

A few vehicles crossed the new bridge last week as bridge approaches were re-aligned, but traffic continued to flow across the old "blue" bridge. Paving is the final step before the new bridge opens.

Bridge nears completion

Highway 3 traffic through Princeton experienced delays and some surprises as crews worked all last week, and the weekend, to complete the construction of the new bridge, intersection and highway approach. Flag persons did an excellent job of keeping drivers pointed the right direction, and despite delays, traffic moved along in an orderly procession and lost very little time.

Disruption to businesses in the area was inevitable, but all of the workers did their best to reduce it to a minimum. A few local drivers had the opportunity to go over the new bridge, and some were quite excited with the new view of Princeton.

Police praise Princeton

Sgt. Warren Dosko, Officer in Charge of Princeton RCMP Detachment, praised Princeton for an excellent weekend.

"Hats off to all the visitors and community members of Princeton," Sgt. Dosko said. "The Princeton RCMP report an extremely orderly July first weekend."

Princeton RCMP handled 50 complaints between noon Friday, June 28, and midnight Monday, July 1. There were three 24-hour driving prohibitions, 12 infractions under the Liquor Control and Licencing Act varying from Drunk in Public to Minor in Possession of Liquor, and four infractions under the Controlled Drug and Substance Act.

One vehicle was impounded because the driver was under prohibition, and one person was charged with Driving while Prohibited. One person was served with a driving suspension at the request of Motor Vehicle Branch.

Three minor complaints of mischief were investigated, and RCMP investigated two persons under the Mental Health Act.

There was only one motor vehicle accident over the weekend, a hit and run in Tulameen with damages less than $1,000.

Crash kills two on Hope - Princeton Highway

A 46 year old woman and a 10 year old girl died in an automobile crash near the Hope Slide viewpoint. An eight year old boy, a passenger in the vehicle, was critically injured and was air-lifted from Chilliwack Hospital to Childrens Hospital.

The crash occurred at 10:15 p.m. Friday, July 5. Hope RCMP, BC Ambulance and Hope Search and Rescue responded.

Investigation revealed the vehicle was westbound and may possibly have swerved to miss an empty cardboard box on the highway. The driver lost control of the vehicle, which left the highway to the right, struck a large rock, and overturned.

There were no other persons or vehicles involved in the accident. Hope RCMP are continuing the investigation.

The names of the deceased have not been released.

Princeton RCMP and South Okanagan Highway Patrol had a reasonably quiet weekend, although highways are busy.

We pay for tax break

Study details how we are doing after one year of tax and spending cuts - we're poorer!

A major new study Cost Shift: How British Columbians are paying for their tax cut, was released last week by the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives. The study examines a dynamic of "cost shifting" - the transfer of costs off the government books and onto individuals, families, and in some cases, employers.

The study reveals that, while some B.C. individuals and families remain ahead financially after the tax and spending cuts of the past year, the gains of most are either precarious or have already been wiped out.

The study compares the size of British Columbians' income tax cuts, depending on their income, to the major new costs they are now facing, including: increased MSP premiums, de-listed health services, higher drug costs, higher post-secondary tuition fees, and higher childcare costs.

The study shows a single individual earning $30,000 loses more than she gains if she requires a course of physiotherapy and an eye exam (net loss $31). A family of four with a household income of $35,000 loses more than the value of their tax cut just with the MSP premium increase (net loss $359). If they have daycare expenses and a course of physiotherapy, they are deep in the hole (net loss $780). A family of four with a combined income of $60,000 remains ahead even after the addition of MSP, eye exams, and a course of chiropractic treatment, but it is not much of a gain ($130). A single individual earning $150,000 remains well ahead after the MSP, an eye exam, and a course of physiotherapy (gain $4,529).

The study confirms there is a greater distance between the rich and the poor due to a tax "break". (see www.policyalternatives.ca)

What B.C. said about treaty negotiations

The results of the referendum on how B.C. should conduct treaty negotiations were released last week. While Premier Campbell praised the results, critics pointed out only 35 percent of the referendum forms were returned and seven percent of those returned were spoiled. The 30 percent left hardly constitutes a clear mandate from the people of British Columbia.

The B.C. Federation of Labour is strongly critical of the referendum results. This powerful group, representing unions across B.C., were joined in April by church congregations, non-profit societies, community organizations and environmental groups in opposing the referendum.

Angela Schira, Secretary-Treasurer of the B.C. Fed, issued a statement last week saying "the government just wasted well over $9 million on a fruitless and futile exercise."

Schira says, "The best course for government now is to accept that a majority of voters rejected the exercise and get on with building a stable investment climate at the negotiating table with First Nations."

At the same time, a confident provincial government plans to meet with First Nations leaders, the federal government and third parties to the treaty process to discuss the results and ways to make treaty negotiations more effective.

Regardless of how British Columbians answered the questions on the referendum ballot, there is not going to be a sudden solution to land claims issues, nor will British Columbians see a lot of treaties being signed because of the referendum. The treaty negotiation process is a great deal more complex than having 30 percent of the population agree on some of the principles. To begin with, the Indian Bands, Nations and provincial councils are under the jurisdiction of the federal government and the conditions specified by the Indian Act. British Columbia's "principles for negotiation" as specified in the referendum have almost no impact on the federal position, except to say B.C. is ready to negotiate.

The Union of BC Indian Chiefs had some remarks to say about the majority of B.C. voters not responding.

Reaction to referendum from front page

Chief Stewart Phillip, President of the Union of BC Indian Chiefs (UBCIC) stated, "We are not the least bit surprised at the outcome of this so-called referendum on treaty-making. This ill-conceived referendum was widely criticized by the federal government, the business community and the general public at large and the results bear out the fact that this referendum is neither recognized nor supported by the electorate of B.C."

The position of UBCIC is that the referendum questions were deliberately designed to generate a biased response in favour of the provincial government's negotiating stance.

"We clearly recall renowned pollster Angus Reid describing the referendum as amateurish, and Reid went on to describe the questions as one-sided. More seriously, however, is the fact that the referendum questions reflected recycled positions of the province that have either been rejected by the courts or have proven to be non-starters at the negotiating table over the last 10-year period," said Chief Phillip.

Chief Phillip cautioned, "In the event that the provincial government continues to refuse to accommodate our aboriginal title and rights interests, and continues to attempt to manipulate the aboriginal title and rights policy agenda, we can expect more serious conflict on the land and subsequently more litigation."

Chief Phillip continued, "In our view, the provincial government runs the real risk of creating the conditions that may very well cause the final collapse of the struggling BC Treaty process by virtue of the fact the responses to the referendum questions shall create unacceptable pre-conditions to future treaty negotiations. Consequently, the BC referendum on treaty making may very well prove to be a millstone, as opposed to the milestone proclaimed by Premier Campbell during his press conference yesterday."

Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs state the courts have clearly instructed that the province must honour its Crown obligations by initiating good faith negotiations that would award First Nation communities with an equitable share of land and resources. Such a settlement would be necessary in order that

First Nation communities may develop economies that will ably sustain their people.

"Rather than waste more time on attempting to develop aboriginal policy on the basis of highly questionable referendum results, we strongly advise and encourage the provincial government to act on the instructions already handed down by the Supreme Court of Canada in the Delgamuukw case and the BC Court of Appeal in the Haida case and the BC Supreme Court in the Taku River Tlingit case."

Chief Phillip warned, "Without question, any attempt to unilaterally impose the referendum results on the aboriginal people of BC shall only result in deeper economic uncertainty within B.C. as a direct consequence of an escalation in land-use conflict and more litigation."

COPS goes to work

Members of Princeton Citizens on Patrol have been hard at work with the new Speed Watch Program. Between June 18 and June 27, they visited six locations at various schools in Princeton. In total, 914 vehicles passed through the Speed Watch locations, with 20 percent of the vehicles travelling in excess of the posted speed limit.

At Riverside Intermediate on June 18, 310 passed through Speed Watch. The posted speed was 30 kph, and 48 drivers were travelling too fast. Fifteen were travelling up to five kph over, 20 were driving up to 10 kph over, and 11 were travelling up to 40 kph over the limit. On June 25, 285 people went through the Speed Watch location, and 48 were driving too fast.

At Vermilion Forks on June 20, 82 vehicles passed through Speed Watch, and 13 were travelling too fast. At the same location on June 27, 163 went through Speed Watch and 19 were over the speed limit.

At John Allison School (Corina Avenue), 49 vehicles passed through Speed Watch, with 44 over the speed limit. At the same location on June 26, 25 passed through and 12 were driving too fast.

Friends give Joan a great farewell day

Joan White was guest of honour at a surprise luncheon at Sandman Inn in Princeton on July 5. Members of Senior Citizens Branch #30 wished to honour Joan in appreciation for her hard work in the kitchen and for being a good member.

Following the luncheon, members gathered at the Senior Citizens Hall where they, and Joan's family from Kitwanga, enjoyed specially made cakes.

Hugh Money and Dave McMow entertained with good music, and surprise gifts were presented to Joan by Adelle MacDonald and Evelyn Cook. Grace Kokler presented a corsage to Joan.

Rebekah Lodge Sisters joined with Senior Citizens to wish Joan farewell and best wishes for the future.

Joan thanked all of the Senior Citizens members and Rebekahs for "such a great day".

New to our community

Linda Rytkenon, Welcome Wagon hostess, had the pleasure of welcoming two new babies into Princeton recently. Babies were born to Kathy Bishop and Andrea Adam.

The Welcome Wagon brought good wishes to two couples who were married recently - Fawn Small and Mike Nielsen in June, and Renee Frennett and Frank Harrison in May.

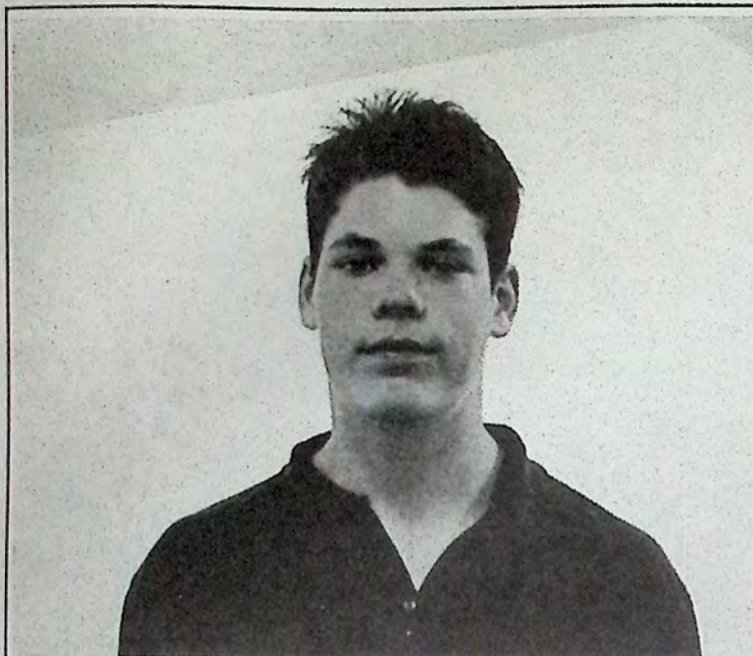

RCMP have busy month

As the weather gets warmer, the complaints to the RCMP tends to increase. In June, police responded to 303 calls for service. Of those calls there were 19 vehicle crashes, and nine drug seizures or charges.

In addition to calls the local officers also do self-initiated work results as follows: 51 licences premise checks in the area, 13 school visits, 16 foot/bike patrols, 18 road checks which almost 1,000 vehicles passed through, 14 liquor seizures, seven 24-hour suspensions, five drivers were charged with driving while prohibited, 40 violation tickets, and 48 written warnings or notices for vehicle defects.

OOPS!

We have no idea why the editor lost her mind and put Youth Vice-Ambassador Stacey Lay as Miss Lions when she is really Miss Princeton Light & Power. Our apologies to all concerned. The editor hangs her head in shame.

Brent Davidson is a new employee at Princeton Museum, thanks to a grant from Weyerhaeuser for first-time employment. Brent has just completed Grade 10 at Princeton Secondary. He will be doing some tours of the museum, but his main task is to catalogue the fossil collection. "There's about a thousand," he told the News Leader.

June was great!

Princeton Museum welcomed 523 visitors during the month of June. The majority of visitors came from British Columbia, including a lot from Princeton, but there were visitors from Switzerland, Paris (France), Japan, England, U.S.A., Ontario and Quebec.

There were school tours at the beginning of June. Sylvia Adams brought her class from John Allison Elementary School, Gordon Bibby brought two groups from Princeton Secondary School, and Shirley Low brought students doing a video and they filmed an interview with Eric Jacobson about Princeton history.

Jaymie Nesbitt has worked the entire month of June, funded by the Museum Society, but is now working on a provincial student employment grant. Jessi Tonasket is doing archival work four days a week thanks to Upper Similkameen Indian Band, and Brent Davidson is cataloguing fossils courtesy of a Weyerhaeuser student employment grant.

Each of the summer student employees does museum tours when required. The museum is open at 10:00 a.m. daily. If you have visitors and want to give them something interesting to do, why not suggest a tour of Princeton's museum?

Here are the Speed Watch locations this week

When you are out driving on Thursday, you can tell whether you are exceeding the posted speed limit if you are at the base of the hill near the bowling alley. Citizens on Patrol will have their Speed Watch sign there, and you will be able to read it and hopefully not weep over your speed.

Next Monday, they will be located on Highway 3 near Subway. If you are speeding, they will not arrest you, but they may report you for excessive speed. The main reason for Speed Watch is to make people aware of when speeding is occurring. Many people do not watch their speedometers.

School District offers outreach program for home schooling 2002

School Trustees have decided to launch an outreach program to serve home-schooled students. The Okanagan Similkameen Outreach Program will provide a comprehensive B.C. Curriculum leading to the Ministry of Education Dogwood Certificate.

The program will provide Kindergarten to Grade 12 home-schooled learners with:

- * all necessary learning materials and resources through electronic or paper delivery models;
- * planning, assessment, evaluation and reporting support by a member of the B.C. College of Teachers;
- * specialist support to Grades K - 3 and Grade 4 - 7 students;
- * specialist support to Grade 8 - 12 students through the district's three Learning Centres;

* a variety of other educational opportunities such as field trips, cultural opportunities, workshops for parents, school-based specialty classes in their own community (i.e. Band/Music, Technology courses);

* a parent consultative group to advise on the program offerings.

The Okanagan Similkameen Outreach Program will provide valuable education support for every student. It will deliver services at a personal level in supporting students and families choosing home-schooling.

Information is available by contacting the School Board Office at 1-250-298-3481 (local 238) or 1-888-498-8476 (local 238).

Herman Edward, builder of the trek canoes, led the paddlers to the beach in Oroville. In the canoe behind him are Quentin Basil and Selina Edward.

Canoes make a splash in Oroville

The canoes built this spring at Chopaka made a grand entrance to Osoyoos State Park in Oroville. Three canoes, escorted by the Sheriff's launch, crossed the lake for a welcome from people on the beach. Before the canoes arrived, when they were mere distant spots on the lake, The sheriff's vehicle went along the beach and among the campers announcing the arrival of "hand-made boats".

As the News Leader Editor was on the beach, many of the spectators heard about the creation of the canoes from the trunk of a cottonwood tree along the Similkameen River, and how the canoes were steamed, where the canoes had begun the journey, and a few words about the Katimavik volunteers.

Herman Edward, who supervised and worked on making the canoes, paddled his canoe alone.

Pepper people plan a hot time

The Pepper Festival Committee will meet soon to begin the intense planning for this upcoming event, which will occur in late September. Keremeos, Cawston and area gardeners are encouraged to grow peppers, pickle peppers, make pepper relish and jam, and do whatever clever thing they can do with peppers.

There is a rumour making the rounds of the community saying Harkers have planted 150 different breeds of peppers!

Think about what you can do with peppers - make salsa, chili powder, dry pepper rings - what else?

We will soon hear a lot more about peppers when the hot tamales on the committee get their strategy together.

Anyone interested in being part of the Pepper Festival can call Ken at 499-5300.

Quentin Basil and Selina Edward paddled another canoe, and Aaron and Catrina Terbasket paddled a third canoe.

The Okanagan Syilx Nation Unit Canoe Trek and Salmon Bake was a featured item in the schedule of events for Oroville Days, July 4 to 7, an event comparable to Princeton's recent Racing Days.

Oroville's Sheriff, along with President Milligan from the Chamber of Commerce, members of the Fire Department and State Park wardens were among those who gathered at the beach to welcome the canoes.

The salmon bake followed at City Park, where the canoes were on display. Approximately 100 First Nations people were involved in the trek and salmon bake, or simply joined the group to enjoy the salmon.

There is no doubt: Oroville was impressed. Most people who heard about the story of the cottonwood tree, the canoe-building project, the trek from the head of the lake, and so on, were amazed.

They could hardly believe somebody, in this day and age, actually built dugout canoes seaworthy enough to go from Vernon to Oroville. Herman Edward and crew have written a page in local history.

Employment Access Centre is working well

More than 300 people are signed as members and are using the Employment Access Centre at Victory Hall. According to Ken Randle, approximately 25 percent of the people who come in to look for work are farm workers, and they are finding jobs. On the bulletin board outside the Centre, orchardists and others advertise for workers. Inside the Centre, workers are given phone numbers and/or locations of employers.

Job boards are updated daily, and every day there are people on computer to access job information. Two recently graduated teachers found their first jobs through the Keremeos Employment Access Centre. One is going to the United Kingdom and one is going to Japan!

Others have found various jobs - truck driving, home care, and food service.

Piece rates for pickers: (All farm labourers must be paid the $8/hr. minimum wage unless working on piece rate)

INVESTMENT INSIGHTS

By John Vaccaro Investment Advisor with CIBC Wood Gundy and Greg Stewart Associate Investment Advisor with CIBC Wood Gundy

TAX IMPLICATIONS OF MUTUAL FUNDS PART 2

In the last article Tax Implications of Mutual Funds - Part 1 we looked at Interest and Dividend Income. This article will cover Capital Gains Income.

CAPITAL GAINS

One-half of your capital gains are taxable at your marginal tax rate. Thus, capital gains are, in effect, taxed at a lower rate than regular income.

Capital gains can result in two ways:

1) When you sell your mutual fund units for more than their original purchase price (for example, if you bought units worth $1,000 and sold them for $1,500, the capital gain you earned would be taxed at one-half of your marginal tax rate).

2) When stocks in an equity mutual fund are sold by the investment manager for a gain, you may receive a distribution from the mutual fund as a capital gain.

Many mutual funds produce capital gains over time, and this is especially true for equity and balanced funds.

The fight about fat: who's right?

With 50 percent of all Americans overweight, diet promoters are fighting each other with claims and counter-claims about what works and what does not. There are high-protein, low carbohydrate diets, and there are vegetarian diets, and low fat diets. There are over 2,000 diet books on the market.

If there are so many diet books, how come there are so many fat people?

The problem is not that people do not read diet books. They certainly read them, and buy them by the billions of dollars worth every year.

The problem is not that people do not follow the diets. Many people follow the diets as a ritual, and endure real suffering as a result, in order to lose weight.

The biggest problem is that a) there is no "quick fix" so the dieter goes off the diet or b) the diet works, but when the weight is lost, they go back to "normal"

CMHA says "Fill out survey"

The B.C. head of the Canadian Mental Health Association (CMHA) is urging people to participate in the Canadian Community Health Survey (CCHS) now underway in B.C.

In less than 20 years, depression is expected to be the second leading cause of disability in the world, according to the World Health Organization. Today, one in four people world-wide experience mental illness during their lifetime. Canada has no national estimates on the number of Canadians with mental illness.

"The only way to show decision-makers and researchers what the mental health reality is in B.C. is to ask British Columbians," said Bev Gutray, Executive Director of CMHA BC. "Cooperation with Statistics Canada interviewers will ensure that you, your husband, wife, son, daughter, grandchild siblings and friends get needed support for some of the most common and disabling illnesses in existence."

In addition to their regular professional training for a survey, Statistics Canada interviewers have received additional training to deal with the more sensitive subject matter in the survey.

For those concerned about the protection of personal information, Statistics Canada has the toughest regulations anywhere, detailed in the Statistics Act, to keep information confidential. Responses from this survey will be grouped with thousands of others and the final result will be anonymous statistical tables.

eating and gain all of it back again.

"Normal" eating is the problem.

What we in North America call "normal" eating is not normal at all! There is no other place in the world where a big white bun with two patties of beef and a slice of cheese is considered "normal" eating. Add to this the side of fries and a soft drink, and we see how far we have gone from "normal".

The diet that really works!

There is one diet that really works. It is not to be found in books, or on television, but any good nutritionist or obesity specialist knows it works. This is the diet that calls for a return to normal eating habits of a century ago, or further back in industrialized countries.

This diet calls for a return to food basics, which means a reduction in the amount of food eaten, as well as eliminating some "foods" from the diet entirely. There are foods that provide little nutrition and people can afford to eliminate them from the daily diet. These are foods such as doughnuts, cake, soft drinks, white rice, white bread and candy. Sweets are often the major culprits in putting on weight, especially cake, cookies, pies and so on. Often, these combine sugar, starch and fat, guaranteed to put on weight.

What can you eat instead?

Try fruit for sweets, potatoes instead of rice, brown rice instead of white rice.

Other foods to be severely reduced should include fats of all kinds. This means reducing the amount of meat and fish, especially meats such as sausages and bacon. (Unless your doctor says you should, never cut meat totally as North America's foods are low in protein).

People like to feel full when they finish a meal. Most weight reduction diets do not permit "fullness". Anyone who really needs to feel full can fill the space with vegetables. Salads and raw vegetables actually help the body lose weight because so much energy is burned digesting raw vegetables and fruit.

A good weight reduction diet should not give startling sudden losses. Weight should be lost gradually, a pound or two a week. Extreme weight loss or gain is a signal something is wrong.

The role of exercise in weight gain and loss is a touchy subject. Exercise enthusiasts will swear by it, but in the over 40 crowd who have not exercised a great deal, launching into a weight-reduction exercise program may actually do harm. Anyone who is not fit is not fit for a lot of exercise. Walking, gardening, housecleaning and exercise in moderation are recommended for fat people beginning to lose weight.

Anyone wishing to lose weight should consult their personal

Summer demands milk to build bones

Most of us love the summer days of sunshine and warmth, but few of us connect it with an opportunity to build stronger bones. Sunshine stimulates our body's bone-building capabilities, because sunshine stimulates our body's ability to produce Vitamin D, which is essential to building strong bones. When we think of bones, we think of calcium, and there is no finer source of calcium than milk and milk products.

When the weather is hot, we tend to want to drink or eat something cold. Many people think of soft drinks, iced tea, fruit juice or beer as their first choice for a cold beverage. They should be thinking "milk". Whether it is a milkshake, a screamer, an ice cream product or just a plain glass of milk, a milk product should be first choice for a cold drink in summer, because milk contains calcium and helps build bones.

Cottage cheese and yogurt contain plenty of calcium, too, and combine nicely with summer fruit and vegetables. Cold puddings and pies made with milk products are good for adding calcium to the diet.

Summertime calls for less meat and more vegetables and fruit. Most vegetables and fruit contain vitamins and minerals that are absorbed with the calcium and assist the body in building bones.

There is a hidden quality to calcium of which most people are unaware: calcium is essential in digesting meat, and is essential in maintaining a healthy nervous system. People who have plenty of calcium tend to sleep well, feel good about themselves, and gain the maximum protein from the meat they eat. This is all to the good, and will help you live a longer, healthier life.

The next time you feel too hot, and need something cold to reduce the heat, think about milk. You need only 15 minutes per day of sunshine to give you the Vitamin D. It's summer - make the most of it!

RCMP Cpl. Judy Thomas wears her United Nations beret.

Cpl. Thomas went a long way to investigate crime

When Judy Thomas graduated from Princeton Secondary School in 1972, she had no idea she would spend part of her life digging up bodies in a foreign country. She attended Simon Fraser University and University of B.C., where she earned a Bachelor of Education degree. At the same time, Thomas harboured a secret desire to be a police officer, and in 1988, she became a member of the RCMP.

Corporal Judy Thomas works in the serious crime unit in Prince George. She has been in Prince George for 12 years, and blended her life as a mother and police officer until her sons were grown. Her work as a homicide investigator led to her opportunity to go to Kosovo in June 2000 and again in 2001. She returned to her unit in Prince George after nine months of a truly amazing experience.

Cpl. Thomas had the job of collecting evidence to be used in convicting former dictator Milosevic of war atrocities. Her job was to assist in developing an exhumation unit and procedures for identifying missing persons as well as identifying whether or not atrocities had been committed. Part of her job was to train Kosovo police officers to do the work. She was part of the United Nations peace-keeping initiative.

Cpl. Thomas located possible sites of burials and exhumed bodies which were taken to a specific morgue for forensic examination. She estimates approximately 100 bodies were exhumed during her stay, but there were more to be examined.

"It was the experience of a lifetime," Cpl. Thomas told the News Leader. "I'd go back in a second." Most of us would wonder at her eagerness, but Cpl. Thomas saw another side to her work. She did not witness atrocities, but she did see the grief and loss of the families of missing persons. She felt rewarded when she was able to identify the remains and return the person to the family.

"Working in that environment was very rewarding," Cpl. Thomas says, "There was always the hope of giving families closure."

Other aspects of her stay in Kosovo were a bit trying. She lived in a cinder block building with four other Canadians, and the apartment was cold in winter, with electricity and water supply sporadic.

Despite the bombed-out buildings and the kind of work she was doing, Cpl. Thomas felt pleased with the people she worked with. The Kosovo police were eager to work with her and practice their English speaking skills. As a result, she did not learn much of the Albanian language, but she appreciated their efforts to be as helpful as possible.

Today, Cpl. Judy Thomas goes to work at her daily crime-solving tasks in Prince George, enjoys time with her sons (who tended the house while she was away) and leads a fairly ordinary Canadian life. Behind exterior appearances, there is the crime investigator who would jump at the chance to go back.

"I love my work," Cpl. Thomas said.

Her last comment to the News Leader at the end of the telephone interview was, "Say hi to Mom for me, and to Lori."

Mom is Ann Thomas of Princeton, and Lori is Judy's sister, Princeton Chamber of Commerce manager.

Communities support charter

According to the Union of BC Municipalities (UBCM), there is broad support for the provincial government's proposed Community Charter. Following a two-day UBCM conference in late June, UBCM found delegates supported the basic principles, framework and intent of the Charter.

They particularly supported the inclusion of a definition of the role of Councillors and a rule about not disclosing confidential information.

UBCM delegates thought more work is needed on business tax exemptions and prohibitions on downloading services from provincial government.

The purpose of the conference was to provide feedback to the provincial government for the fall session of the Legislature prior to finalizing the Community Charter Legislation.

Tourists take a second look at Hedley Museum

An interesting, and happy, phenomenon is occurring at Hedley Heritage Museum - last year's visitors are coming back!

Lana Rupp, a student working at the museum for a second summer, says there are a lot of people who were visitors last summer and come back with a fond memory of unofficial greeter Bob Bishop and Lana. She says many people stop for tea, requesting the home-made carrot cake and apple pie.

Global TV mentioned the Hedley museum during a news broadcast and suggested people stop and say "Hi!" to Bob Bishop!

There are more tourists visiting the museum this year than last, Lana says. She and Jessi Tonakset, who worked last month at the Princeton museum, stay busy giving tours and occasionally serving in the tea room. A large percentage of the tourists are from Germany and Holland, but this year there are many local people. Often, repeat visitors come with friends, and have a special picture they want to see again, or an item they want to buy.

Hedley Museum has a great beginning to the summer season.

Child Advocate report slams cuts

The annual report of the office of the Child, Youth and Family Advocate calls on the B.C. government to rethink reductions in the budget and services to children and youth.

As an independent voice representing over 14,500 requests for assistance, the Advocate's Office has provided individual and systemic advocacy to children, youth, families and local communities who need services in British Columbia. The annual report responds to recent changes by the Ministry of Children and Family Development (MCFD) and looks into the future for the children, youth and their families who continue to require services in B.C.

following the core services review, the provincial government released three-year service plans outlining future directions for services to children, youth and families in B.C. The report responds to these changes:

- * reducing MCFD's operating budget by $360 million and staff by 22 percent makes existing resources inadequate. The Advocate's Office calls for a needs-based budget and a stable, experienced workforce.

- * by reducing the number of children and youth in care without increased resources for families could threaten the safety of children and youth needing care.

- * reducing income assistance to families places children, youth and families in need of assistance at greater risk.

- * reducing services to 19 year old youth formerly in government care abandons the need for ongoing support needed to make the transition to adulthood and independence.

- * Adequate funding must be available to communities if community governance is established throughout the province in order to support a local community's capacity to care for children, youth and families.

- * Aboriginal Services must ensure a respectful and adequately resourced process for building the service.

Child, Youth and Family Deputy Advocate, Laverne MacFadden, states, "As government pursues these proposed changes, we ask them to remember that the children and youth of B.C. have basic human and legislated rights that must be protected. These rights are owned, not earned. The children of British Columbia have taught us that when they are respected and nurtured, they thrive."

RECREATION & TV GUIDE

Above, youngsters involved in the Kokanee Summer Swim Club Swim-a-thon had plenty of toys to keep them enjoying their relay in the pool. It was a long night, but they had a lot of fun.

Swim-a-thon was an overnight success

Kokanee Summer Swim Club held a highly successful Swim-a-thon on Saturday night. Swimmers did a relay in which members of the club had to be in the pool for 12 hours, from 7 pm Saturday to 7 am Sunday. The youngest members stayed in the longest!

Those who were not in the pool could watch television or play games until it was their turn to go back into the water. Twenty swim club members took part.

All of the youngsters had a great time, and raised $1,896.37 for the club. The money is used to pay for pool costs, travel expenses and helps pay the coach.

The 44 members of the club have been travelling to meets in various locations in B.C. during the past month and this was their first “home” weekend. Kokanee Summer Swim Club will host a wind-up meet in mid-August. The dates will be announced in the near future.

Try “Survivor Night” swim

Princeton’s Centennial Pool staff host a Survivor Night every Wednesday from 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. This goes on all summer, and is open to all ages. There are challenges for everyone to meet, and teams can sign up in advance or swimmers can take their chances and make up a team when they arrive.

There are tiki lights around the pool and some toys to play with. According to those who know, it can be an interesting, enjoyable evening. The next Survivor Night is July 10.

New Lifeguards at Centennial Pool

Zach Brown, left, and Cody Thomas are employed as lifeguards at Centennial Pool this year. Both young men have their National Life Saving certificates and are local students who attended Princeton Secondary School.

Okanagan Nation supports watershed planning

After several months of discussion with the Federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans and Environment Canada, the Okanagan Nation Fisheries Commission (a department of the Okanagan Nation Alliance) has submitted a proposal at the request of the Ministers outlining the funding required to begin to set the stage for regional watershed planning in the Okanagan. The "Proposal for an Okanagan Salmon Ecosystem Restoration Program" puts forward an approach for aquatic restoration, with specific focus on restoration of salmon, now nearly extinct in the Okanagan.

The approach was based on Okanagan Nation traditional knowledge that salmon are a keystone species supporting food and cultural activities of the nation and numerous other terrestrial and fish species in this region. In 2001, Okanagan salmon species represented 30 percent of the fish nominated as candidates under the Species at Risk Act and many of the species these salmon directly and indirectly support are also listed as endangered.

The proposal builds on the existing partnerships and programs that ONFC has with DFO and BC Water, Land and Air Protection (together representing the Okanagan Basin Technical Working Group) as well as OSBFP stewardship network partners, US based Colville Confederated Tribes and other US agencies.

The three-year plan to develop a formal aquatic ecosystem restoration framework to be started in the year 2005 specifically requests support for coordination of the numerous interests in habitat water and fishers in the Okanagan, definition of roles and responsibilities of all interests in a long term plan, a situational analysis of all ongoing work, and consideration of what would be the next steps in development of a "master plan" for the region. While the ONFC sees provincial and federal programs as being key program partners, the plan would be locally developed with strengthening of partnerships with local and regional government, public stewardship groups and private sector.

POINTS OF VIEW

OUR VIEW

Honest business is the best business

Money is worthless in itself. The paper and the coins have very little value. What is valuable is the confidence we place in the stability of what the money will bring us. The money represents goods or services in which we place our trust.

Confidence in American stocks and in the American dollar have been badly shaken. The Enron and Arthur Anderson accounting scandal was treated as one incident, but when Worldcom was added, it started to look more like the tip of the iceberg and shareholders baled out by the bucketful. Two world class American companies using the same accounting firm suddenly have barbecued books and severe cash and asset shortfalls. This shakes confidence in not only American accounting and American companies, but in the American economy.

Most of us do not think about money as "confidence", but confidence is precisely what money, and economies, are all about. The Worldcom problem could create investigation of a lot of American firms who employed Arthur Anderson as their accountants. Just having the public, and the stock market, worried about the honesty of a business can create havoc in the economy. The stock market is where mutual funds are invested, where pension plans are invested, and where people put their extra dollars in hopes of making a little interest. The money owed to banks by companies who may have cooked the books to obtain the loan makes banks vulnerable and makes their depositors vulnerable.

Doing honest business is one of the cornerstones of a solid economy in which we can all deal in confidence that our money will buy us what we believe it is buying. Between Enron and Worldcom scandals, the world's most powerful economy is losing the world's confidence in its ability to do honest business.

Local teachers mourn agreement loss

Dear Editor:

On Thursday, June 27, 2002, most Princeton teachers dressed in black to mark the end of the collective agreement between Princeton teachers and School District #58. This agreement has determined the working conditions of Princeton teachers and many of the learning conditions of Princeton students for the past 13 years. Effective July 1, 2002, the contract of Princeton teachers was replaced by the collective agreement of the Nicola Valley Teachers' Union.

Princeton teachers are upset and angry about provincial legislation that arbitrarily removed our 'made in Princeton' agreement. This agreement was negotiated between locally elected Princeton school trustees and teachers to reflect the needs of Princeton teachers and students. The Nicola Valley collective agreement has major shortcomings in professional development, posting and filling of positions, and the teacher on call rate of pay.

However, the strength of the Princeton teachers' agreement has not only been found in the words on the page. Strength has also been found in the willingness of Union executive members, staff reps and every Princeton teacher, to insist that school-based administrators and School District #58 staff respect our locally negotiated individual and collective rights. And this strength and determination is not going to disappear with the removal of our collective agreement. While we are saddened by the loss of our local contract, Princeton teachers will continue to work together to ensure that we maintain as many of our rights as possible under the imposed agreement.

Yours sincerely,

Susan Hamilton, President,
Princeton District Teachers' Union

Restaurants as bars undermine hotel economies

Dear Editor:

On March 15, 2002, at an open cabinet meeting, Solicitor General Rich Coleman proposed sweeping changes to British Columbia's liquor policy. Many of the changes outlined in the government's proposal are long overdue and are supported wholeheartedly by the hospitality industry. However, one profound policy change – allowing restaurants to function as bars – could devastate the hotel industry in British Columbia, undermining regional tourism and economic development.

Hotels have played, and continue to play, a pivotal role in the development of communities in British Columbia. The existing hotel infrastructure not only provides activity centers for many communities, it is critical to the development of tourism and sustains the resource sector. Hotels in communities throughout the Interior, up north and on the coast, are particularly important to the resource sector which depends on local hotels as a cost-effective alternative to the costs associated with constructing camp in remote areas. However, the reality is that many hotels outside the major metropolitan centers are not economically viable solely as providers of accommodation.

Many years ago, the provincial government recognized that a hotel infrastructure was crucial to the economic development of this province and developed a liquor policy that made it possible to have good quality accommodation available that was supported in part by revenues from liquor sales. In short, hotels would be granted liquor licenses as long as the hotelier built and maintained a certain number of sleeping rooms, banquet facilities, and other amenities available to the public on a year-round basis. Today, thousands of affordable rooms that were the product of this sound liquor licensing policy are at risk needlessly.

Why pay MLAs to download?

Dawn Johnson, Editor

During coming months, we are going to hear a lot about the Community Charter, and about the issue of downloading by the provincial government. In small communities like our Similkameen Valley communities, downloading means added costs and more property taxes.

One of the prime examples of downloading is our health care system. Health was administered out of Victoria and local decisions were made by Hospital Boards elected locally. After a decade of evolution, what we now have is a complete lack of responsibility out of the provincial government (despite added cabinet ministers supposedly "responsible" for health) and a Health Authority we did not elect and which does not want to deal with citizen groups if the citizens can be avoided. The Health Authority Board will talk with Town Councils, but not with the rest of us.

A second example of downloading is the proposed change in RCMP payment. Towns will be asked to pay for the cost of local policing from property taxes. To the best of my knowledge, this proposal has not been accompanied by any proposals for cuts to the provincial share of property taxes. What it looks like to me is a case of "pay more, get less" from the provincial government.

The interesting aspect of all of this is our designated role as citizens. We are expected to go to the polls and vote for people to represent us in Victoria. When we elect these representatives, we expect them to be responsible for meeting the various needs of the citizens of B.C. This is the social contract: we elect, they take responsibility.

The way I see it, if they are going to download their responsibilities onto our Town Council, then we do not need to pay them to stay in Victoria. We could do away with the Legislature and pay big salaries to mayors to run the province.

Citizens form coalition

Dear Editor;

In response to the recent cuts in government services, a number of interested people attended a "Strong Communities" workshop last April. At that meeting, we formed a coalition consisting of representatives from local organizations, Town Council and individuals of various ages, political views and occupations. Our aim is to try to meet the many challenges facing the town and Area H by working together, concentrating our efforts on one goal at a time according to priorities identified by the group.

The first priority, identified in April, was to maintain health services which affect all other aspects of our lives. But many other challenges exist, such as 1. cuts to education 2. loss of access to the justice system 3. closure of the Forestry office 4. shortage of well-paid, family-supporting jobs, 5. lack of opportunity for youth 6. minimal return to town and area from raw materials 7. small town lack of political clout, and so on.

We are now taking a summer recess but expect to resume in September. We welcome attendance by, and input from, service clubs, fraternal organizations, churches, unions, seniors, youth, USIB, recreational groups, etc., and concerned individuals. A strong community depends on all of us.

Restaurant drinking hurts hotels

is an unprecedented expansion in the number of seats restaurants will be allowed to dedicate to liquor only service. At present restaurants can serve, if approved by the local municipality, liquor without food to a maximum of 10 percent of the total seats in any licensed establishment.

However, Solicitor General Coleman wants to expand the number of "drink only" seats to an even greater percentage, in effect allowing restaurants to market themselves as bars. There are more than 5,000 restaurants in B.C. and most will rush to exploit this "bar & grill" policy. In a province that is already saturated with drinking only options, this policy will launch a cycle of destructive competition that will severely impact the economies of the hotel industry and in particular, hotels in small to medium-sized towns.

Setting aside all the social arguments against the proliferation of drink only options, this shift in the province's liquor policy will result in the deterioration - even closure - of hotels in communities throughout B.C. and the destruction of an infrastructure that foresters, miners, salespeople and tourists have come to depend on.

As our province moves to revitalize, serious attention must be paid to the economies that have successfully underpinned our hotel infrastructure for almost half a century.

Yours truly,
Richard P. Gibbons, Director,
B.C. Yukon Hotel Association

"Your word is truth." This statement does not say your word is fact, for indeed truth goes beyond fact. Fact may be coloured by your perception of something and limited by your understanding. The fact may be that you don't have any money. The fact may be that the doctor said you have an incurable disease, but what does the truth have to say about it? You must understand that truth is absolute. Truth does not yield, truth does not change. Therefore, facts are subject to truth. It can be a fact you are sick, but God says you were healed by the stripes Jesus bore when He died on the cross. That's the truth. Now you are left with a choice. You can apply the truth of God's word to the fact you are sick and the fact will change - or you can agree with the facts and things will stay like they are. I'll tell you right now, it will be much easier just to agree with the facts because facts scream a lot louder than the truth of God's word does. God's word will be quiet - until it starts to come out of your mouth. Once that word begins to come out of your mouth in faith, it will be the final word. If it's His word about deliverance, you will be delivered. If it's His word about healing, you will be healed. God has given you a contract, and when you do your part, by believing, speaking and acting on a heart full of faith, God's word of truth will always come to pass: for it is written that He (God) confirms His word with signs following. So forget all the stories you have heard about people who believed and it didn't work for them. Make up your mind to believe it for yourself. God is good, His word is good and good all the time.

Mayor McLean was right to refuse

Dear Editor;

Mayor Randy McLean was very clever in recognizing the Western Canada Wilderness Committee's proposed preservation of the "Bugaboo" Rainforest National Park as a continuation of Cascades National Park plus others in B.C. It may be of interest to Princeton Town Council and this newspaper's readers that these national parks are designed to be "International Parks" designated for heritage sites for UNESCO along with over 12 percent of our provinces parks. This is only a small part of the overall plan for "sustainable development" of North America by the Western Sierra Club and other Environmental groups.

It would behoove the residents of B.C. in general to learn what a much bigger plot is by the Wildlands Project for the Americans. Designed by a professor of the Oregon University (where my granddaughter just graduated with her degree in Environmental Studies) and the co-founder of Earth First, they are mapping the U.S. by ignoring all state boundaries, starting in the southeastern section. The Southeast Ecological Framework is a joint effort of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the University of Florida.

This plot calls for 50 percent of the land mass to be set aside for animal habitation where no human intrusion or interference will be permitted. As a buffer zone around those areas will be another 10 percent of the land mass where only authorized and restricted human intrusion will be allowed. The map also shows designated "corridors" designed to interconnect the "core areas" for breeding purposes.

For the implementation of this plan the remaining 40 percent will be the establishment of Island for Humanity for self-sufficient communities that incorporate various tools such as zoning and TAXING LAWS! I wonder where the big corporations with their tax exemptions will fit into this scheme or the Indian's land claims?

The Wildlands Project stipulates that all indigenous animals, being those that lived in specific areas prior to Columbus discovering America, including predators, must be re-introduced into those core areas. An Alabama weekly newspaper announced that a survey was being conducted in the Greensboro area regarding the re-introduction of the black bear. This is very significant in relations to the number of bears killed each year in B.C. Will our Conservation Officers be permitted to continue the destruction of the B.C. black bears by those Wildlife/Wilderness/Wildlands committees or our federal Bill C61?

One resident of Pearl River, Louisiana, found out recently what a "threatened species" is worth when he shot a Louisiana Black Bear that is not on the endangered species list. The 37 year old was sentenced by a New Orleans magistrate to pay a $2,500 fine and make restitution to the Louisiana Dept. of Wildlife in the amount of $9,000 for the value of the wildlife. He was also ordered to make a donation of $500 to the Louisiana Black Bear Conservation Committee and is prohibited from hunting for three years.

Should we Canadians be speaking up to stop the intrusion into Canada of these organizations sanctioned by the United Nations, plus fight for the right to own and use guns for hunting and for one's own protection as those in the U.S.?

Sincerely,
Kay Hardy, Princeton

Letter to the Editor

WCB needs to be shut down says worker

Dear Editor;

Our goal for today is tell the Liberal Government and the Minister of Labour Graham Bruce that the WCB cesspool has to be shut permanently for the following reasons.

WCB assesses employers in this province at alarming rate increases every year in which it does not meet the requirements of the injured workers or employers in this province. Injured workers are pitted against employers when they become injured.

Mostly a press release from WCB stated that there was a $392 million shortfall with the WCB management team. Sid Fattedad stated this money was paid to injured workers.

Let's look at the books for WCB and find out where the money all goes: $3.2 million for Marketing Boards, $9.5 million paid to the Minister of Finance, $9.4 million for consulting firms, $7.3 million for WCB staff expense accounts, $7.6 million to the Receiver General of Canada, $176 million for WCB staff payroll, $2.2 million for Occupational Health and Safety.

With these kind of figures coming out of the WCB remuneration and business for the year 2001, what's left for the injured and disabled workers and their families? Here's some examples: Thalium poisoning issues where 200 workers were exposed and three claimants accepted and actually dying and all they receive is medical aid only.

Spinal injuries such as vertebrae and disc injuries and the claimants are dumped. The WCB states, even with documented evidence, it's degenerative disease on points of impacts and don't pay anything. Injured worker communities feel they are covered in the work place and find no coverage at all, lengthy useless appeals with all supporting medical evidence ignored. Just a start of what's wrong with it.

Respectfully yours,
Ralph Dotzler,
member, United Association for Injured and Disabled Workers.

Princeton 100 years ago is one of the postcards available in the latest local interest promotion.

Postcards celebrate Princeton

There is a movement gaining momentum in our valley. It is a desire to promote and brag about the many significant features of our exclusive lifestyle. The Total Tour Guide program is an excellent indication of this movement. For the first time there are truly local postcards featuring some of the many attractions of our area — our history, wildlife, phenomenal scenery, and an unlimited list of events and activities. The photo above, provided by Ken Rempel, is an example of the historical postcard photos.

The response to the first 16 postcards has been overwhelming. Business support of the program is unprecedented. To date, there are 28 local businesses displaying the very attractive Similkameen Adventure poster in their windows to indicate their support of a drive to let the world know Princeton is open for business and has a great deal to offer. This support includes financially sponsoring the postcards so we can make them available at 50 cents each.

Support has also come from many local residents who have contributed photographs to the selection pool. More than 300 photos were provided, allowing selection of the best to represent our area. In fact, the support has not been just local. Each postcard has the name of the photographer on the back. However, there are two mistakes — the Roughed Leg Hawk and Bull Elk were mistakenly attributed to the person who provided them rather than to the actual photographer, Rene Savenye of Surrey, who spends many days each year exploring our area, and recording his discoveries on film. When advised of the error, he brushed it aside and expressed delight that the photos had been found so useful. He will be returning to continue recording the wonders of our unique natural treasures.

There is no way that just 16 postcards can truly represent all of our advantages. This is why the next 18 are in development. Already 12 local businesses have stepped forward to sponsor the new postcard series. There are only six opportunities for sponsorship left in this series and they will fill up quickly. Based on the support and commitment of the local business community, a third series is being planned.

We are looking to expand the pool of photographs for the second series selections. Any readers who have photos or slides they would like to see as a part of this celebration of our lifestyle are asked to drop them off at the News Leader.

History, wildlife, scenery, events and outdoor activities are just a sample of the potential subjects. The photos will be returned.

The focus of the Total Tour Guide program is to tell the world about Princeton and area. The series of pop-up maps we have developed are unique in the world and make excellent souvenirs for visitors. They are convenient, very affordable and extremely accurate, thanks to the support from Weyerhaeuser.

The trick is to get the visitors here to use the maps. Local residents can assist in this program. The News Leader offers 500 FREE postcards to local residents.

Here's how it works: if you agree to mail a postcard to a friend or relative each week, with an invitation to attend a local event or just come for a visit, bring a stamp to the News Leader, along with the address to which you intend to send the postcard, the News Leader will see to it the postcard is mailed that day. If every resident were to push the promotion, there would be over 25,000 personal invitations sent from Princeton every year!

Join with your community in promoting this celebration of Princeton and area. Remember to support the merchants who are making the Total Tour Guide program possible. They have the poster on display and are truly local boosters.

There will be more to come in the Total Tour Guide program. There is just too much to celebrate to stop now!

The free children's day camp started July 2 and welcomed between 10 and 20 children daily. Above, youngsters play on a big foam which can be adapted for a number of games.

Funds for Fit Kids go to work

The money raised last month for the free children's summer day camp went to work last week. On July 2, the camp opened at Vermilion Forks Elementary School, and there were more than 10 children each day.

The second day of the camp was a day in the park and a trip to the swimming pool. Eighteen children appeared for this special outing.

Children attending the camp bring their own lunches and snacks, and enjoy supervised play at the school. If the weather is good, most play outdoors. If it is too hot, or raining, the children play indoors. Materials are available for both physical and arts and crafts activities.

Wednesday is "swim day" at the camp. The children bring swim suits for fun at the pool.

While some youngsters played physical games, these girls were busy being creative with art and craft supplies at the free children's day camp.

Visitors to Princeton find some interesting things to do. Above, canoes pulled up on the bank are left for awhile as the paddlers took time out for a lunch break. Weekend kayaks and canoes are a frequent sight on the river until the water drops to its lowest levels.
