per year.

Seniors facing rent increases as a result of higher gas prices may be eligible for subsidies under the Shelter Aid For Elderly Renters program (SAFER). While the 20 year old program does not subsidize gas bills, it offers direct cash assistance to low-income seniors who pay more than 30 per cent of their income to rent in the private market.

Seniors may be eligible for SAFER if they:

- rent their homes and are paying more than 30 per cent of their income to rent,
- are 65 or older and are entitled to Old Age Security,
- are 60 to 64 and are either a Canadian citizen or a landed immigrant,
- have lived continuously in Canada for at least 10 years as an adult.

SAFER does not assist seniors who:

- own their homes,
- live in manufactured homes or co-ops,
- live in subsidized housing or residential care facilities,
- receive BC Benefits,
- have lived in B.C. for less than one year.

Information on the SAFER program is available from BC HOUSING at 1-800-257-7756 or at www.bchousing.org

Princeton area residents can find more information at the Ministry of Social Development and Economic Security located in Princeton Plaza.

Your news is important!

Steve LePoidevin is an instructor at The Bridge, where adult learners can find up-to-date instruction to complete their education or increase their computer skills. A new term starts this week.

The Bridge starts new year,

With Christmas holidays over and another year starting, it is time to start setting goals for the months ahead. These goals might include taking a course or even finishing high school. The Bridge continues to be an excellent place for adults to continue their education, whether they need to complete high school or upgrade for college entrance. However, it is also a great site for those who just want to take a course for their own interest.

The most popular reason for attending the site is still high school completion. All core subjects required for graduation are available along with a good selection of necessary electives. Although courses technically start at the Grade 10 level, students who need it are given plenty of assistance to reach this starting level. There are no classes and no timetable. Under a system of computer-managed learning, students are led through a path of assignments, tests, and quizzes for each course by a computer program. On-site instructors are available for help and one-on-one tutoring. It is up to each individual to determine how many hours per day they can work and when they will do it.

Because of the nature of the site, all Bridge students quickly become familiar with the more common tasks that can be done on a computer - checking e-mail, scanning and mailing photos, opening and saving files, basic word-processing, etc. However, there are several computer courses that are offered on the site on a continual basis, such as Business Computer Applications II. In this course, students learn the basics of word processing, databases and spreadsheets. BCA II will now use Microsoft Office Word 2000 as its core program. This is a great course to use as an elective as well as a useful stand-alone course for people who want to drop in to improve their computer skills.

Vermilion Rebekah news

by Dorothy Stenvold, p.c.
The Christmas trees that we delivered to Ridgewood Lodge and to the hospital were picked up by Sisters White and Ottas. Many thanks and words of praise were received for our efforts.

We were pleased to have Christmas greetings from our absent Sisters, including Sister Margaret McCrae, who now resides in a rest home in Abbotsford. Sister Blows is feeling considerably improved and enjoying the antics of her young grandchildren.

Sister Marion is still disabled by her fall but how can anyone fly on one wing?

Sister Shirley is recovering from pneumonia along with her other problems and several other Sisters needing medical assistance.

Lovely sandwiches and cakes were enjoyed during our social time. Sister Pam won the table draw, some lovely notepaper.

Our next meeting will be for Installation of Officers so our ill and injured Sisters have two weeks to recover.

Living Past 100

A simple pill for youth

These days we read about, and hear of, a lot of expensive therapies that promise us more age-reducing effects. We are told we can look and feel younger in no time with these therapies. One of the main ingredients in these expensive therapies is a natural body steroid called DHEA, and it is not readily available over the counter. Synthetic DHEA is expensive and may have a bad side effect: if you feed it to your body, your body may quit producing its own DHEA. There are other bad side effects, but there is some good news, and a cheap substitute that is safer.

There is no question that DHEA is great. It improves the immune system, reduces the incidence of cancer, atherosclerosis (coronary artery disease) and osteoporosis, diseases associated with aging. It reduces blood cholesterol and improves liver function, and stabilizes blood sugar, helping to prevent adult onset diabetes. Further, this amazing hormone helps convert body fat to muscle mass, controls Alzheimer's disease, lupus, AIDS, and chronic fatigue syndrome, and is used to treat herpes, menopause, depression, memory and learning problems.

Why would we want synthetic DHEA if our bodies produce it naturally? The problem with aging is due to our bodies producing less and less DHEA. By age 75, DHEA levels are only 10 to 20 percent of what they were at age 20. Remember how good you felt at age 20?

There are some good effects in most people when they take synthetic DHEA, but there are dangers, too. If you have certain kinds of cancer cells in your body when you begin taking DHEA, you will trigger rapid growth of the cancer.

Here is the good news. Wild yam root powder is a natural organic product that does not give you DHEA, but it does contain a substance that helps your body produce more DHEA. In other words, you can buy this product cheaply at health food stores and many pharmacies, use the recommended dosage (never feel that more is better) and stimulate your body into producing its own anti-aging DHEA, which is a far superior source of the hormone. (If you really want DHEA therapy, you must ask your doctor for it and you will have to see an endocrinologist (a specialist in hormones and glands).

Highway lakes are 'hot'

by John Sandness, Similkameen Valley outdoorsman

The past weeks have been good for the ice fishermen. Those tying Laird and McCaffery Lake caught good numbers of rainbow trout.

Here are a few comments I heard.

Jason Neufeld and his buddy found the trout in the deep water at Laird. They caught some nice ones and lost a beauty estimated at three pounds. Jason could see the fish swim by the hole but could not make it turn upwards and out the hole.

One anecdote: "I was drinking a cup of coffee when my bobber went down. The cup went flying and I grabbed the line and got a two-pound trout and the lost coffee wasn't even missed!"

The bait used was spoon, hook and worm. They came home with plenty to eat!

Wayne Harrop, with his brother and nephew, were at McCaffery. They caught 13 fish.

"Really biting well," Wayne said. His nephew enjoyed the outing.

Wayne modestly said, "He caught the majority."

Biggest fish was two pounds.

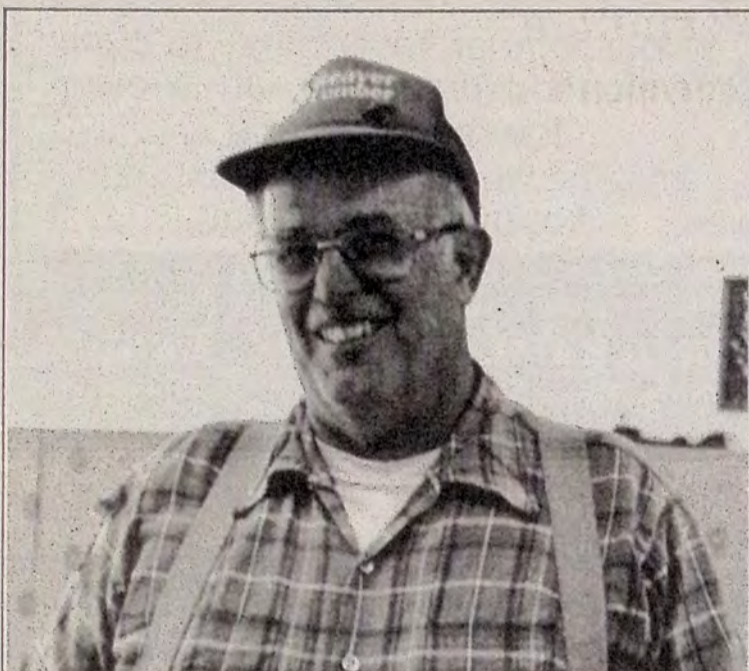

He went back to McCaffery on 28th also and caught 11, releasing some. Most were 12 inches long.

Wayne said a raven sat on the truck roof and watched them fish - probably waiting for lunch leftovers.

Mealworms and garden hackle were the attractive bait on both trips.

Dennis Clement is a morning fisherman. He likes the hours between 7:00 a.m. and 9:00 a.m. This Princeton fisherman has lots of experience ice fishing. If only I could wake up that early and get out there, maybe I could share in the success he experiences! Dennis is fishing Laird.

Looks like, if you want a fish dinner, and those rainbows are delicious this time of year, your best bet is to drop a mealy worm or angle worm down any of the holes already dug, at Laird Lake. You may have to chip a little ice, but it will be worth it. Good fishing, and don't leave debris on the ice. It takes only a small effort to pack it home.

Damion Stacey called and mentioned six nice rainbows that he caught in Goose Lake on corn and shrimp. Evidently those Goose Lake trout are gourmets. So, not only the highway lakes are producing!

Golf Club asks Council for grant

Princeton Golf Club asked Town Council for an additional grant of $500 above the $2,500 Council committed for an archaeological study done last summer.

Councillor Sulentich was opposed to giving the added $500 due to the club expanding their campsite and charging less than the municipal campsite. He noted approximately $100,000 worth of timber gained by the club during the expansion to 18 holes.

Mayor Randy McLean looked at the request from a different angle. At the December 18 meeting, he said, "I think of the volunteers, and the contractors. I don't know what it would have cost in a large community - it would have been astronomical."

With the exception of Sulentich, Council voted in favour of donating the $500.

Just for laughs

An eastern holy man walked barefoot most of the time, which produced an impressive set of calluses on his feet. He also ate very little, which made him rather frail, and with his very odd diet, he suffered from bad breath. This made him a super-callused, fragile mystic, plagued with halitosis.

An Asian man walked into the currency exchange in New York with 2000 yen and walked out with $72. The following week, he walked in with 2000 yen and was handed $66. He asked the teller why he had less money than during the previous week.

She told him, "Fluctuations." The Asian man stormed out, and just before slamming the door, he turned and yelled, "Fluc you Amelicans, too!"

POINTS OF VIEW

OUR VIEW

Canada is not kind to the poor

Basic personal tax exemption has been increased to $8,000. How many people live on $8,000 per year or less? That works out to approximately $660 per month, which is not exactly living high on the hog!

At the same time the exemption was increased, the tax rate for those earning $30,000 to $60,000 have their tax rate reduced by half a percent. In other words, those who earn $2,500 to $5,000 per month receive a tax rate reduction and those who can barely survive on less than $1,000 a month may still be paying income taxes.

Is there something wrong with this picture?

The national poverty line is an income of approximately $15,000 per year. Using the government's own calculations, the Revenue Canada people and the politicians have decreed that those who live under the poverty line must pay taxes. The government has agreed that the poor shall pay.

What happens if a poor person cannot come up with the money to pay? The people at Revenue Canada will freeze the person's bank account, even if the person is on welfare. According to a source in Princeton, this happened to a single mother here.

We Canadians have prided ourselves on being the kind of people who play fair, help others in need, and do our best to ensure a good life for every law-abiding citizen. However, our tax laws show clearly that we do not have much concern for the poor. Would it not have been more just to cut the tax rate for the poor and raise their basic personal exemption to at least $12,000 per year?

Of course, any of us ordinary citizens do not have much influence with those who make the decisions at Revenue Canada, but we do have an opportunity to put the message across to our Members of Parliament. Talk to Mr. Day about this issue and use your influence.

Junk mail can be dangerous

Dear Editor;

I would like to remind the people of Princeton to avoid mail fraud by not throwing out any mail with their name on it in the trash cans at the post office.

Please take all your mail home and destroy it before putting it in the garbage. Stupidly, I made this mistake earlier last year, by throwing out a mailing I received, from a well-known music company, at the post office.

I knew I shouldn't have, thinking, "Oh, what are the odds? I see stuff like this in the trash cans all the time."

Well, you know what? It did happen to me. (Why can't the odds be in my favour of winning the lottery?) Someone decided to take the mail that I threw in the trash can, left my name and changed the box number, and ordered some CD's. I would never have known about it, but by chance I received the bill for over $110.

Imagine what could have happened if it was a "pre-approved" credit card application!

As for the person who did this? I hope the new year brings you exactly what you deserve. sincerely, Carrie Doré

Big Brother is watching you

Dear Editor;

We have all had the experience. You are standing at the cash register, making a retail purchase with your credit card, and you get the uncomfortable feeling the next person in line is standing too close, looking over your shoulder. Where it is a pack of cigarettes or a personal hygiene product, you feel your personal space and the confidential nature of your transaction information is being compromised.

You may be right. But you probably don't suspect the party who is really looking over your shoulder. It may be the cash register, the shopping club discount card, or the computer data banks it's all connected to, that is really invading your privacy.

Now that the holiday season shopping frenzy is over for another year, don't be surprised if you suddenly start receiving a raft of offers and inquiries from businesses you have never heard of. This may be one unpleasant result of the growth of information technology, where information passed to one business in one transaction is transmitted or sold to other businesses. Some examples include pre-approved credit card applications from a company you don't normally deal with; solicitations from charities that got your name from another charity you once donated to; and direct mail advertising from companies that obtained information about you from a retail purchase made at another business.

Clearly, there are legitimate and illegitimate ways for businesses to use personal information acquired in the course of a commercial transaction. For me, two very key issues are whether individuals give companies permission to use their private, personal information and whether companies tell disclosed at the time of the transaction how they intend to use or share that information.

Many of us were brought up fearing the all-knowing, all-invasive, totalitarian state of George Orwell's political novel, "1984", where the power of the state surveillance, Big Brother, was used to observe every citizen's conduct.

Well, 1984 has come and gone, and Big Brother is watching you, but this time it isn't the government. In 2001, the real threat to personal privacy and the confidentiality of personal information comes not from big government, but from big business.

What is the appropriate role of government in the information age? The government of Canada will enact legislation to protect personal information held in the federally-regulated private sector. Provinces will then have three years to enact legislation that covers businesses under the provincial jurisdiction.

The B.C. legislature has struck a special committee on information privacy in the private sector. I am the chairperson of that committee. My role and my challenge as chair is to consult with business groups, interested citizens like you, and other stakeholders; to bring the parties together; and to balance the legitimate commercial interest of businesses with every citizen's right to privacy and confidentiality.

I hope to hear from you about this important issue.

The search for spirituality

Modern searchers for spirituality tend to follow New Age leaders who are "into" everything from transcendental meditation (TM) to Wicca (Druidian witchcraft). Traditional religion does not appear to interest these searchers, although spirituality and religion are closely linked.

Traditional Christianity, in our society, appears uninviting to seekers despite the fact that Jesus was known to his contemporaries as a Spiritual Master. Frequently, in the Bible, Jesus is referred to as "Master" in recognition of his ability, as a man, to achieve the heights of spirituality. Not only did Jesus demonstrate the qualities of spiritual leadership, he was able to heal, which is regarded as the test of spirituality.

Many of the New Age followers learn healing skills as if, by learning the skills, they could reach a higher level of soul development. This is the reverse of what most of the traditional mystery schools have taught. Those seeking spiritual development were told they could heal when spiritual development reached a sufficiently high level. Jesus was certainly proof of that concept, but there have been many spiritually developed people who were able to heal without being "schooled" in healing arts.

The requirement of traditional religion is to walk the path of the Master. It is no easy task to follow in the footsteps of Jesus, nor of any other person recognized as a spiritual leader or "master." Discipline is required (note the relationship between "discipline" and "disciple.") The discipline required is self-discipline, sticking to the rules, doing what is required even when it is inconvenient or even dangerous. Is this why traditional Christianity has lost its appeal - it is not easy enough?

Wheelchair accesses need repairs

Town Council received a letter from Brian Liberatore requesting repairs to sidewalk curbs. Liberatore operates a wheelchair, and itemized locations downtown where curb accesses need repair, specifically where brick had risen or fallen. Liberatore identified another area of concern, for both walking and wheelchair use, at the Bridge Street end of the wooden bridge.

Town Council said the crew would address the matter in the spring.

Heart Food

by Dave Machin

There's a story of a man named Saul whose major purpose in life was to persecute Christians. He did this because He was zealous for God and believed He was doing the right thing. These folks had come up with some new doctrine which absolutely opposed what He had been taught. He did this to the point of even traveling to other cities for the sole purpose of catching these people. One day as He was on his way to a city called Damascus, about noon time, a great, bright light shone on him and those who were with him, knocking them all to the ground. As he lay there he heard a voice speaking to him, saying, "Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?" He had the presence of mind to answer, "Who are you, Lord? and what do you want me to do?" Jesus answered these two questions for Saul, for it was Him who had appeared this way to Saul. As a result of this experience, a defining moment had taken place in Saul's life that forever changed the course of his life. You probably won't have a Damascus road experience like Saul did, but perhaps your conscience is being "pricked" when you read articles like this or hear things about God. God in His goodness is simply attempting to get your attention and bring you to a place like He did Saul. He does not deal with people in the same way every time, because He knows what will work to get out attention. Believe this or not, He is trying to get your attention right now. Short of overriding your will, He will use everything at His disposal to do that very thing in this new millennium year of 2001. He wants for you to have a defining moment in your own life by having you begin a relationship with him. You will never be the same again. His purpose for you is good, for He is good and good all the time.

Lynch Bus Lines Senior Atoms hockey team from Princeton played Penticton on Saturday, January 6, and had a rough time defending their goal as Penticton brought four strings of players to Princeton's two. Princeton played very well but the 9-0 final score dis not reflect it. Princeton's goalie made save after save like the one shown above.
