Stockwell Day talks to students about war

Stockwell Day Leader of the Opposition and the Canadian Alliance Party, visited Princeton Secondary School on Friday to talk with students in his riding about roles in Parliament.

Approximately 80 students crowded into the library to hear what their Member of Parliament had to say. Day was great with the students. He talked about how and why democratic government such as that of Canada came into being. He began with the Magna Carta and went on to talk about people rebelling against the nobility, looking for more say in government.

He described his role as a representative of Okanagan-Coquihalla riding, as part of a law-making body, and as the Opposition trying to hold the government to account.

From a rather engaging portrayal of his role, he changed the subject to the "awful situation" generated by terrorists. Referring to a speech by President Bush on September 20, Day told the students Canada agrees with Bush, taking the view that terrorists have declared war on democratic nations.

"We're not dealing with people who want to negotiate," Day said. "This is a different kind of enemy."

He said most wars are country against country, but this war is countries against individuals. He compared the situation to that of dealing with schoolyard bullies. "You have to band together to push the bully away and make him stop," Day commented.

He concluded his speech and asked for questions from the floor. Students hesitated only briefly, and asked many intelligent questions. One of the first questions was about what Day saw as important for his own riding.

"There could be a lot more jobs and opportunities here, more businesses, and I believe taxes should be reduced to encourage people to invest in businesses."

Car takes on tanker

The white car above was going east down to Whipsaw bridge, 9 km. west of Princeton, at approximately 2:00 p.m. September 20, when it went out of control and under the Vedder tanker truck shown in the background. It bent the tanker ladder, then spun around and collided with the car at left.

In the lower photo, B.C. Ambulance and Highway Rescue crews work to remove the driver from the wreckage of the white car. Injured persons were transported to Princeton General Hospital. Traffic was tied up for approximately one hour.

We shared the U.S. burden of grief

Princeton, like so many Canadian communities, joined together in a memorial service for those who lost their lives in the terrorist attacks on the United States on September 11, 2001. On Tuesday, September 18, a week after the attack on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, an estimated 500 local people, and a number of Americans, met at Cenotaph Park in the heart of town to express their sorrow over the thousands of lives lost in the attack.

The ceremony was spearheaded by Constable Gilles Gosselin of Princeton RCMP detachment. He was assisted by RCMP from Princeton, Keremeos and Merritt, Princeton Fire Department, BC Ambulance Service, South Okanagan Highway Patrol, BC Conservation Service, Ground Search and Rescue, and Highway Rescue. They, along with members of Royal Canadian Legion, Elks Lodge, U.S. Border Patrol, Oroville police, U.S. Immigration personnel, American Red Cross, Oroville Fire Department, and Okanagan Sheriff Office personnel, marched down Bridge Street to the park. Flags of both countries flew in the parade and decorated the stage. The traditional piper led the parade, followed by RCMP and Sheriff on horseback.

Dean Stinson, Master of Ceremonies, welcomed Americans to the stage, saying, "Our hearts and minds are joined with you." Continued on page 2

Elliott tells where PXA money went

George Elliott, President of Princeton Exhibition Association (PXA), had some answers for Town Council's questions about how the PXA spends its money. He added there seemed to be some confusion about the role played by the PXA and he would clarify that issue.

He explained the volunteer members of the PXA manage the fair grounds facility for the owner, the Town of Princeton.

Elliott went on to talk about the need for the rental rate structure developed two years ago.

"No one uses the facility for free," he told Council.

Rentals are the primary source of income for the PXA, and Elliott made it clear that the PXA has no intention of sharing grants with the user groups. He gave some history, saying when he became president the bank balance was $3,177, most of which would be spent on paying utility bills. The Board of Directors decided to hold the line on major expenses in order to build up financial resources.

He thanked Council for repairing the grandstand, adding the PXA had chosen to wait until that project was finished before spending money on the grounds. The bank balance had climbed to $17,638, and since the grandstand repairs were done, the PXA spent $14,738 on maintenance and upgrading. During that period, the PXA spent $5711 on utilities alone.

Income during that period totalled $13,575 from stall rentals, grounds rentals and grants from the Town and from Regional District.

Elliott dealt with totals - during the past 10 months, expenditures totalled $35,993.32, and grants totalled $6,000.

Elliott said, "Subtract grant monies and the total is $29,993.32 - money we saved taxpayers of Princeton."

Councillor Dan Sulentic said he still feels Regional District should give a grant equal to that given by the Town of Princeton, which is $4,000 a year.

When the memorial service was over, the crowd set their candles on the base of the cenotaph monument and the candles continued to burn through the evening in the empty town square.

The service began with singing O Canada and The Star-spangled Banner.

RCMP Sgt. Warren Dosko thanked Cst. Gosselin for organizing the service, and thanked everyone for attending.

Pastor Chris Haugland led a prayer for those who lost loved ones in the terrorist attack, and prayed for a "creative response" rather than violence.

Father Chris Byrne gave thanks to "the true heroes", the emergency service personnel who "put their lives on the line for us".

"Justice must be done," Father Chris said, "but what kind of justice?"

He preached against more evil and violence, and urged people to remember "we are united in a common humanity."

He warned everyone against being afraid.

"Fear is the greatest weapon of those who do evil," he said.

Pastor Peter Rytkonen, who is a search and rescue volunteer, gave praise to the emergency service personnel.

"Greater love has no one than to lay down his life for his friends," he recalled from the Bible. "The only way to fight evil is with love - love one another."

Pastor George Donovan began by saying, "Peace is an elusive state."

He went on to say people stir up trouble with greed and hate, then said prayers for those who suffered from grief and hurt.

Stockwell Day (standing, center) spent an hour in the library of Princeton Secondary School on Friday afternoon talking to students about Parliament, his role, and the war against terrorism.

He talked about the role of students on Student Council, making life better for all students. He described politics as "finding out what people want and seeing if you can deliver it."

One student asked, "Have you ever been asked to resign?"

Day responded, "All the time."

"Why do you keep going?" the student asked.

"Because I was elected to do a job," Day replied.

Other questions dealt with the legal implications of having terrorist cells in Canada, and whether Canada can be seen as weak in regard to allowing the wrong kind of people to enter.

Stockwell Day told the students Canada is known internationally as a nation that is "soft on these people." He said there is nothing wrong with the immigration laws, but the background checks need to be strengthened.

"Canada is not doing enough for anti-terrorist legislation," Day told the students. "We need laws like they have in England."

He added that Canada needs laws against raising money for terrorist groups, and he believes any group identified as engaging in terrorist activity should have its assets seized.

A student asked if this war on terrorists is about religion.

"The majority of the people of Islam, Muslims, do not endorse what has happened. This is not about religion, but some people might use the excuse of religion."

Students asked about how many and what kind of casualties there would be in this war, and Day reassured them the NATO nations want as few civilian casualties as possible. They wanted to know

Pastor Dave Kernick stated, "We've seen the worst of humanity and the best."

He noted a return to church and prayer during the past week, and asserted his esteem and love for America.

Father Chris led everyone in singing "America the Beautiful."

Deputy Mayor Lorne Esselink said, "We send our regrets and sympathy to all Americans and all those affected by this tragedy. We hope for a peaceful outcome."

Graham Reid, representing Member of Parliament Stockwell Day, thanked people for their participation to help Americans by sharing their burden of grief.

Allan Sanders, assistant to Dave Chutter, MLA, expressed Chutter's sympathy.

Tony Kefke, of the Oroville Fire Department, recalled his reaction to the horror on television the previous Tuesday, and said his spirit had not been broken. He saw the best of people in the rescue efforts. He concluded by saying, "God Bless my country, your country, and every peace-loving country in the world."

Members of each of the emergency services laid a wreath in memory of the emergency service workers who lost their lives in the rescue efforts, then Cst. Bryce Pedersen played "Taps" and the crowd, holding lighted candles, bowed their heads in silence.

The service concluded with the singing of God Bless America and Battle Hymn of the Republic.

As people dispersed, they took a moment to place their candles on the base of the Cenotaph monument. Later in the evening, when the park was empty, the candles still burned brightly.

INVESTMENT INSIGHTS

By John Vaccaro Financial Consultant for Merrill Lynch and Greg Stewart Associate Financial Consultant for Merrill Lynch

Early Thoughts On Market Implications

The following are excerpts from an article written by David Rosenberg, chief Canadian Economist & Strategist, Merrill Lynch Canada Inc.

"One obviously can't downplay the significance of Tuesday's horrific acts, but it's important for investors to separate the emotional impact from the economic impact. The near-term outlook has of course become very clouded, but we want to stress that while September 11th will never be forgotten, we believe that panic will not prove profitable.

As difficult as it is to imagine today, these sort of tragic events generally have not had a lasting effect on the economy or the investment landscape. There are not a lot of historical examples to draw from, but one oft-used analogy is Pearl Harbour - the Dow was 10% lower in the three months after the attack, but all that decline was recouped in the next nine months as the uncertainty dissipated and the rebuilding effort took hold.

So in the very near term, we would look for interest rates to come down sharply, bonds to rally, and the yield curve to steepen. Equity investors will likely move to a very conservative posture, moving into defensive sectors. Conventional wisdom has it that energy and gold stocks are a good place to 'hide', but this is likely very short-term thinking. For example, instead of Mideast oil disruptions, Saudi Arabia may well end up boosting crude production in order to help the global economy revive (there's also the ability to tap the Strategic Petroleum Reserve).

It isn't difficult to conclude that the next couple of quarters will see extremely soft GDP numbers. To be sure, whatever the odds of a global recession were on Monday (and some were already talking of such), those odds have since gone up. Even looking at the Gulf War back in 1990/91, much smaller in scale and in a far-away land, consumer confidence fell and spending was curtailed for several months.

But we are of the view that the markets will quickly price this in, and if past proves prescient, overreactions will provide long-term opportunities. As tough as it is right now to contemplate recovery prospects, the bigger risk could well be that the markets underestimate the lagged impact of what surely will be further aggressive monetary relief and fiscal easing (possibly further tax cuts, military and infrastructure spending)."

LSIB wants Bendway Weirs

by Patty Harrower

Lower Similkameen Indian Band Manager Dixon Terbasket wants support from various environmental, conservation and government groups in an effort to change the way in which the Similkameen River flow has been managed in the past. The old ways of building dikes to protect the land from flooding does not work when the dikes are built on only one side of the river. When the water is high and comes against a solid dike, it must go somewhere. When the opposite side of the river is not diked, the high water rushes against the unprotected bank, eroding it and causing massive destruction.

A project begun in 1974 was supposed to be done in three phases but was never completed. The first part of Phase One was finished, diking the southern part of the reserve by the American border, however Phase Two and Three never happened.

LSIB have had problems with river diking for nearly 50 years. There have been several attempts to protect the Reserve lands from river erosion. Because these lands are federal, they fall outside of provincial jurisdiction and therefore the problem is "tossed back and forth" between federal and provincial agencies. No one does anything except spend money doing studies. The provincial government spent $1.8 million conducting studies with the Department of Indian affairs in northern Canada.

Terbasket wants to try an alternative method of river flow control. A new technology called Bendway Weirs can redirect river flow in a much more effective manner, both in terms of cost and workability. A weir is a rock sill located in the navigation channel of a river bend, usually angled 20 to 30 degrees upstream into the flow, and spaced from 400 to 1,400 feet apart and long enough to intercept a large portion of the river flow where the weir is located. Weirs are typically built in sets, between four and 14 per bend, and are designed to redirect current and river flow through the bend and well into downstream.

RCMP locate missing man

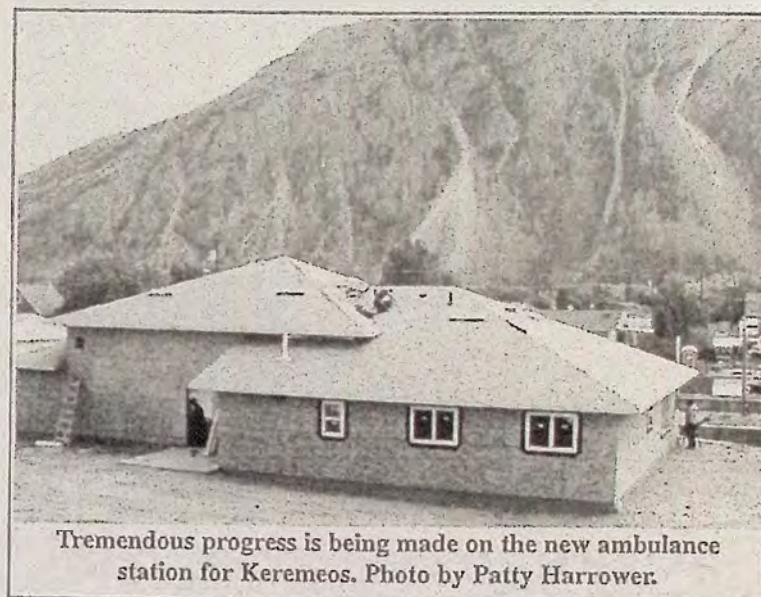

by Patty Harrower

Sgt. Bauhuis and the Keremeos RCMP would like to thank the many people who came forward with various tips, helping them to locate 70 year old Robert Arthur Matt, who had been missing from his residence since July 20. Matt had decided to spend some time camping along the river, where he was found in good health by RCMP. Matt has returned to his home at Mountain View Manor.

Over 140 weirs have been built in 16 bends of the Mississippi River, and the results have been outstanding. Dredging has been reduced by 80%, saving $3 million a year. Sediment and ice management have also been improved. Aquatic habitat was increased and fish size and density in the weir fields increased five-fold in some areas.

Terbasket feels alternative methods of river management such as weirs are necessary because channelling the river with solid rock is not healthy for the river. He would like to do things a little differently and show by example how well alternative methods will work. Bendway Weirs is an alternative method of bank protection and stabilization which can preserve the natural flow of the river and its habitat while protecting the adjoining lands from erosion, in a cost effective manner.

Plan to enjoy "Taste of the Similkameen"

by Patty Harrower

For an inexpensive afternoon and evening out for the family, plan to attend Similkameen Country sponsored Art Walk and the sixth annual "Taste of the Similkameen" Saturday, October 20. The cost is a "toonie," for adults and a "loonie" for the kids.

Taste of the Valley is just what the name implies: a sampling of goods produced by the various wineries, restaurants, bakeries and produce growers of the Similkameen Valley, from Princeton, through Hedley and Keremeos to Chopaka, where the Similkameen River turns south across the U.S. border.

There are many forms of "taste" in addition to the obvious, food and drink. Tastes in art and music are also a big part of the event. Beginning at 1:00 p.m. on the corner of 6th and 7th beside Victory Hall, many artisans showcased in the Art Walk will demonstrate their talents and work their magic. The show will continue through the evening, complimenting the "Taste of the Similkameen." Artists in the Similkameen are invited to buy a space and set up their art works. Space is limited and will quickly fill, so if you wish to participate, please phone Ken or Lisa at (250) 499-5225.

RCMP need help on thefts

by Patty Harrower

Between 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 a.m. last Tuesday, a business in the 600 block of 7th avenue was broken into. An person cut the lock off the wire compound used to store welding supplies. The thief took a bottle of acetylene and a bottle of oxygen, valued at approximately $550.

On September 7, RCMP received a report that a portable sawmill had been taken from a small business site approximately 12 km east of Keremeos. The theft occurred overnight between the 6th and 7th when the thief cut the lock off of the gate to the property. The business owner is unable to continue his business without the equipment. The sawmill is valued at about $10,000.

RCMP are again asking for the public's assistance in solving these crimes. Anyone who may have seen or heard something are asked to contact the Keremeos Detachment at (250) 499-5511.

A 34 year old Keremeos man will appear in court on October 22 to answer charges of driving while impaired. On Friday evening, September 14, a vehicle was stopped at the sign on the corner of Hwy. 3 and 3A when it was rear-ended by the impaired driver, causing about $2,000 in damage to both vehicles. There were no injuries.

Local couple looks at geography of Princeton and Blakeburn coal deposits at Open House.

Gas resources from coal? Ministry asks for opinion

Local people were invited to give an opinion on drawing methane gas from Blakeburn coal field. In an open house hosted by the Ministry of Energy and Mines, people were shown maps of local coal deposits and coal deposits throughout British Columbia. They saw diagrams of methane gas extraction and purification units along with the potential value of gas extraction.

Methane gas is a by-product of coal deposits. In any location where coal extrudes to the surface, methane gas disperses into the atmosphere. Drawing off the gas for use as a fuel resource actually earns more than money, it earns international credits under the Kyoto Agreement on reducing emissions.

Blakeburn coal deposit has high potential for methane gas extraction. In the process of extracting the gas, a lot of water must be pumped from a coal deposit before the gas is available. There is little negative environmental impact of such an enterprise unless the water extracted is saline. Then the water must be pumped back underground in a different location so it does not pollute the surface. Nobody knows the quality of water in a deposit until the first hole is drilled and water is extracted and tested. One current operation in the Kootenay coal fields is releasing water on the surface, so it is not saline water.

The display shown in Princeton last Thursday has been touring the province and is winding down. Public reaction has been positive throughout the province.

Coalbed methane needs little purification after extraction, as it is cleaner than natural gas. When purified, it can be pumped into gas lines that already exist. B.C. has huge deposits of coal with potential for thousands of jobs. Even a small coal field can produce enough methane to heat all of the local homes for decades.

Investors are interested in the potential for development. The Ministry was on tour to find out how British Columbians feel about it, and it appears we are in favour.

On September 7, the Toys for Kids ride took place from Princeton to Coalmont and back, with 14 riders involved. The riders donate toys and/or money to Crisis Assistance Christmas gift drive.

The following week, 114 bikes made a Toys for Kids run from Penticton to Okanagan Falls and back. They collected 500 gifts for the St. Vincent de Paul Christmas gift campaign, and donated $230 from a 50/50 draw. Penticton Lions Club put on a pancake breakfast and donated the proceeds to the fund.

There were some door prizes for the riders and two Princeton people and one Hedley person won!

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

WHAT DO YOU THINK SHOULD BE THE REFERENDUM QUESTIONS ON THE PROVINCIAL APPROACH TO TREATY NEGOTIATIONS?

Call for Submissions

The Select Standing Committee on Aboriginal Affairs wants to hear your recommendations on questions for a referendum on the principles that should guide B.C.'s approach to treaty negotiations.

The Committee has been appointed to consult with the public and to make recommendations to the Legislative Assembly regarding questions for a referendum on principles to guide the B.C. government in its approach to treaty negotiations with First Nations. The Committee's recommendations will assist the government in preparing questions that will be put to all British Columbians in a one-time, province-wide referendum.

Negotiating workable, fair and affordable treaties with First Nations will benefit all British Columbians. The Committee will be considering only those matters concerning questions for a referendum on principles to guide the provincial approach to treaty negotiations.

We want to hear from you!

This fall, the Select Standing Committee on Aboriginal Affairs is accepting written submissions and conducting regional public hearings to hear what all British Columbians have to say about the principles that should guide the B.C. approach to treaty negotiations. A report will be submitted to the Legislative Assembly by November 30, 2001.

Individuals and organizations wishing to make a written submission or appear at a public hearing should contact the Office of the Clerk of Committees. Submissions must be received by the Office of the Clerk of Committees no later than Friday, November 2, 2001. A guide for witnesses and a guide to preparing a written submission are available on the Committee's web site.

Further information, including notices of public meetings, is available on the Committee's web site at www.legis.gov.bc.ca/cmt

Rate your risk of heart attack

(NC)—You can do it. It's really your choice. You can reduce the risk of heart attack or other cardiovascular disease by eliminating "risk factors" in your life. Here's a quick test from St. John Ambulance, Canada's leader in first aid training and products.

Are you at risk?

1. Do you smoke?
2. Are you overweight?
3. Do you have high blood

Play it safe on autumn nature hikes

(NC)—The fall is a great time for a hike in the woods. The splendour of autumn colours, the crisp smell of the forest, all add up to a truly pleasurable experience. Of course, there are dangers in the fall forest, and you'd do well to keep them in mind.

St. John Ambulance, Canada's leader in first aid training and products, advises there is no way to be completely safe when hunters and nature lovers occupy the same space. But you can reduce the risk by following these common sense tips.

- Wear bright clothing that won't blend into the woods. Fluorescent colours are best.
- Always carry a first aid kit, as available from St. John Ambulance.
- Take a buddy if possible. And if you are alone, make sure someone else knows where you are and when you will return.
- Take nourishment, water and a quick energy snack.
- Wear proper shoes. Don't go hiking in shoes that are fashionable but not functional.
- Bring a whistle or small air horn to alert others or startle a wild animal should you be confronted.
- Know where you are. Don't venture off the trail into unknown territory. Always carry a map or compass in unfamiliar surroundings.
- Watch the weather. Don't plan a long hike when the potential for bad weather exists.
- Keep pets restrained. A dog is still an animal, which can be mistaken by a hunter or challenged by other wild creatures.
- Pace yourself. Don't walk away from your starting point until you're too tired to return safely. A circular route is best.
- Know how to handle an emergency. It can be the difference between life and death. For training, contact a St. John's Ambulance branch.

pressure?

4. Do you avoid exercise, and not work out regularly?

5. Do you have high cholesterol?

6. Are you under stress?

If you answered "yes" to these questions, you are running a risk of heart attack. It's vital that you assess your lifestyle and consider the consequences of your action. Your life may depend on it! Positive changes can reduce your risk of heart related illness. Preventative measures may actually reverse arterial disease and will most certainly improve your chances for a longer, healthier life.

It's your choice. Make it to live. For more information on how first aid training can help you save a life, contact St. John Ambulance, Canada's trusted leader for more than 100 years. Look for the branch nearest you.

Hiking is a popular sport anyone can do. The hikers above are fully equipped to spend a night out in the woods if necessary, but most people need to prepare just for a day jaunt — don't take chances!

What to do about stress and worry

The past weeks have caused stress world-wide, so if you are feeling tired, unmotivated and downright nasty, you are probably suffering from stress. The big brother to stress is worry, and people who love to worry have plenty to worry about now, and give themselves a lot of stress symptoms.

The nutrients that relieve stress are called amino acids. Basically, amino acids guard the health of the nervous system. If you are stressed and worried, you probably need amino acids. To ensure you eat ALL of the amino acids, you need to consume the right foods. In the following food list, each food contains amino acids, but a single food does not contain all of the amino acids. You must eat a wide variety of these foods.

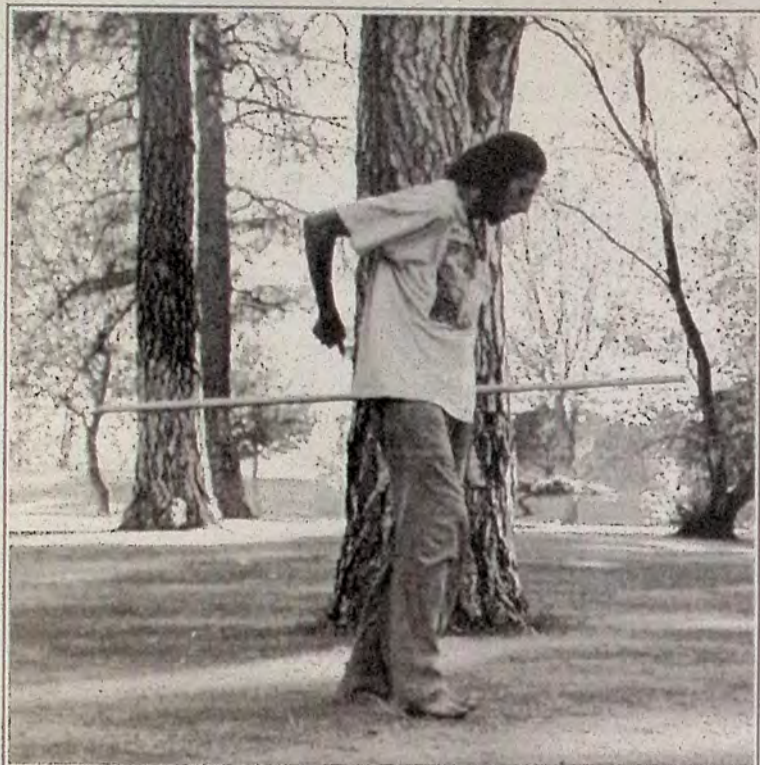

The best sources of amino acids are: meat, poultry, fish, eggs, milk, cheese, yogurt, soybeans, all beans, peas, seeds, nuts and seaweed. Oysters are very good for amino acids as they are meat and seaweed.

While you are un-stressing your nervous system, you still have to deal with the psychology of stress and worry. The first and best thing you can do is walk briskly for 20 minutes or, for more fun, dance a lively dance for 20 minutes. Make your muscles work. Work up a sweat. Breathe deeply.

Deep breathing helps calm the body and is the basis of meditation. All meditation begins with deep, slow breathing. There is a nerve connection between the lungs and brain. When the lungs slow down the rate of breaths per minute, the brain kicks into alpha waves, the relaxation mode. Slow breathing to six breaths per minute, like this: breathe in while mentally counting 1,000 - 2,000 - 3,000 - 4,000 - 5,000, then breathe out to the same count. This will automatically create relaxation at the brain level.

The other cause of stress is worry, and people can learn to stop worrying. Worry is a combination of fear of what may happen and inability to control what may happen. Some people find it difficult to deal with uncertainty. Accept that we cannot know the future. The advice is this: "let go and let God." You cannot control anything but yourself.

Fire-spinning in the park

Fire-spinner practices in the park in Keremeos.

by Patty Harrower

While dining in Pine Park last week, I witnessed a fascinating display of a young man spinning a long stick, probably about four times the length of a common twirling baton, with the thickness of a large broomstick. This young man, called Darryl, was practicing what is known as "Fire Spinning," an art that likely came to North America from New Zealand Aborigines. Darryl said stick spinning without fire on the ends is actually harder than Fire Spinning, because fire on the ends of the stick adds not only weight, but stability.

Fire or Stick Spinning can be used as a form of meditation. As one focuses on the stick, everyday cares will disappear. According to Darryl, Fire Spinning is Shamanistic. Spinning the stick causes a "circle of fire," seen as a protection against opponents as well as a "portal opening" into the next realm. It is thought that God, or Higher Energies, are watching through this portal.

Stick Spinning is also used in many cultures as a form of martial arts. As one learns the spinning techniques, "the stick will teach you," said Darryl.

Council expresses tribute to Armstrong

Deputy Mayor Lorne Esselink began the September 17 Town Council meeting by reading a tribute to the late George Armstrong. The tribute was written by Mayor Randy McLean, who was not present due to the death of his father.

Mayor McLean wrote: "On September 8, Princeton lost a good friend. During his life, George Armstrong worked hard to improve his community. As a teacher, as a Mason, as a member of the Health Board, and as a Councillor, George strove to make life in Princeton a little better.

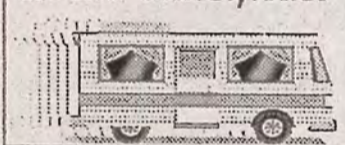

During his six years on Council, George was instrumental in the initiation of many major projects: the acquisition of the airport, the inception of the industrial park, the formation of Princeton and District Forest Corporation and many more. George had that ability to listen to everyone during the intense board room negotiations and then come out with the perfect common sense solution or compromise. He brought humour and compassion with him to the table. He taught that no task was so arduous that you couldn't enjoy it, and this same man who so frugally guarded the finances would now and then loosen the purse strings when it came to things like Youth Asset Development and social support projects.

George was the proverbial great guy to work with. His thoughtfulness, resourcefulness, his compassion, his humour and his common sense helped lead our Council through many problems and developments. We will miss him."

Esselink then called for a "moment of silence" in Armstrong's memory.

Kati Henry wins fourteenth spot

In what was to prove a fateful week for the United States, Princeton's Kati Henry found her race day moved from Friday to Sunday due to the National Day of Mourning.

Kati arrived in Vail, Colorado, on September 6, in preparation for the junior ladies world championship mountain bike races. She and her mother stayed in a condominium with four other people from British Columbia. They soon learned that B.C. mountain bikers are held in awe by their counterparts in the U.S.A. and with just cause - out of the 41 Canadian riders, 27 were from B.C. They did well, despite the very serious contenders from other countries.

The warm reception from other racers helped as a snow storm hit and dropped five inches.

The five racers on the Junior Girls team spent the first days practicing and acclimatizing to the high altitude.

They enjoyed meeting the racers from the U.S.A., Spain, Estonia, Brazil, England, Poland, Russia, and from the country that dominates cycling - France.

In Kati's division, 23 racers started the course, but only 18 finished. Kati placed fourteenth, but the girl from Quesnel was eighth and the girl from Quebec was tenth, so Canada made a good showing.

Kati said the girl who won their division was a professional who does not go to school and is paid. Some teams were sent for two weeks and brought their own mechanics and cooks.

Conditions became chaotic, and Kati and her mother were anxious about catching a flight home, but everything worked out well and they flew home on September 17.

Kati plans to move to Calgary soon, to find a job and do some training. She hopes to go to college next year. She is glad she had the opportunity to represent B.C. and Canada in this international event.

Kati Henry, in her Team Canada jacket, rates among world's best.

The Ridge View

Our world will never be the same by Joe Schwarz, local philosopher not so humorous these days

When the twin towers imploded in New York, no one dreamed how far-reaching the fallout would be especially economically. Anyone who has a job should be thankful. Hope that our health system and pensions don't go down.

It almost seems with "Operation Infinite Justice" we have a re-run of the Crusades of the Middle Ages. One wonders that to eliminate terrorism which action would be more effective - the aircraft carriers or the men dressed in white suits carrying butterfly nets. Maybe both.

The greater the population, the greater the number of human nuts. Not all nuts grow on trees.

What kind of lifestyle do the terrorists want us to have? Pictures of the moon-like landscape of war-ravaged Afghanistan gives us a pretty good idea.

For security and economic reasons, Canada and Mexico will almost certainly be fused into part of the United States.

No matter what you plan for tomorrow, it can be changed in an instant. The world will never be the same.

Artists need executive

by L. Neumann

On October 1, at 3:15 p.m., we have an important meeting. We need to address the lack of members running for the executive. We cannot have art classes without acting executive. One way suggested to alleviate the stress of meetings is to meet only every two months, or perhaps just when there seems to be a need.

The past few months a number of arts activities have been carried out. The most important being the opening of the Cultural Centre, which Ross Chaston, other arts members and Town Council are to be thanked for their parts in this. Ross and Jacque Chaston kept the Cultural Centre open for four hours once a week during the summer for the purpose of "drop in" art, but few artists utilized this opportunity.

There were two art shows, one involving the Meadowlark Festival and the other sowing the works of two artists. Both had fairly good attendance from the public.

During the past five years, Vermilion Artists has grown in membership and interest. The art classes given by Linda Anderson are always filled. We hope this will continue and there will be more involvement to keep things going.

POINTS OF VIEW

OUR VIEW

Threat proves old saying is false

There is an old saying that goes like this: "What we need is a war -- then you'd see the money flow! There's be jobs for everybody!"

The past two weeks have shown how false this saying was. The first thing that happened after President Bush's announcement of punitive military action was a big drop in stock values around the world. Along with a stock exchange drop, the price of gold, treasury bonds and the value of the American dollar climbed. All of these are fear reactions and are sensible in the face of war.

Shares in insurance companies dropped because insurance companies will make some big pay-outs for the World Trade Center, both for the buildings and the over 5,000 people who died. Airlines shares are plummeting in value, due to reduced capacity and therefore reduced income. These have nothing to do with a war economy and are simply reacting to reality. The value of gold, treasury bonds and the American dollar are another matter: they reflect war mentality.

When the threat of war exists, people will take their money out of venture shares and put it into gold or treasury bonds. People, who fear their country may not do well in comparison to that of another country in times of war, will invest in the currency of the country they think will win. You would have to be pretty ignorant to believe the United States would not be the winner.

Of course, all of this is pure speculation. If a war starts, we believe the United States will win because it has the best weapons and international backing. However, if nations start throwing nuclear warheads at each other, it will not make much difference whether you have gold or bonds or the U.S. dollar -- will you be alive to spend it and will there be anything to spend it on? Traditional war creates poverty for the majority and riches for the few, but nuclear war? Chemical war? Biological war? Who knows?

Director reports on grants

Dear Editor;

Each year, Princeton and area groups and organizations make application to the Director for Area H to be included as a recipient of a Grant in Aid. 2001 proved to be a banner year for applications and I tried my best to not disappoint any group that made application.

The Grants in Aid this year went to Princeton Exhibition Association - $2,000
Princeton and District Chamber of Commerce - $2,000
Princeton Child and Youth Committee - $2,000
Princeton Youth Ambassadors - $600

Princeton Family History Book - $2,000
Princeton Highway Rescue - $5,000
Princeton Search and Rescue - $1,000
Vermilion Trails Society - $1,500
Brookmere Rails to Trails - $500
Vermilion Elementary (Red Rock Productions) - $4,000
Skateboard park - $1,000
Tulameen Community Museum - $350

I wish all of these groups success in their endeavours for the up-coming year. Each one brings something of value to our area and, for the majority, is made up of volunteers.

Thank you to everyone who gives back. It is our volunteers groups and organizations that together help to make Princeton and area a much better place to be.

I am presently accepting applications for the 2002 Grants in Aid. To be considered, please forward to me a letter describing your organization and what it is your Grant in Aid would be used for. All Grants in Aid this year must be applied for by the end of October, so gather your information and write soon.

Some have no respect

Dear Editor;

I attended the candlelight service that was put on at the Cenotaph on Tuesday night by the Emergency Services here in Town and from the U.S. I realize that a lot of people didn't know about it as they did not receive their newspapers until that day.

I wonder if the people who did attend were as disturbed as I was to see people sitting on the Monument at the Cenotaph? These people even sat there when they were told that the members of the emergency services were going to lay a wreath in the memory of those lives that were lost in New York and Washington.

I could not believe that these people had such little respect that they had to be asked to get off the Monument and even then some went around to the sides and sat there while the wreath was being laid. Then they had the AUDACITY to go back and sit there again even after the wreath was on the Monument.

I wonder what our neighbours from the U.S. thought about this. I have a lot of friends and family in the U.S. and I am sure that they would have been as shocked and appalled as I was.

These people know who they are and I hope that they think about what they did and maybe the next time act with more PATRIOTISM TOWARDS THEIR COUNTRY AND THE FALLEN!

If this was done out of ignorance, then I suggest that we educate the population about common decency and behaviour around this kind of a gathering of concerned people and the Cenotaph as a whole.

Carol Ruoss.

Cst. Gilles Gosselin offers his sincere thanks to all of the people who co-operated with him and who helped him organize the memorial service on September 18, and to all the citizens who participated.

We live in "the world of separation"

Dawn Johnson, Editor
Similkameen News Leader

they say, when the waters of the Great Flood receded, and the white people went a separate way from the people who eventually settled the Americas. It is interesting to note that these aboriginal people knew forever that there were white people on earth, but did not know where the white people had gone.

The World of Separation is characterized by people seeing the differences between people and will be healed when all of us learn to see the similarities first and stop fighting over the differences.

I like this description of what is going on in the world, because it seems true. We do tend to see each other in terms of differences. For example, all religions believe there is only one Supreme Being, but wars are fought about whose idea of the Supreme Being is best. We choose, even in worshipping the One, to be picky about what the One is called and about the method of praying to the One. Do you wonder what the Supreme Being thinks about this?

We see differences in the colour of skin, the shape of eyes, the country of origin, the customs and traditions of one ethnic group in comparison with others. We fail to see the love all parents have for their children, the desire of all people to have food and shelter, and the fact that all of us bleed the same red blood. Some of us behave as if others came from a different planet, and are not earthlings at all!

The World of Brotherhood would require that we see and care for each other because of the similarities. We would share each other's sorrows and successes, poverty and riches. We would abide by Jesus' commandment "Love one another". In this World of Separation, it would seem this commandment is the most difficult commandment of all: although it was given two thousand years ago, we cannot abide by it yet, nor do we make any great effort, as human beings, to end the World of Separation.

In a World of Brotherhood, terrorism would be unthinkable.

In the ancient tradition of the aboriginal people of the south-western United States, we live in what they describe as the "World of Separation". There have been other worlds before, according to their tradition. One of these worlds was ended in fire, another in water, another in wind. The World of Separation will end when the world is cleansed again, and will be replaced by the World of Brotherhood.

The World of Separation began,

Take a rational look at world events

September 14, 2001

Dear Editor;

Today is a national day of mourning for the innocent victims of the tragedy in New York City, and I grieve for them as well.

The Canadian outpouring of sympathy for these people and their families is expected, is understandable and laudable. But, after all the mourning, shall we stand back and take a rational look at world events?

As of this date, President Bush is threatening to take revenge on even more innocent people in the Arab world.

What I have noticed from most of the Canadian rhetoric is that we are almost unanimously agreeing with American foreign policy. However, there are still some voices of sanity in North America, such as a plea I heard yesterday from a former American ambassador to Iraq. It was a plea, at odds with most others, but had the strange ring of truth. I was so overwhelmed with what I heard that I forgot to tape it or even take notes. I will therefore have to rely on memory even though I know that I cannot do him justice.

I am a patriotic American. My grief at the tragic events of last Tuesday cannot be measured in words.

Be that as it may, retaliation for our continued terrorism of the Arab people for the last 10 years is not unexpected. What does surprise me is that it has taken so long. It is the immensity of the retaliation and the ability to carry it out successfully that trouble me.

America and her allies have perpetrated a 10-year reign of terror on Iraq.

We have bombed them continually and at will. We have murdered untold thousands of innocent civilians and continue to do so. We have embargoed that country so that many more thousands starve and cannot receive medical aid. To expect that we can continue our reign of terror without retaliation is what I cannot understand. May I just add a thought of my own: why do we place a higher value on the lives of one race over that of another? HP Toews

Heart Food

by Dave Machin

People have tried many different things to please God. They have even gone to extremes, such as throwing people into volcanoes or fire, attempting to make a sacrifice to God. Some have crawled on hands and knees to a certain holy city, thinking this was pleasing God. Today some people think they are pleasing God if they wear their hair in a certain way or dress in a certain fashion or follow certain dietary customs. But God's word declares that faith pleases God. Not works! All it takes to please God is faith. Of course, we are expected to live by certain moral codes of the Bible. You cannot live by faith and not have a moral standard in your life. But without faith, these moral and ethical rules have no effect. So what is faith? Faith is taking a chance on God. It's putting all your eggs into one basket. You must understand there is no halfway with God. Some people want to mix some Buddhism with a little Jesus or they want to mix some Islam with some Jesus. However, that is not the way you please God. You please God by believing in Him and Him only. You cannot reason Him out in the sense realm. He is not a mind. That's why faith pleases God, and that is why God rewards your faith. He wants all of you - not part of you - but all of you, spirit, soul and body. That's what real faith is. God's word has 800 or more promises in it for us, promises that he wants us to have. But they will not fall on us like fruit off a tree. You have to use your faith to believe God. This gives you the opportunity to make the promises become realities. If you want the promises of God's word to become real in your life you will need to have FAITH. Nobody can prove to you logically or intellectually that God is real, but I challenge you that if you will, with faith, act on what it says in Romans 10: 8 and 9, you will know that Jesus is alive and real. This is the doorway by which you enter into the kingdom of God. It's done only by faith. There is no other way. Without faith it is impossible to please God. It's up to you! God is good, His word is good and good all the time.

Seniors help with memorial parade

by Joseph Dubé

One week comes after the other like water under the bridge but they don't always resemble each other. I've been wondering if I should call this week's effort a week at the seniors' local or a seniors' week. Last Saturday, the card tournament, which had been delayed two weeks, was held. Prizes for whist went to Dorothy Castle, Don Cormack, and Evelyn Cook. Crib winners were Jennie and Ron Haney. The tournament is as popular as ever. We have 18 signed up so far for the October 6 tournament.

Tuesday morning we had a full table making up decorations for the evening parade. Ribbons were given out to pin on the participants in the parade. I had received a call to participate as a senior. We were to assemble at Riverside School so I got myself up there. There were a lot of people already milling around, from RCMP in ceremonial and regular dress to the smartly dressed volunteer Princeton firemen, the US Border Patrol on horseback and other representatives of our southern border neighbours. I've never seen so many US flags at the same time. In a few minutes, the memorial parade for the Americans killed by the terrorist attack on the US was on the way to the Cenotaph. The ceremony was intended to be held at sunset and we were asked to bring candles. At the Cenotaph, we were asked to light the candles before the singing and the addresses from religious, social and political representatives started. Everyone was quite impressed by the lighted candle ceremony. At the end, they became a witness of light at the base of the Cenotaph to our neighbours who were so savagely attacked. I'm sure everyone will remember one of the biggest parades in Princeton and one of the most memorable!

Wednesday morning, I was away to Mission to venerate the relics of Ste. Therese of Lisieux displayed at the Benedictine Abbey. Two cars from Princeton and one from Keremeos accompanied each other. The Abbey is a sight to see - it's huge! many buildings and a church. It's a long time since I heard such music from carillon bells. When we arrived, there was a line-up around the front of the chapel circling at least 100 seats.

Order and security were assured by seminarians and brothers of the Benedictines. The relics were housed inside an ornate reliquary that resembles the model of a beautiful basilica. To complete the day, we visited the Poor Clares Monastery of St Clare close by. Their example of faith and way of living is something to see, but difficult to describe.

John Sinclair was nominated as a delegate to the regional meeting.

The crafts group is sorting and putting their material in order for the coming season. Would you believe 24 ice cream buckets full of all kinds of materials? It looks like it's going to be a big production year.

Adelle MacDonald is now working overtime as a volunteer, cooking, baking, kitchen and health club. She's another of our members who belongs to many organizations, such as the Legion, Elks and Rebekahs. George Cook has been busy with bingo and kitchen this week. I guess I'll have to do my share one of these days besides sitting down and tapping out these few lines to keep you folks informed about some of the "goings on" at the seniors' hall.

BC wants change

Town Council received a request from the Union of BC Municipalities regarding the devastating effect of the 19.3 percent countervailing duty on Canadian softwood lumber. UBCM asked Council to write a letter asking for a change in United States policy.

Council agreed to write to Prime Minister Chretien, the Minister of International Trade, Premier Campbell, Stockwell Day and Dave Chutter. The letter will ask each of these elected officials to lobby strongly to have the countervailing duty struck down.

Learn about Community Justice

When Sgt. Warren Dosko, of Princeton RCMP detachment, spoke to Council in August, he outlined a community justice program that could be implemented in Princeton. Encouraged by Town Council, he promised to put together a community meeting.

Sgt. Dosko advised Council on September 17 that he had arranged for a meeting on October 4 at the Legion Hall. He has invited Sharon Williams from Chilliwack and Cpl. Jim Cooley from Kamloops Rural Detachment. Williams started the community justice program in Chilliwack and continues to run it.

Cpl. Cooley trains facilitators who act as liaison for groups of citizens appearing at community justice forums.

Community justice forums can institute "court watch" persons, can decide how to handle justice issues within the community, and can talk to Crown Counsels and judges about the kind of sentencing the community wants on certain issues.

Sgt. Dosko told Council he hopes to see involvement of many local citizens. Anyone is welcome to attend the meeting to find out what the program does and how it could operate in Princeton.

Students elect Council

Princeton Secondary School students have formed a Student Council modelled on Canada's Parliament. Prime Minister is Candice Stadler (Grade 11). Deputy Prime Minister is Anna Joyner (Grade 11). Jennifer Cleven (Grade 12) was elected Activities Co-ordinator. Keri Petschl (Grade 10) is Treasurer and Lynn Smart (Grade 10) is Secretary.

Class representatives are:
Grade 12 - Lacey Stadler
Grade 11 - Fiona Rowe, Karyn Kunderman
Grade 10 - Stephanie Fletcher
Grade 9 - no candidates
Grade 8 - D.J. Wilson, Ashley Folk

Teacher representation on the Student Council is Ms. Sandi Blair.

Tasha Gee helped to organize the elections.

Naturalists hike at Summers Creek

Ahh! to be abroad on a late summer day, with the sun glinting like gold through the leaves, and the breeze barely whispering sweet nothings in our ears. To stride purposefully through the forest, up hill and down, stopping only to gaze in wonder at the sights nature presents, share a few gulps of water with our companions, then march on.

I can think of nothing more soothing than to be in the unsullied wild with a few friends, a bit of food, and, of course, the dog.

Oh! What's that you say?

You missed the hike?

A crowd gathered at the Grist Mill in Keremeos on Sunday in perfect weather for the annual Fall Apple Day. In the photo above, people gathered on the lawn to hear Brookers K Mountain Band play lively old-time tunes. Others checked out the craft booths, bought apple pies, visited the mill, or sampled a wide variety of excellent apples. The couple above admire the huge zucca melons, for which Keremeos was famous. The melon rind was used to make candied peel for fruit cakes.

Health Board fears cuts in service

Okanagan Similkameen Health Board met September 19 and heard the bad news about a deficit in operating costs for the current fiscal year. Early indications from the Ministry of Health Services suggest the next three years of funding for all health regions will require major restructuring of services. The provincial government expects regions to balance their budgets, under the Balanced Budget and Accountability Act.

OSHR approved a minimum needs budget of $347 million to cover increased costs this year. The budget included a $9.4 million deficit excluding wage increases. If the region receives the same funding as last year, it will have to find $9.4 million plus wage increases to balance for 2001-02.

Programs and projects may be downsized or cancelled and services may be cut.

Murray Ramsden, CEO for OSHR, stated, "Periods of restraint and restructuring are difficult for the public. OSHR employees and the physicians in the region. We will not make decisions lightly, and will seek input from stakeholders in designing strategies to recover the predicted $9.4 million shortfall for this fiscal year."

School Board says Band is still possible

Parents who want a band program for their children met at Princeton Secondary School on September 20 to discuss with Principal Lawrence Stoochnoff and School District representatives what could be done. During the summer, attempts were made to hire a certified teacher, but none took the position.

The School Board hopes to hire Maria Dunford, who teaches music in Princeton but is not certified by the B.C. College of Teachers. If the College agrees to issue a letter of permission to Dunford, she could teach band classes during noon hour.

A letter has been sent to all parents to identify which students may be interested in taking band. Only 15 students signed up during course selection last March, but school district officials believe there may be more.

According to Lawrence Stoochnoff, if the letter of permission is granted, band classes will begin in the second semester which starts in January.
