Chutter says new era good for Yale-Lillooet

Yale-Lillooet MLA Dave Chutter gave his maiden address to the B.C. Legislature on July 26, saying the New Era is "more than a welcome breath of fresh air".

He began with treaty settlements.

"The number one concern to the people of Yale-Lillooet is Aboriginal treaty settlement. And, it's because of the uncertainty of land tenure which limits investment and business opportunities, holding back economic renewal in areas for forestry, mining and recreation, limiting prosperity for native and non-native people."

"People anxiously await the negotiation of workable, affordable treaty settlements," Chutter told the legislature, "in order to gain economic opportunities. The referendum on principles of treaty negotiation will give momentum to this process. Mutual respect can only be achieved when there is understanding and acceptance by all those affected, and that is the valuable opportunity that a province-wide discussion will provide."

Chutter stressed how the "one-size-fits-all" model, whether it be in health care, education, or provincial representation does not meet the needs of rural British Columbians. He spoke of the problems facing the local forest industry, in terms of high costs, problems in accessing fibre, and the impact of softwood lumber restrictions.

Chutter raised concerns about the uncertainty of land and resource use in the absence of planning processes, and noted that Yale-Lillooet residents eagerly await the completion and implementation of the Lillooet Land and Resource Management Plan, and action on the same front in the Merritt area.

"The challenges ahead are many but given the quality of the people in the province and the abundance of resources, we can succeed."

Hedley has more gold!

— new find at Nickel Plate looks good

The downtown portion of the Trans Canada Trail is showing steady improvements. Last week, bridge timbers were put in place to outline the path through the downtown area. Where the trail passes the Chamber of Commerce office, a sign was put up to direct people to where they want to go, and parking signs were put in place. Princeton Redi-Mix moved the beams. The crew, left to right, standing: Lyle Thomas, Mayor Randy McLean, Councillor Lorne Esselink, Vermilion Trails Society Vice-President Jim Stolth. Seated, left to right: Councillors Keith Olsen and Dan Sulentich, Chris Hassell (loader operator) and Bob Coyne.

There is the possibility of a new gold mine on Nickel Plate Mountain. A company called Goldcliff Resource Corporation staked its Panorama Ridge Property in the Hedley Gold Basin last September. The claims are located east and southeast of the original Panorama Ridge claims adjoining the holdings of Homestake Canada at Nickel Plate. It is situated 3.5 km. directly east of the Nickel Plate mine.

Leonard W. Saleken, President, told the News Leader the exploration is "in the very early stages." Although Goldcliff has the capability to put a mine into production, should the exploration live up to the early promise it shows, the company would prefer to sell the claims to a mining enterprise.

The claims were staked, Saleken said, when construction of a logging road by Weyerhaeuser exposed an ore outcrop.

Prospecting by Goldcliff located old hand pits and bulldozer trenches as well as new gold showings. The trenching was conducted by Placer Done in 1985. Goldcliff discovered what they call the Nordic prospect containing gold values ranging from 0.44 to 0.48 grams of gold per tonne and the Spar showing, a high-grade gold-skarn containing 0.58 ounces of gold per tonne (18.04 grams per tonne)

The company states the exploration target area is large enough "to host a world-class gold deposit of similar size to the Nickel Plate mine."

Exploration of the site continues this summer. Trenching is the initial activity, to be followed by drilling at some point in the future.

Fall Fair is packed with fun

Princeton's annual Fall Fair will be different this year, but thanks to the tremendous efforts of Garnet Woodford and his committee, there will be more entertainment than the fair has seen in years. The fair will be a showcase for local talent, with musicians and singers from all over the valley.

There are a few old-time fiddlers practicing their stuff for a jam session at the fair, and anyone with a fiddle is invited to join the fun. The word is out that Len Brewer, Bert Sharkey and André Patry are bringing their fiddles to the fair.

Youth talent will be on display, too. Two young singers are coming from the Keremeos area to entertain. In fact, there is so much entertainment planned, there will be two stages at the fair, one located near the Junior Fair section, where the Girl Guide activity centre will keep youngsters busy.

Other youth talent will work at the fair. Woodford said Lyle Thomas has promised to bring a number of youth to the fair to be involved in organizing and helping with the many events.

The demolition derby is a key attraction at the fair. Princeton Lions Club is assisting with security for the derby, and will do the refreshment garden, too.

Princeton Hotel and Labbatt's are sponsoring the demolition derby trophies in 10 categories.

Logger sports are sponsored by major equipment companies who will be coming to the fair to display the latest equipment.

Portable bleachers will be in use throughout the fair to ensure everyone has a good view of events.

The audit of last year's books was conducted by Graham Gould, who gave the Fall Fair a clean bill of health, but recommended improvements in some office procedures.

Many more volunteers are needed for the actual fair days. Anyone wishing to volunteer can leave name and phone number at the News Leader or Kevin Acres.

The hamper raffle and engine blow-up tickets were on sale at the "yard" sale held last Saturday morning at the Town Hall parking lot. Plans are for five big hampers worth $200 each to be raffled and the prizes drawn at the fair. The hampers will contain gift certificates, really nice gifts and food.

Fall Fair booklets are available now at the Chamber of Commerce office and at the News Leader office. These booklets give the rules for exhibitors and the general rules for the fair.

Fall Fair booklets will be taken to Keremeos and Cawston fruit stands and Similkameen Country this week to help South Similkameen exhibitors plan their entries.

Little Britches Rodeo will start and finish on the first day of the fair. It will be followed by the demolition derby. After the derby is over, the Town of Princeton has paid for a great fireworks display.

One of the disappointments is the lack of vendors this year. Only three have sent in their requests for space, and the deadline is August 1. Contact 295-6014 for space.

Community supports D.A.R.E.

RCMP Cst. Bryce Petersen of Keremeos is attached to South Okanagan Highway Patrol, but he does another job as well - he is a qualified D.A.R.E. Program instructor. This program teaches children how to avoid drug, alcohol and tobacco use. Cst. Petersen instructed the program in Princeton with Grade 5 students, who had a graduation ceremony in May at the Skills Centre with a "standing room only" audience to cheer the youngsters.

On July 26, Cst. Petersen was in Princeton to receive evidence of community support for the program.

Princeton Lions Club presented him with a cheque for $1,000, which will be enough to cover most of the costs of training one of the Princeton Detachment members to become D.A.R.E. instructors. This is the first year Princeton Lions have donated to the D.A.R.E. Program, and they hope to make it an ongoing project if all of the members agree to support it.

Cst. Petersen cautioned against having just one organization sponsoring the program.

"The whole community has to be involved," he stated.

Shortly after the Lions Club presentation, John Babiak, owner of Princeton Dairy Queen, arrived with a cheque for $350 from the Dairy Queen "coffee refill" box. People who pay for a refill of their cups of coffee contribute to the D.A.R.E. Program.

New hunting regulations are available now

The 2001 British Columbia game hunting regulations are available now. Although there are few changes, hunters are advised to obtain a copy of the booklet and read it carefully.

The booklet is available at the Conservation Office in the Provincial Building Tuesday through Friday (mornings only) and from the Government Agent's office in the same building, or from any vendor selling hunting licences.

Hospice is dedicated to local nurse

Numerous members of Adele Nesbitt's family, many who had travelled from Manitoba, shed tears as the new Adele Nesbitt Hospice was dedicated to her memory. The dedication ceremony took place on Monday, July 23, at Princeton General Hospital.

Fred Thomas, Chair of the Hospice Committee, began by welcoming Adele's family, friends and colleagues. He said it had been "a real privilege to know Adele." He gave some of the history of the hospice vision, describing how Dr. Doug Reid had mentioned to Adele the need for it and asked her if she would mind if such a facility was named after her. Adele had given the project her support and was touched that they would think of naming it in her memory.

Nesbitt, who had worked as a nurse at Princeton General Hospital for 22 years, died last December 7 at the age of 42 after a long, brave battle with cancer. She had been not only a nurse, but a friend to many, and an active member of the community.

"I can't think of a better tribute to Adele," Fred Thoams said.

Eric Goodfellow, before the dedication prayer, spoke of the hospice as a facility to care for patients and their families, and to improve the quality of life for patients during their last days, providing emotional, physical and spiritual support. He thanked the committee, the crew and all those who assisted in making it happen, then asked God's blessings.

The plaque had been concealed behind Adele's student nurse uniform and cap. Her bother, Les Roseveare, stepped forward to cut the threads holding the uniform in place.

Similkameen Health Administrator Marilyn Harkness spoke on behalf of the hospital staff, saying, "Much love has gone into creating this facility."

Harkness thanked everyone involved with the project, and noted the HSA could have picketed the hospital, but did not, out of respect for Adele's memory.

"This community should be so proud of themselves, the staff and Adele," Harkness concluded.

Jim Roseveare, another of Adele's brothers, gave a short speech on behalf of the family.

"We are moved beyond words at the generosity of this community," he began. "We were witness to the love and devotion returned to Adele."

He went on to thank many people, and ended, "For as long as this hospice exists, Adele shall exist within Princeton Hospital."

Fred Thomas talked of the hundreds of people who had donated money, both individuals and service organizations, to raise over $20,000.

"The staff calls it Adele's room," Thomas said, through tears.

He added the excess would go to maintaining the facility or providing anything the committee may see as a need.

In conclusion, Thomas said the hospice committee is considering a dedicated chapel in the hospital as a project, and will work on a palliative care program.

There was to have been a tree planted in Adele's memory, but it did not arrive in time, and will be planted at a later date.

Adele Nesbitt's brother cuts the threads holding her student nurse uniform to unveil the plaque dedicating the hospice facility at Princeton General Hospital in her name. Looking on is Eric Goodfellow, who conducted the dedication ceremony.

Hedley plans second celebration

Last year, Hedley celebrated "Golden Days" for the first time. This year, Hedley Community Club is planning a second Hedley Days event on Saturday, August 25.

There will be games for children, a duck race down the creek, and a barbecue at the ball park in the evening. There will be a refreshment garden at the ball park, and a dance at the ball park starting at 8:00 p.m. Eric Hache of Princeton is supplying the music. The barbecue and dance are open to all ages, as the refreshment area is segregated. Everyone in the valley is welcome to attend.

There may be more activities at the museum, but plans are not finalized. There has been some discussion among artisans about the possibility of having an arts and crafts display and/or sale. Look for further information in the future.

Last year's celebration went on all weekend, but Helen Martens, of the Hedley Heritage Museum Society, told the News Leader there is some uncertainty about a second day of events. The Museum Society had more womanpower last year.

Estate Planning: Time Well Spent - PART 2

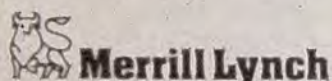

Due largely to the increase in probate fees in Ontario ("probate" is a legal process that validates a will), many Canadians are reviewing their estate planning program. Many people are attempting to reduce the amount of assets that fall into their estate which would be subject to probate fees. Reducing the size of your estate also helps to cut down on executor fees, which usually amount to about three to five per cent of the value of the estate. You can reduce these costs by adhering to the following strategies:

- Make sure that your spouse is the beneficiary of your RRSP or RRIF.
- Establish a living trust.
- Draft your will very carefully, and always refer to your legal advisor for advice.
- Review your will every few years.

In summary, we would like to suggest four easy steps to follow right now:

- 1) Review your estate plan in light of higher probate fees.
- 2) Consider steps to have assets pass directly to your spouse or other beneficiaries without the formality of probate. Professional advice is needed in this area.
- 3) Take into account family law, the possibility of common disaster, and tax implications.
- 4) Since estate planning can be complex, talk to a professional.

If you don't take the time to organize your estate carefully, your plans are not likely to be fulfilled. Contrary to popular belief, your lawyer or accountant will not look after this for you, unless you specifically ask them to. While no one likes to talk about planning for death, your wishes can be filled with as little aggravation to you as possible if you take a few simple steps. Seek qualified advice and take action today.

Kennedy and Iverson marry

by Patty Harrower

Between 200 and 250 guests attended the outdoor garden wedding of Caleb Kennedy and Jennifer Iverson at 3:00 p.m. at the home of Kennedy's mother. The ceremony was performed in a light afternoon rain by the Groom's Great Aunt, Kitty Bengston, Marriage Commissioner from Kimberly, B.C.

The bride wore a cream coloured floor length gown of silk made by her mother, Karen Iverson. The flower girl was Autumn Kennedy, two year old daughter of the bride, and the ring bearer was the Groom's nephew Ethan. A reception was held after the ceremony.

After honeymooning in Victoria, the couple plan to make their home in Keremeos.

LSIB Manager resigns

Dixon Terbasket is ready for change

by Patty Harrower

Dixon Terbasket has tendered his resignation after serving 3-1/2 years as what was originally intended to be interim Manager for the Lower Similkameen Indian Band. He said he wants to return to field work.

Terbasket wants to change the way others view the First Nations philosophy of protecting their sustenance. He wants to be active in fish, wildlife, land and water management and watershed logging studies.

Dixon Terbasket

"We need to clean up the environment, hold community planning sessions and educate the people," Terbasket said. "I want to clarify our goals so we get the best bang for our dollars."

Terbasket wants to be involved in negotiations between the band and government agencies in order take advantage of economic opportunities for the people. He wants forestry companies to be more accountable to everyone.

When the Delgamuux Supreme Court ruling in December 1997 clarified aboriginal rights entitlement, First Nations began negotiating with forestry companies. "We need access to the (wood) fibre in order to take advantage of value added industries like furniture making," said Terbasket. Band unemployment rates have dropped from 85% to less than 50%. With more employment opportunities, that figure is sure to improve. Lower unemployment will mean a better quality of life for everyone.

Anyone with native ancestry interested in becoming Band Manager for the LSIB will be given preference, and should forward resumes to the attention of The Lower Similkameen Indian Band Chief and Council, Box 100, Keremeos B.C. VOX 1N0. Deadline for applications is August 29, 2001. A copy of the job posting with qualifications and requirements can be picked up at the Band Office, 517 - 7th Avenue in Keremeos.

Cariboo Clem welcomes ghost town visitors

Cariboo Clem, in his retirement years, is bringing Granite City back to life. It is his "retirement project", he says.

He moved his little travel trailer to Granite City on May 8 for his second year of greeting visitors to the site and promoting the history of the Coalmont area.

Cariboo Clem is Al Boy's nickname. He earned it during his years at Barkerville. For 10 years, he and his burro, Polita, walked from Barkerville to Quesnel for Billy Barker Days. He and Polita won the prize for Best Dressed Prospector for 10 years in a row.

Cariboo Clem not only knows how to promote Granite City to visitors, he has taken the time to study the history of the gold rush ghost town, as well as the story of Blakeburn and the history of Coalmont. What he wants to do is start a heritage society, find some money (some through annual dues), and try to have a little restorative work done at both sites. Local people have given some help, which he greatly appreciates. Bob Smart and friends built an official visitors centre with lumber donated by Ernie Rice. Larry Liss made a beautiful sign for the building, and is helping organize a heritage society.

"The society hasn't been registered yet," Cariboo Clem told the News Leader. "We could collect dues to give us a start."

What he would really like to see at the site is a photo museum displaying the historical photos of Granite City, Blakeburn and Coalmont.

He reckoned he would have to talk to somebody in Victoria, and hoped Premier Campbell would have a truckload of money to give away for heritage sites.

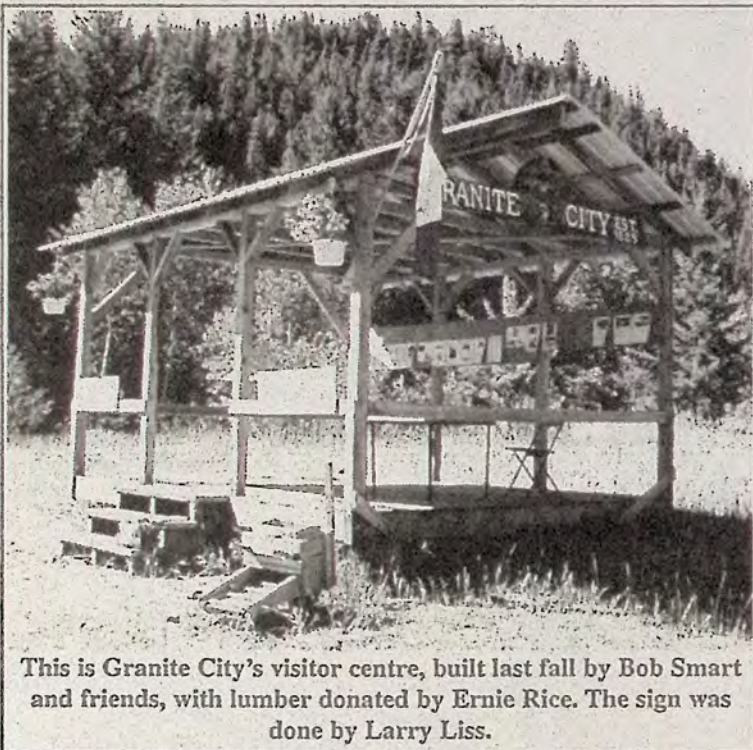

There is a guest book in the visitor's centre, which has over 400 signatures in it this year. Two bicycle tours and four bus tours have visited the site. Many people just "arrive" at Granite Creek because they have seen Bill Barlee's television program and want to take a look at the old gold rush creek.

Cariboo Clem shows people around the site, and points the way run out Otter Lake Road.

Organizers expect more competitors on Saturday, as a lot of people wait until just before the event to register.

At 1:00 p.m., there will be a baron of beef barbecue in the recreation area behind Tulameen Community Hall, and the awards will be given out at that time. There are medals and prizes for each category.

Asset development and community pride can work hand-in-hand

by Nadine McEwen

Princeton is becoming an asset-building community! As a community, we are beginning to give youth what they need to succeed in life. We are learning about the 40 developmental assets young people need to make wise decisions, choose positive paths, become responsible, caring individuals. The 40 developmental assets are grouped into eight categories: support - young people need to experience support, care and love from their families and community; empowerment - young people need to be valued by their community and have opportunities to contribute to others; boundaries and expectations - young people need to know what is expected of them; constructive use of time - everyone needs constructive, enriching opportunities for growth; commitment to learning - developing a lifelong commitment to education and learning; positive values - developing strong values that guide one's choices; social competencies - young people need skills that equip them to make positive choices, build relationships and succeed in life; positive identity - young people need a strong sense of their own power, purpose, worth and promise.

Princeton should be proud of itself for the many asset development initiatives it encourages. The many different community groups that encourage, empower and reinforce young people with positive activities each day, week and month are fantastic. It takes a community to raise a child and our community is meeting that challenge through its asset-building actions. Every community group or organization in Princeton can build assets and make a difference in young people's lives. Whether your organization has direct contact with young people or not, your interest in, and commitment to, an asset-building vision are important. Your group can post the list of assets in key high-traffic areas, invite speakers to talk about asset building topics or recognize and publicize outstanding builders in the community.

The asset building framework includes everyone in our community - families, schools, neighbourhoods, congregations, organizations, businesses and individuals. Strong relationships between adults and young people, young people and their peers, and teenagers and children are central to asset building. Taking time to smile, say hello, talk with or just hang out with a young person means the world to everyone.

A story about a girl, a boy, and "Blue Hair" by J-Lee White, a grade 7 student, and Alice Cook.

My name is Alice Cook, and together with the help of my granddaughter J-Lee White, we will tell you the story of "Blue Hair".

My story begins when I was twelve years old and a grade seven student at Roseisle Intermediate School in Manitoba.

One day in class, a boy named George, who was sitting right behind me, dipped the tips of my hair into the inkwell on his desk. (You see, at that time we used quill pens to dip into ink to do our school work.) George thought that this was a very funny thing to do, and he kept doing this to my hair quite often. Finally my mother became very angry, as she was tired of having to clean the ink out of my hair and removing stains from my clothes. So, I told George to leave me alone.

George stopped messing with my hair for a short time, but then started up again. One day when he tried to pull his practical joke again, I turned around and threatened to smack him if he did it once more. George just laughed and said, "I'll mess with your hair if I want to." Later, when he dipped my hair into the inkwell again, I turned with my textbook in hand and smacked him right on the head! Well, I got in trouble from the teacher for doing that, but the best revenge was that George's punishment was to move to the front of the class, right beside the teacher's desk, until the end of the year (from March till the end of June!).

I was very happy with George's punishment, and I didn't have anymore inkstains on my hair and clothes for the rest of the school year.

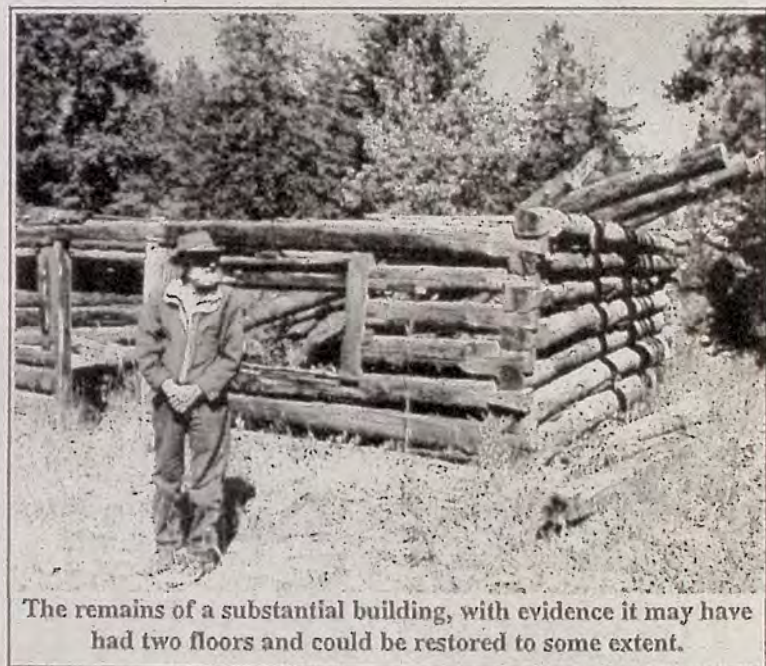

In September, George and I started high school and ended up in the same class, but he left me alone because he had found a new girl to drive crazy! Eventually, George outgrew his annoying ways, and we both left high school. I left Manitoba to go and work in other provinces and never saw George again, this is until four years ago, while I was on a visit to Manitoba, I walked into a restaurant with a friend and this very nice gentleman held open the door for us.

I did not recognize the gentleman because it had been fifty years! My friend told me that I should know him because I went to school with him, and then my friend told me who the man was. I was very surprised, because of course, after fifty years, you wouldn't really know what someone looked like. After my friend told me who he was, I asked George if he remembered about how he used to always dip the ends of my hair in the inkwell, but he denied it, and said that he would never do a thing like that to anyone.

Then George and I had a chuckle, and then he told me that when he first seen me walking toward the restaurant he didn't recognize me either - must have been because my hair wasn't blue!

The remains of a substantial building, with evidence it may have had two floors and could be restored to some extent.

The News Leader interview with Cariboo Clem came to a halt when a van pulled in and a woman holding a book came toward us.

"I have this old book and it has a picture of this place in it," she began, extending the book, pages open to the picture of Granite City in its heyday.

"We've got that picture and some more up this way," Cariboo Clem told her. In no time, the woman's husband joined her and they sauntered off up the road, with Clem telling them all about Granite City.

Museum report

Princeton Museum welcomed 197 visitors during the week July 20 to 26. Most of the visitors were from the lower mainland, but there were a few from Hong Kong, Peru, Manitoba and Alberta.

A former resident of Princeton area returned for information about Kettle Valley Railroad, for whom he had worked. The archivist was in the museum and helped him find information and old photos. He was excited when he saw friends and workmates in the photos.

Council rewards staff

Mayor Randy McLean announced there will be awards for four members of Town of Princeton staff presented at the August 7 Council meeting.

Len Liberatore and Ken Silovich will receive 25 year awards. Henry Rykers and Janelle Ceccon will receive 15 year awards.

Mayor McLean stated, "The fact cannot be over-emphasized how much our community benefits from the contribution our inside and outside staff make each and every day. These people are very aware that they are responsible for taxpayers' dollars and when given the opportunity, they are constantly finding ways to stretch those dollars."

Mayor McLean said these employees have not only established very good personal work habits, they have set a high standard which has been followed by newer employees. "When comparing municipal costs with other communities our size, the reason that we are one of the lowest is a direct result of the responsibility and cost effectiveness shown by our staff," Mayor

McLean said. "When we talk of assets in Princeton, one of them is at the very foundation of our community and that is our municipal staff. If you are able to attend on August 7, or you just see them on the street, take a moment to acknowledge the years of dedication and effort they have given to Princeton."

Parents take note of this

On July 23, a 13 year old Princeton youth was involved in a bicycle accident on Tulameen Avenue near Asp Street in Princeton. The youth was riding his bicycle down a hill when he lost control of the bicycle and fell hard onto the pavement.

He suffered a blow to his head. He was wearing a helmet which was severely damaged, but definitely prevented him from receiving serious head injuries. He is recovering from many road rash injuries.

RCMP are asking anyone who witnessed the accident, or was present shortly after it, and has not spoken to police, to call 295-6911.

Small town living – an invitation to relax and reduce stress

One of the most wonderful times of year comes to the Similkameen Valley in September. The warm days, cool nights, and clear skies make us feel mellow and blessed. The rest of the year, it is our visitors who tell us we are blessed, and remind us to appreciate what we have. One of the things we do not have is the same level of stress that many of our visitors experience daily. Of course, our small towns produce some stress, such as family changes, deaths, divorces and births, but these come to people everywhere. When a flood or storm threatens, we feel stress, but these events are common to everyone in every location.

An article on measuring daily stress added 20 stress points to the total if it took a person more than 15 minutes to drive to work. Think about city traffic, driving for half an hour to work, and another half hour driving home at the end of the day. That totals one whole hour of city traffic stress every day. In small towns, even if it takes more than half an hour to drive to work, chances are the road has little traffic and the biggest worry is hitting a deer or wandering cow. For most people who live in small towns, the drive to work takes 10 minutes or less, and plenty of people simply walk the distance, further reducing daily stress levels.

Walking is a great stress reliever, and people in small towns have few worries about taking a long walk. The air is clean, the environment is peaceful, and the chances of being mugged are remote in most small towns. An evening walk in the city means seeking somebody to walk with and taking the pepper spray (and not for dogs!). Even a walk can be stressful in the city.

Levels of stress go up considerably when a person does not feel safe. It is easier to feel unsafe, even behind locked doors, when living in a city. Home invasions are far more frequent an experience for those who live in a city environment.

One of the ways of reducing stress is to live in a caring environment. Small towns are good at caring. If you have something happen, such as a house fire, a car accident or a serious illness, people will care enough to ask what they can do to help. The knowledge that somebody cares reduces stress, and the help they give further reduces stress. In a city, people feel that nobody cares, and that feeling, all by itself, is stress-producing.

Many people leave the city to retire in a small town because they can finally live in a less stressful environment. It is a pity so many people cannot leave the stressful environment until they retire, because stress shortens lifespan, reduces immunity, and affects emotional well-being.

A healthy community is a place where one can live with a feeling of safety, security, and little stress caused by living conditions. The experts rate environmental stress factors as lower in small towns than in cities. There is less traffic, less serious crime, more caring people in the neighbourhood, a better opportunity for safe recreation within the immediate environment, and greater personal safety. Small towns are good.

Preserving food for winter is worth the effort.

Why don't you ever see the headline "Psychic wins lottery?"

Enjoying and keeping the good food of summertime

Vitamin supplements are not substitutes for real fruit and vegetables. At this time of year, it is important to keep this in mind and go for the real thing. We live in an area blessed with a high production of good quality fruit and vegetables, and it is important to make the most of them while they are in season. The next best thing is home preserving of nature's bounty. A lot of people do not feel there is a lot of value in home canning, but nutritionists advise that fruit preserved in glass jars is superior in quality to fruit in metal cans. A cost comparison between the cost of home preserving and purchasing cans will soon show you get more for your money doing it yourself.

Freezing vegetables and fruit at home is a good way to preserve summer's bounty. Most vegetables can be successfully frozen. The key is to blanch (dip in boiling water) well. This stops the enzymes that cause change in flavour and deterioration of quality. There are books available from your library to tell you details. Sometimes, a particular kind of plant will yield the best quality for freezing. For example, purple string beans are far superior to regular green beans when frozen. Strawberries, blueberries, saskatoons and huckleberries freeze well without blanching (just a good rinsing, then shake sugar through them).

The reason for relying on the real thing rather than supplements, especially at this time of year, is because the real thing is far more potent than the supplement. You might think you are merely indulging your taste buds when you buy a watermelon, but you will be rewarding your body with some powerful nutrients – watermelon is good for you! If you can eat a vegetable raw, it is even better than cooked or preserved, so make the most of your summertime salads. These good things you eat may strengthen your heart and preserve your eyesight.

RECREATION & TV GUIDE

TUESDAY, JULY 31 THROUGH MONDAY, AUGUST 6, 2001

A friend helps Ellen Wight, age 82, has a little help from a friend who holds on to her to prevent her from being pulled into the river as she reels in her big salmon.

With the salmon safely in the net, Ellen and Don Wight are happy fishermen.

Grandma Wight weighs her big spring salmon.

Granny lands a big one!

It was June 27, 2001! Eighteen or 20 fishermen/women were sitting in lawn chairs waiting for their bells to ring. Each had his salmon rod propped in a homemade rod holder firmly embedded in the riverbank. They were fishing the famous Bailey Bridge Hole of the Bella Coola River. I was one of them.

Our reels were filled with 20# test, some even 30# test, lines. When you fish for 30lb. and up spring salmon, just in from salt water, you sure don't want a weak line. When you hook one it's like taking on a runaway horse. These fish are real powerhouses!

Our lures were Spin and Glow, a brightly coloured, buoyant lure which rotates rapidly in the water due to flexible wings embedded in the body. They remind me of the nose and propellers of an airplane. They spin so rapidly you can actually feel them moving on the end of your line 75 feet away!

While sitting there, the anglers kibitz and read. Some even sleep.

We all wait for the little cowbell attached to the rod tip to ring when the fish hits. All bells sound more or less alike, a mad rush occurs when one rings.

It's amazing - 18 or so formerly sleepy, lazy anglers all dash for their rods. Only one will find it was his or her bell. Then everyone but the lucky angler reels in the lines. They stand by, some offering 'side-walk superintendent advice such as "keep the rod tip up" or "don't let it get down those rapids" or "hang on, buddy, it's at least 40 pounds!" or some other encouragement. Everyone smiles. The fish are in the pool and all is well again.

After 15-30 minutes, on average, the spring will be tired out and brought in to be landed. This is the crucial time, but that day, all went well. The 30 pound spring was safely landed.

Ellen Wight is 82 years old. She and her husband, Don, also 82, had travelled all the way to Bella Coola from Maple Falls, Washington. They had been fishing for a few days with no success, so this was their first salmon - a beautiful red spring. While the photo shows the scale at 29 pounds, we can assume the fish must have flopped when the photo was taken and, of course, with some of its weight in the air, allowances on the plus side must be made.

I did not actually see Ellen catch this fish, but as I walked out from the parking lot to the pool, I heard shouts and someone saying a little grandmother had caught a big one. Ellen is an ardent fisherwoman and fishes almost every summer day from their dock in front of their home on Silver Lake. She catches her share of fish, too, and gives many away to neighbours who call her the "Queen of the Lake." This red spring (they come in white-flashed and red-flashed varieties) was Ellen's largest fish ever. Look at the photo and you will see a very proud fisherwoman. She was lots of fun to talk to and certainly earned her big one.

(For all signs: The long weekend is badly aspected for travel)

TAURUS - You will feel much better this week, and on Saturday night, you could feel the effects of major changes in your life or in the lives of those close to you. Do not drive anywhere this weekend. Stay home.

GEMINI - This is not a good week for you. Brace yourself for difficulties around your neighbourhood and expect car trouble. The weekend is especially full of problems. Lay low and take life easy.

CANCER - You may experience some financial changes related to your employment or due to health problems. You should get a complete physical examination this week even though you feel fine.

LEO - You are very outspoken this week regarding family matters and you may push for real change this weekend. If you are involved in sports, take extra precautions to be safe and drive carefully.

LIBRA - If you plan to travel with groups of friends this weekend, be extra cautious. Your plans may have to be changed permanently regarding your future occupation. Do some serious planning.

THANK YOU!
A heartfelt thank you to Dr. Doug Reid, Brenda & Barb for your care and kindness during my recent stay in hospital. Also to Grace and Bert Lawrence for caring for Bear so Jim could make his many trips to Penticton. To Ruth and Eric Goodfellow, Bert and Grace Lawrence, Betty and Fred Reheis, Bill and Sharron Rose, and Jo-ann Esselink for your gifts of flowers, food and soaps. And last but not least, to our customers who seemed to tolerate early closures and peculiar hours. Things are back to normal and we look forward to seeing you.
Thanks again.

9 IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY OF TED GEE
June 4, 1954 to August 2, 1994

Seven years have gone by but memories remain forever.

*A heart of gold stopped beating
Hard working hands at rest
God broke our hearts to prove to us,
He only takes the best.
The leaves and flowers may wither
The golden sun may set
But the hearts that love so dearly
Are the ones that won't forget.*

*Always in our hearts,
Therese, Tasha & Justin*

How to earn your driver's licence

by South Okanagan Highway Patrol

New drivers in B.C. are issued Learners or Novice categories of drivers licences according to the class of vehicle they will be operating (motorcycles, cars, etc.) For car drivers, a Class 7 licence would be issued.

As in years past, there is a Learners Class 7 licence. However, there are now strict conditions which a driver must adhere to or face suspension. These conditions are: no alcohol in the driver's body, an L (new driver) sign must be clearly visible at the rear of the vehicle, the driver must be accompanied by a person who is at least 19 years of age with a valid driver's licence of the appropriate class for the vehicle. This person must sit beside the learner. Only one other passenger is allowed in addition to the person supervising the learner. The learner cannot drive between midnight and 5:00 a.m. The Learner period lasts six months.

Following the six-month period, the Learner will take a road test with a driver examiner and if successful, will graduate to a Class 7 Novice licence. In the past, the Learner would have simply graduated to a full-fledged licence. Now, the Novice period lasts for 18 months. The Novice driver has conditions that must be complied with. These are 1) an N (new driver) sign must be clearly displayed at the rear of the vehicle and 2) the novice driver cannot have any alcohol in his/her body. Learner and Novice drivers will quickly find themselves suspended if they are convicted of moving violations (for examples: speeding, unsafe pass, etc.) or failing to display the new driver sign.

Vehicle Licence Plates

Vehicles registered in B.C. must display both front and rear licence plates. Certain vehicles are exempt, such as motorcycles, ATV's, etc. Cars and pick-ups must display both plates. There are exemptions for these vehicles as well, such as for Demonstration (dealer) plates, Repairman (mechanic) plates, and Transporter plates. This may seem an insignificant violation for a motorist to be pulled over for, but murderers have been caught, lives saved, and drug traffickers caught by peace officers checking out this 'insignificant' violation. Criminals often travel by vehicle and often transport drugs or stolen property in the vehicle. In one incident that occurred right here in the Okanagan a victim was found locked in the trunk of his stolen car after the perpetrator produced a gun and was shot by a peace officer at the side of the road. That vehicle was pulled over to check out its licence plate and permit. To this day, that victim is thankful the peace officer checked out that "insignificant - don't you have anything better to do" violation.

Why is it considered necessary to nail down the lid of a coffin?

Log sorting lot means more local jobs

by Patty Harrower

Upper Similkameen Indian Band manager Philippe Batini is looking at crown lot 983 above Bromley Station Pub for a log sort lot, which he says should attract value added business and bring more jobs to the Princeton area.

Loggers will bring in loads containing all sizes and species to the lot. Sorting will help to ensure less waste of logs. Instead of having to accept full loads no matter what grade or size the logs are, customers will be able to choose the exact sizes and kinds they need.

Batini said, "People are willing to pay a little more for each log, if it is exactly what they want, because they will not be paying for logs that they cannot use."

Batini is currently working with forestry on a program to re-introduce fire on a limited basis as a means to ensure healthy forests able to sustain the industry. When a forest becomes too old and weak it strangles, growing in upon itself. Berries become too big and woody for animals to eat, even if they can manage to travel through the dense brush to get to them. Heavy growth blocks access to the water supply as well.

Nothing grows, and the forest becomes a target for pine beetle and other destructive bug infestation.

Fire, properly managed as a tool, renews the forest and makes room for new growth. The ash remaining after a burn is extremely high in nutrients which re-enter the soil. Fire is necessary for certain tree seeds to germinate. The high temperature causes pine cones to burst open releasing their seeds into the soil.

Batini is working with the Ministry of Forests to have controlled burns in the August Lake, Copper Mountain and Allenby areas soon.

The sign donated by John and Sheila Owens was erected last week on Highway 5A north of Princeton, replacing the former dilapidated "Welcome to Princeton" sign.

OUR VIEW

The long weekend is no excuse for stupidity

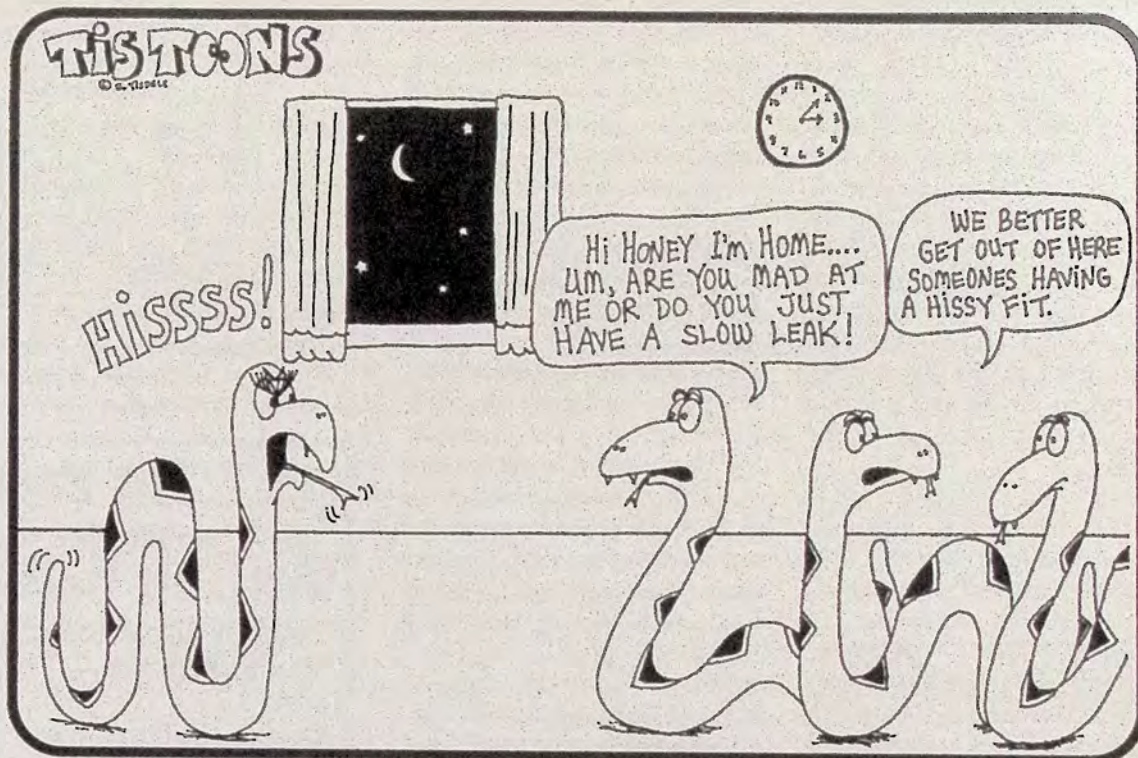

The annual long weekend in August has traditionally been a time for a lot of fun at Tulameen, but last year it turned violent and this year there will be no tolerance whatsoever for breaking the law. To many lower mainland people, our area appears to be a location where there is no law and they can do as they please, when they please, without any liabilities encountered in the city. They may be in for a rude awakening this year.

Many solutions have been suggested for the problems Tulameen faces as local people try to enjoy a celebration and some good clean fun. The invasion from the lower mainland brings nothing but trouble for local residents. There have been a lot of suggestions but the bottom line is this: the kind of action Tulameen people could take would merely re-locate the trouble or make it worse.

The extra policing this weekend will help, but there is a responsibility on the part of all citizens to do their best to report incidents to the police and to be aware of the potential for problems.

This is a difficult weekend for police in any year. Highway patrol must watch for the weekenders on the highway, many of whom are not in the best condition for driving. This weekend has a reputation for being one of the worst for accidents and no doubt will hang on to that reputation this year.

This is a great weekend to stay home and stay sober and alert, because there are going to be a lot of irresponsible people coming our way. Not only police, but Forest Service personnel and emergency service personnel will be watchful for fires, lost people, accidents and disturbances. Try to do your part by being sane and safe.

Here is another idea for spending money

Dear Editor;

Re - last week's editorial as to where to spend the money generated by our community forests.

One only needs to look at our local cemetery to know that a big portion of it should be spent on proper irrigation, pest control (moles) and proper maintenance.

Shame on us, do we have no respect for our departed loved ones?

Fortunately, my husband and I are still capable of handling a pair of snippers, rake, shovel and a box of moth balls. But for those who can't, how disheartening it must be to see their loved one's final resting place in such terrible condition.

On Father's Day, we left the cemetery in total disgust. Countless grave markers were covered with four inches or more of dirt uprooted by moles, and the whole area was in need of a good grass cutting. Weeds and grass were a good foot tall around most of the grave stones.

We seemed to find the money for downtown beautification, which was made possible by a number of people who have since passed on. So, come on, Princeton, let's show respect and put some of that money into repairs on our cemetery. After all, most of us are going to end up there.

Sincerely,
Pat Lockhart,
Princeton.

Are B.C. voters really a "sophisticated electorate"?

Dear Editor:

In my quest for the truth, I read many op/ed pages of many newspapers. In recent times I have witnessed the increasing use of two rather intriguing phrases on these pages. I would like to discuss their use.

1) "B.C.'s sophisticated electorate": Just how sophisticated are we? to find out, let's go back 26 years. At that time, we elected a premier simply because he was the son of a popular ex-premier. This son-of-a-premier then took us into a six-year depression. When he was deemed a political liability, he stepped down in favour of a man with lots of glitz and no substance. We bought into this man's glamour only to find that he thought the premier's office was his for his own financial gain - in retribution, being the sophisticated lot that we are, we dumped him and elected a man of substance, only to hound him out of office for a faux-pas that was committed long before his time and, I presume, without his knowledge. Once again, being politically sophisticated, we swept into office a man who claimed to be shoveling money from the back of a truck at a time when all the pundits were calling for restraint. This man had to step down because of a criminal investigation into his conduct. I do not wish to draw any conclusions, as the investigation is ongoing, but after this man's resignation, once more we got a man of integrity as premier. After a short stint in office an election had to be called and we unceremoniously dumped him - this time we elected, in a landslide, a man with close ties to Vancouver's developers - yes, the same developers who are responsible for the leaky condos (a debacle that cost us much more than a few fast ferries). Then lastly, in our sophistication and in our federal riding, some 70 percent of our voters elected Canada's laughing stock.

2) "What goes around, comes around": I'm not at all sure what the users mean by this phrase - but if it means what I think it does then we are destined to pay dearly once more for our political sophistication.

Sincerely,
HP Toews

New line dancing group is building an entertainment repertoire

Dear Editor;
A new group of line dancers was started in November of 2000. The O.A.P. of Princeton is our sponsor. We use their hall on Billiter Avenue for our dance classes. They made a nice sign for us with our group's name on it. We take the sign with us when we perform. The O.A.P. provided the machine we needed for our music. We appreciate all their support.

Our dance teachers are Margaret Scarr and Lorraine Lance from Hedley. We started with about 10 of us, one being a male. Then others joined us as time went on. There are 14 steady dancers, one that comes sometimes, and two that came for a couple of weeks in June. They came from Tulameen and said they would be back in the fall. We then decided we needed a name. We finally decided on "Princeton Prancers."

Our first performance was for the O.A.P. here in Princeton. It was about four months after we started. We were then invited to the Ogopogo Round-up in Penticton. It was held at the Penticton Seniors Drop-in Centre. Each dance club performed two dances. Throughout the day, different dances were introduced for all to do. There were between 250 to 300 dancers there.

It was something very different and enjoyed by all. We have been invited to another Round-up in September. It will be in Winfield and we are looking forward to it.

We have entertained at several places here in Princeton. We've been to the Seniors' Branch #30 and at Vermilion Court, then at Legion Branch #56 and at Ridgewood Lodge.

We were in the Racing Days parade with some of the O.A.P. members. It was a lot of fun. Our finale performance for the summer was once again at Vermilion Court, but we are still having dance classes over the summer. They are at the O.A.P. Hall on Tuesday mornings.

We would love to have more ladies and gentlemen join us. As of now we still have just the one gentleman and he invites other males to join us. There is no age that is wrong, we are made up of different age groups. If this sounds like fun to you, come out and join us.

Princeton Prancers.

NDP calls for emergency debate

The New Democratic Party has just two Members in the B.C. Legislative Assembly, but Jenny Kwan and Joy McPhail are trying to do their job as the Opposition. Following the opening of the Summer Session on July 25, the two NDP MLAs called for an emergency debate on the transit strike in the lower mainland.

"The government likes to think of itself as decisive," McPhail commented. "They gave wealthy British Columbians a huge tax break a few hours after forming government, but when it comes to the plight of those who rely on transit, they are content to let things drag on indefinitely."

At the time of her remarks, the transit strike had been in effect for 116 day, nearly four months. McPhail said the provincial government has a number of tools at its disposal to put pressure on Translink Board to settle the strike. These tools include shutting off the tap of provincial revenues that flow to Translink from the provincial gas tax, legislating the recommendations of labour relations mediator Vince Ready, putting pressure on Translink Chair and Campbell ally George Puil and ordering Translink Board of Directors to vote on Vince Ready's report.

Jenny Kwan, elected to represent Vancouver-Mt. Pleasant, said the continuing intransigence of the provincial government and Translink poses a severe threat to people in her constituency.

"People in my community are some of the most vulnerable in society and rely on buses more than anywhere else in the province," Kwan stated. "These people appear not to matter much in Mr. Campbell's new era."

The provincial government may soon have to prove itself in settling longstanding labour disputes such as the transit strike and the many health unions' demands.

Heart Food

by Dave Machin

In the natural, when you turn a light switch on, electricity flows right into the lighting fixtures and the room lights up. Conversely, when you turn the switch off, the lights go out - no power. Most everybody has electrical outlets inside their houses. The electricity is there, but there is no manifestation of it whatsoever unless something is turned on. So, in the spiritual realm, the thing that turns on the heavenly power could be called the switch of faith. The power of God is available because is everywhere present and whatever power He has is present with Him. Many people think that if the power of God is present it will just manifest itself regardless of whether or not anyone believed in it or believed for it. So when nothing happens or appears to be happening, they get disillusioned. "God doesn't care about me" is what people think and end up saying. But the power of God is always everywhere present. God didn't leave most of His power somewhere else and forget about Princeton, where you are. No. God is beyond your mind, everywhere present with all of His ability, all of His capabilities, all of His power, waiting for you. But you must see that it's not a matter of the power getting the job done by itself. No. Every person must appropriate or activate His power for themselves for it to work. You must co-operate with God's spirit by believing in Him if you want to get His blessing (whatever that may be). The switch of faith must be turned on to receive from God and have His power flow into and through you. That switch is your mouth speaking what He says. Faith is released by speaking words with your mouth which bring God's power on the scene for you. Remember! God's power is everywhere present, just as electricity is, but there is a switch that must be turned on. God is good, His word is good and good all the time.

Kokanees sleep-over raises plenty of cash

Kokanee Summer Swim Club held a sleep-over relay marathon starting Friday night and going to Saturday morning. A wimmer had to be in the water every minute all during the night. When out of the pool, they had snacks, refreshments, and movies to watch. The photo above shows the last group of swimmers, who were not nearly as worn out as the instructors, who stayed all night to offer encouragement and keep the swimmers safe. Each youngster had a pledge sheet, and the overnight swim raised $1,000 for the club.

Escapee calls for rescue after night in the cold

A cold, wet, tired Coleby Pettigrew was happy to be back in police custody late Thursday afternoon, July 26, following his 30 hours of freedom. He had eluded three Serious Crimes officers from the Lower Mainland who had escorted him during a day pass from Surrey Pre-Trial Centre to the Jones Lake area west of Hope. He was handcuffed when he escaped into the dense bush to begin his outdoor adventure.

Police officers from Hope, Dog Handlers from Chilliwack and Air Services from Kelowna began a massive manhunt.

Pettigrew apparently waited until dark before making his way down Jones Lake hill, across the Trans Canada Highway, and onto the CN Rail tracks along the Fraser River, eluding police who were on guard at various points.

With Dog Handlers closing in on him along the railway tracks, he headed to the river, where he swam across to Herring Island. After a couple of attempts to swim back to shore (in which he nearly drowned), Pettigrew gave in to his hunger, cold and desire for a warm bed, and waved frantically from the island until he attracted someone's attention and the police were called.

Pettigrew had been in custody originally, awaiting trial on property crimes. He has now been charged with Escape Lawful Custody and appeared in Chilliwack Provincial Court on July 27.
