

The chuckwagons are coming!

This year's Fall Fair will feature chuckwagon races

The upside-down trailer was carrying a pick-up truck and was left in the ditch on Mine Hill. The driver who had been towing the trailer left and has not claimed it. Police have no idea who the driver might have been and are continuing to investigate.

Chuckwagon races will be a feature of Princeton's annual Fall Fair this year. Ruby Bey reached an agreement last week with the chuckwagon racing group, who will be at the fair on September 7. Work crews will now go ahead with plans to alter the rodeo arena to make the chuckwagon races possible. The chuckwagon races will take the place of Little Britches Rodeo, which is not scheduled for Princeton this year.

Chuckwagon racers say they will try to bring a few chariots if they are able to attract enough to race, and would put on chariot races as well as chuckwagon races.

Although the chuckwagons cost the Fall Fair $300 each, and there may be as many as a dozen, it is customary for a business to sponsor a chuckwagon and have the chuckwagon "wear" the business banner. The Fall Fair is more than willing to "sell" chuckwagons to local businesses. (Co-sponsorship can be arranged. Contact Garnet Woodford at 295-0178).

Princeton Rodeo Club is presenting team roping on Sunday, September 8.

On Saturday, the guys with the tough trucks will test their vehicles on an obstacle course which will include a mud bog, and the guys and gals ready to wreck tough cars will do their best to win in the demolition derby. Several drivers are getting ready.

Trucker reports stolen car

A trucker helped recover a stolen vehicle. On Monday, July 15, at 7:00 p.m., a truck driver reported a grey Mazda had passed him in a dangerous manner. He gave RCMP the licence number of the car. The Licence check revealed the vehicle had been stolen. Hope Detachment was notified.

Later, Princeton RCMP received a hit and run report and the grey Mazda was at fault.

Hope RCMP stopped the Mazda just outside Hope at 8:30 p.m. A 25 year old Richmond man was arrested. Hope RCMP learned later he had stolen gas from a station just before being arrested.

The driver faces charges of possession of stolen property, failing to remain at the scene, and driving without due care.

Police warn of e-mail, fax scam

Princeton RCMP are warning local business owners and Princeton residents about an e-mail and fax scam currently being attempted. The messages come from anonymous persons from foreign countries. These individuals ask local people to deposit money in an undisclosed account or reveal their bank account information for funds to be deposited.

Cst. Mike Saghbini warns, "Please do not fall for this, due to the fact it is a fraudulent attempt to obtain your money."

"This is a big problem," Cst. Saghbini says. "It is as big as telephone scams and growing. As a member of the High Tech Crime Unit in Vancouver, I've been seeing so much of this sort of scam. If someone offers to deposit $28 million into your account just because you're special, that should sound off a few alarms. Please do not fall for these types of scams!"

Should you receive any of these e-mails or faxes, contact Cst. Saghbini at Princeton RCMP Detachment (250-295-6911).

Keremeos residents and businesses receiving these e-mail or fax offers should report them to the Keremeos RCMP.

BEA asks Council to track BC Gas

Town Council is going to invite BC Gas representatives to attend a Council meeting in the near future. Their decision was prompted by a letter from the Business Enhancement Association asking Council to track what BC Gas intends to do in their upcoming gas pipeline project.

In the letter, BEA says it is concerned there may be issues raised throughout the discussion of the project that are pertinent to community development and opportunities for the community to benefit from such a project.

"Our concerns are heightened when we are unaware of any track-

Council plans UBCM meets

Princeton's Town Council is making plans to meet with Cabinet Ministers at the annual conference of the Union of BC Municipalities.

Council agreed it would be necessary to meet with the Minister of Forests regarding local forest issues, namely problems with the Forest Practices Code. Mayor Randy McLean wants to meet with the Minister of Transportation to discuss problems with Highway 3.

Councillor Kathy Clement felt it would be important to meet with the Minister of Municipal Affairs, or the Deputy Minister, regarding municipal insurance and liability.

Councillor Dan Sulentic insisted the Attorney General must be on the list, to discuss having small communities pay for policing.

ing and monitoring of this project", the letter states. It goes on, "Our fear is that the Princeton area will not benefit from the BC Gas Project completely if no tracking of this region is put into place and discussions of community benefit are recorded and acted on.

Tipping fees are on the way

Princeton residents will pay for extra garbage starting on October 1, 2002. These are called "tipping" fees, and will be imposed at the Town of Princeton and Area H landfill.

During the next three months, the public will receive detailed information on how the system will work, and on how to recycle, reduce waste, and re-use items.

Princeton Recycling Society is disbanding and has turned all of its assets, $3,608.73, over to Town Council for the purpose of public education through a mail-out which will inform people about the tipping fees.

Councillor Keith Olsen, who is responsible for the landfill and recycling issues before Council, thanked Princeton Recycling Society for the money.

The mail-out will tell people what can be recycled at the Princeton landfill.

Local people will have a two-bag

Council members said the simple solution is to have people from BC Gas attend a Council meeting and describe their plans. Council stated members of the Business Enhancement Association would be invited to the meeting and could discuss benefits for Princeton then.

limit of garbage per household weekly.

The proposed method of garbage collection is to give each householder tags to put on their garbage bags. Each would be given a total of 104 tags, two per week for a year. If this number of tags is insufficient, there will be a charge for the additional tags.

The fee structure has not been established yet. Town Council will look at what other municipalities in Regional District are charging (see Keremeos' fees for example on page 4). The fees for Princeton will be comparable to other municipalities.

To date, there has been no discussion by Council as to the kinds of fees that may be charged to people who do not pay for the service through their taxes (e.g. provincial parks, highways) nor what prunings and construction materials will cost.

Christian churches plan "Love Princeton"

The Christian Churches of Princeton are planning to celebrate Princeton with "Love Princeton" Day on August 17. They will host free car washes, face painting, free pop and fun at Princeton Plaza. In addition, they will sell "Love Princeton" tee shirts for $12.00 each.

Pastor Esther Donovan presented the plan to Town Council at the July 15 public meeting.

"We want to bless our town," she said. "We're proud of it."

They would like to make it an annual event.

The "Love Princeton" Day comes at the end of a week-long free day camp for children age 4-12. The camp is called SonCanyon River Adventure - Survival Skills from Proverbs. The camp involves crafts, games, sports, songs, stories and snacks, and will be located at the Baptist Church and Princeton arena on Old Hedley Road.

To kick it off, there will be a gathering at Cenotaph Park on Saturday, August 10.

The camp week begins August 12 and goes from 9:00 a.m. to noon through August 16.

The churches sponsoring this camp are Baptist Church of Princeton, Living Water Country Chapel, St. Paul's United Church, Christ the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Similkameen Christian Center and Princeton Pentecostal Tabernacle.

IWA video receives Council support

IWA Local 1-425 asked Princeton Town Council for $500 toward the cost of producing a public information video. The 23 minute video is to be called "Canadian Jobs and American Consumers - Paying the Price". The intent of the video is to bring the effects of the softwood tariff to the attention of governments and the general public on both sides of the Canada-U.S. border.

The video will feature interviews of workers and their family members from across Canada, and interviews with Americans who support Canada's position. The Americans will be talking about the effects the tariff has on American consumers.

The video is to be sent to all levels of American and Canadian governments. In addition, it will be forwarded to both American and Canadian media.

The estimated cost of producing the video is $25,000.

Council agreed to support the video if it is endorsed by the IWA Local to which Princeton area workers belong.

School District dumps street light

Princeton Town Council received a letter from Princeton Light and Power (PLP) advising Council that School District #58 was abandoning responsibility for a street light on Tipton Avenue. PLP stated the light will be removed immediately at the request of the School District.

Although the light was installed and maintained by the School District, the School District no longer wishes to be responsible for it. PLP asked if Council would like to keep it in service.

Council decided to keep the street light in place and pay for it.

Unidentified applicant wants to drill coalbeds

The Ministry of Energy and Mines wrote to Town Council to ask for input on a request to the Ministry to make three parcels of petroleum and natural gas rights available for public competition. The three parcels are located in the Princeton area.

The applicant, whose identity was not revealed, is interested in exploring for coalbed methane gas. This gas is found in most coal deposits.

The Ministry stated the request did not include any plans for development, but would give a successful applicant the right to drill a well.

Town Council had no comments to make regarding the request, as the parcels of land are outside Town boundaries.

Local real estate is selling well

If you are buying or selling a house in Princeton, the market is hot this year compared with last. South Okanagan Real Estate Board says year to date figures indicate sales are up by 36 percent in the Okanagan and Similkameen over last year. Low mortgage interest rates and affordable housing prices continue to encourage buyers.

In Keremeos, the number of units sold is up two percent, Summerland and Penticton sales are up 23 percent, and Princeton tops the list with the number of units sold up 85 percent!

The total number of listings in the Okanagan-Similkameen is down six percent, but there is definitely a demand for more properties on the market in all communities.

Sales volumes, in dollars, are up 46 percent this year to date. The average residential sales price this year is $147,426 this year as compared with $137,372 last year.

A tribute to a great rodeo career

A horseshoe shape of bales covered with the many saddles Kenny McLean won in over 40 years as a rodeo champion was a tribute displayed in Centennial Park in Okanagan Falls on July 19, 2002 at the celebration of Kenny's life, his character and his achievements.

Friends say "farewell" to Kenny

A celebration of Kenny McLean's life drew approximately 500 friends to Okanagan Falls to say farewell to Canada's finest cowboy. The tribute began with A Cowboy's Prayer, the same prayer spoken at the beginning of every rodeo.

A Cowboy's Prayer

Heavenly Father, we pause mindful of the many blessings You have bestowed upon us. We ask that You be with us at this rodeo and we pray that You will guide us in the arena of life. We don't ask for special favours, we don't ask to never draw a chute-fighting horse or to never break a barrier. Nor do we ask for all daylight runs or not to draw a steer that won't lay. Help us, Lord, to live our lives in such a manner that when we make that last inevitable ride to the country up there, where the grass grows lush, green and stirrup-high and the water runs cool, clear and deep, that You, as our last judge, will tell us our entry fees are paid. Amen.

Pastor Jim MacNaughton summed up the number of McLean's friends by comparing friends to riches, and said, "Kenny was a billionaire."

Tributes to Kenny McLean were heart-felt and honoured him for the man they knew rather than as the champion the public knew.

Walter Archachan put it simply. "He was the best man that ever made a shadow," Archachan said in a choked voice.

As Kenny McLean was a member of the Order of Canada, it was fitting that Member of Parliament Stockwell Day was on hand to honour McLean. Day began by saying he had never known McLean personally, "But like millions of Canadians, I had heard of Historic building will be restored by owners

The former Silver Belle Cafe has sat empty for some time in downtown Keremeos.

So long, in fact, that many complaints about the condition and appearance of the building have been made to Village Council.

"We've had an ongoing file on the place," admits CAO Bob Lafleur, "and Council deemed it a nuisance."

Robert and Lorraine Carter, owners of the building, appeared before Village Council at the July 15th meeting. The couple plan to restore the building to its original condition.

Councillor Ed Minshull moved a motion, seconded by Councillor Tom Wilson, that Council delay the Nuisance Order on the condition that the owner's obtain a permit for the required renovations and restoration within 30 days.

The historic building dates back many years and appears in many old photos of downtown Keremeos.

Council cooperates with business

Two Variance Applications were approved at the July 15th meeting of Village Council.

One will allow a mini storage business to double its number of units and the other will allow for a building lot to be built on.

A request for assistance from a businessman establishing a car wash facility was met with the suggestion of patience to allow for possible future concessions.

In the words of CAO Bob Lafleur, "these are examples of Council cooperating with local business."

Village employee Eugene Deschamps digs up Memorial Park for new playground equipment. The old playground equipment will be installed at Pine Park.

INVESTMENT INSIGHTS

By John Vaccaro Investment Advisor with CIBC Wood Gundy
and Greg Stewart Associate Investment Advisor with CIBC Wood Gundy

Every summer, thousands of Canadians pack their bags and their families into the car on Friday afternoon, and leave their homes behind. Their destination: the family cottage. For many, the family cottage is like a second home. It's a chance to enjoy some down time from their fast-paced city life, relax in the beautiful outdoors, and spend invaluable time with friends and family. It's an asset that generations, both younger and older, can enjoy. In short, it's a reward for everyone's hard work.

And with the height of summer now upon us, and everyone no doubt taking full advantage of that asset, what better time to consider its preservation. After all, whether it's your cottage or your parents' cottage, you probably both have the same idea in mind: keeping it in the family.

For taxation purposes, a cottage is considered a capital asset. As such, it is treated like all other assets. When the owner dies, it can be automatically rolled over to his/her spouse, tax-free. However, upon the death of the spouse, it's deemed to be disposed of at fair market value. The result? Probably a hefty tax bill. And if the heirs don't have the cash on hand to pay those taxes, chances are they'll have to sell the cottage to do so. Consider the following example:

Mike and Kathy are both 60 years old. Thirty years ago, they bought their cottage for $40,000. It's now worth $180,000. If anything were to befall both Mike and Kathy, their heirs would be faced with an unpleasant decision: sell the cottage or come up with approximately $33,000 in taxes. Luckily, there is another option.

By purchasing a joint-last-to-die insurance policy, Mike and Kathy can prepare for the eventual tax bill. On the death of the second spouse, the proceeds from the insurance policy could be used to pay the taxes owing on the cottage. The result? Their heirs would be able to continue enjoying that cottage for years to come.

As you can see, for the cost of an affordable monthly premium, Mike and Kathy can ensure that their cottage remains in the family. Who should pay those premiums? Obviously, one option is Mike and Kathy. However, another option is their heirs. After all, considering that their heirs are the ones who ultimately stand to benefit, they probably wouldn't be averse to paying the monthly premium.

RDOS approves tipping fees

The Regional District of Okanagan Similkameen has approved the Keremeos Landfill Tipping Fees as set out in Keremeos Landfill Regulatory and Tipping Fee Bylaw No. 2136.

Simply put, residential recyclables and compostables are free, although commercial rates apply.

Other rates are as follows:

The fee for one standard size garbage bag/receptacle is $2, that doubles with two garbage bags and reaches $5 for three bags.

A small pickup truck load is $7; a large pickup load is $10. A small utility trailer load is $7; a large utility trailer load is $12.

Single axle truckloads start at $36 for a 1-ton truck and go up to

Project starts

Work began last week prepping a section of Memorial Park for new playground equipment.

The new equipment, worth close to $17,000, will be installed in an area 180 feet by 70 feet located directly behind and next to the Tourist InfoCentre. The area will be enclosed with a chain link fence.

CAO Bob Lafleur says the project is expected to be complete by mid-August.

The old playground equipment will be relocated to Pine Park.

Three will run

Three members of Village Council have announced their intentions to seek reelection in the November Municipal Elections.

Mayor Robin Lee and Councillors Tom Wilson and Ed Minshull confirmed at the July 15th meeting they will be running again.

Councillors Steve Hecoeks and Jeremy Evans were absent from the meeting.

$180 for a 5 ton truck.

Mattresses and boxsprings will cost $2 each to take to the landfill site and propane tanks will cost $1 per tank.

The fee for refrigerators and other items requiring freon removal is $15, those same items not requiring freon removal can be disposed of for free.

The complete rate schedule, which went into effect July 16th, is available from Keremeos Village Office.

Park is 'on hold'

Last month Village Council revisited the skateboard park issue. Advertising for public input produced little response.

"I think the timing is bad," says CAO Bob Lafleur, "asking for input when a lot of people are on holiday."

Lafleur says Council will ask for public input again in September. The fate of the proposed skateboard park will be determined by the amount of interest shown at that time.

Public Works foreman Bob Stanley pressure washes Victory Hall in preparation for a new coat of paint for the old building.

Victory Hall is slated for a facelift

Keremeos Victory Hall will soon have a new look.

The historic building will be painted over the next three weeks at a cost of close to $4,000.

The final color choices were decided at the July 15th meeting of Village Council with members of the gallery invited for their input.

The main color of Victory Hall will be wedgewood blue with tomahawk red trim and admiral green details.

Once the exterior has undergone some repairs to the existing wood, Katimavik participants will help with the painting.

him." He went on to say McLean influenced people by his life - he was a truly great person as well as a champion. He had the cowboy spirit, and he took part of the west from "western" Canada when he died. He did his best with what he had, he lent a hand to a neighbour, and he dealt with what life gave him.

Day ended with, "Well done. Thanks, Kenny, for reminding us what life is all about."

MLA Bill Barisoff paid tribute to McLean from the point of view of a man who had grown up in "Kenny McLean country" and spoke of how proud the community was of Kenny McLean's achievements.

"He put the South Okanagan, and B.C., on the map," Barisoff said.

Don Raffin talked about the Kenny he knew as a friend, saying Kenny was a deeply caring man, a tease, a man for whom family was important, and a special kind of person.

"When you saw him in a crowd, a special light shone on him," Raffin said, and concluded with, "He died the way he wanted to, being a cowboy."

Bud Sharpe, another of Kenny's cowboy friends, talked about Kenny's natural talent, and some early experiences with Kenny.

"It was better to have known and lost him than never to have known him," Sharpe concluded.

Kenny Manuel began by saying Kenny McLean "touched a special place in our hearts". He spoke of Kenny's often-repeated philosophy "you can do anything you put your mind to."

Manuel talked about Kenny's career, and closed by saying, "The championships he got will never be matched by no man, nowhere, in our lifetime."

Pastor MacNaughton continued the theme of A Cowboy's Prayer, speaking of the blessings of life, the endurance of hardships, and the willingness to keep trying and not lose heart.

At the end of the Christian portion of his sermon, he said of Kenny McLean's life, "He's just had the perfect ride. Thank God for Kenny."

There was a lot of music during the celebration. Lee Dinwoodie played guitar and sang three songs about being a cowboy, ending with a cowboy's farewell as Kenny's son, Guy, led Kenny's horse to the front of the crowd. There were empty boots in the stirrups, and Guy removed the boots and saddle, and led the horse away.

Curt Richens, a country and gospel singer, is also an Elvis Presley vocal impersonator, and sang three songs made famous by Elvis.

The last song was sung by Joey Pierre and Rick Kenoris and others from Penticton Drum Band sang an Okanagan Nation farewell and accompanied the song with drums. Joey Pierre said how glad he is that Kenny's ashes are to be placed on Brent Mountain, a tall proud mountain full of flowers, where Kenny can come alive.

Honorary Pallbearers were Donnie Raffin, Ted Vayro, Buzz

Why the bridge is so high

One of the big questions around town has been, "Why is the new bridge so high?"

There have been lots of jokes about installing a brake check at the high end of the bridge being constructed over the Similkameen River on Highway 3.

Here is the correct answer to the question: the federal government passed a law stating all bridges in Canada must have adequate clearance for watercraft likely to use the particular waterway. So, high water or low, you have plenty of clearance for your canoe, rowboat or kayak.

Peth, Ellie Lewis, George Thompson, Bud Van Cleve, George Herrick, Stan Field, Gary Hart, Bob Robinson, Malcolm Jones, Phil Lyne, Tom Bews, Bob Johnson, Stan Thompson, Dave Atkinson, Benny Reynolds and Bud Sharpe.

Paula McLean and family have requested that anyone wishing to pay tribute to Kenny may make a contribution to the Kenny McLean Trust Fund through any branch of CIBC.

Joey Pierre takes a moment to talk about Kenny McLean before he and the Penticton drummers sang the final farewell.

Youth Ambassadors promise Town they will promote Princeton

Princeton's Youth Ambassadors have formally promised to do their best to promote Princeton. On July 15, at the public meeting of Town Council, the new Youth Ambassadors, Nykayla Stevens, Stacey Lay, Anna Joyner and Jessica Obey were sworn into their official offices by Mayor Randy McLean.

Mayor McLean told them, "The four of you are tremendous representatives of our community. I'm looking forward to riding with you in all the parades."

After the Youth Ambassadors had sworn their oath of office, other members of Council stepped forward to wish them well and shake their hands.

Councillor Kathy Clement told them, "We're very proud of you." Mayor McLean expressed appreciation for the work done by Michelle Cleven and Lori Thomas as the Youth Ambassador Committee.

At a later point in the meeting, Council voted to send a letter of appreciation to Lori Thomas and all of the volunteers for making the Ambassador program a success.

The letter states, "The time spent from the first meeting with the candidates to the Ambassador coronation and all the events the individual must be present at for the balance of the year, is just phenomenal. To see the participants blossom to the extent of being polished public speakers and poised young ladies is a tremendous asset to them and to Princeton."

Young driver charged after car flips

Princeton RCMP, Emergency Health Services and Princeton Highway rescue were called to a single vehicle accident on Old Hedley Road on July 18 at 8:00 p.m. The accident occurred on a 90 degree curve at the bottom of the hill west of the Noppe ranch. The car in which five local youths were travelling went through a barbed wire fence and landed on its roof in a field on the Shackleton farm property. A woman passing by rushed to the vehicle, turned off the engine, and advised the youths to crawl out the windows. One was unable to do so. The passerby then called 911 for assistance.

Four youths escaped with minor injuries while a fifth person remained trapped in the vehicle. Emergency crews extricated the female from the overturned vehicle and transported her to Princeton General Hospital, where her facial injuries were treated.

Police credit seatbelt use for the relatively minor injuries sustained by the two male youths and three female youths.

The driver of the vehicle has been charged with speed relative to conditions.

Eight suffer injuries in three Sunday crashes

Eight people attended Princeton General Hospital on Sunday, July 21, after three separate motor vehicle crashes.

The first, on Highway 3 just west of Princeton, occurred at 4:10 p.m. The driver of a westbound vehicle went off the road and down an embankment.

The two occupants of the vehicle, from Burnaby, attended the hospital with minor injuries and were later released. Police believe the driver fell asleep.

The second crash occurred at 6:10 p.m. on Old Hedley Road. Two people went to hospital after a vehicle failed to negotiate a sharp curve. An 18 year old Princeton woman has been charged with speeding.

The third, and most serious crash, occurred at 10:00 p.m. near the Mohawk service station on the west side of the Town of Princeton. An eastbound cargo van was travelling in the westbound lane when it collided with a van carrying seven people.

Four people were transported to Princeton General after this crash. The van was destroyed.

The driver of the eastbound vehicle, a 36 year old Osoyoos resident, was charged with driving without due care and attention.

Fortunately, none of the injuries in these crashes were serious. Police remind motorists to slow down and drive carefully.

Skills Centre offers alternative post-secondary options

by Sharan Jung, Manager, Princeton and District Community Skills Centre

Since its 1997 opening, Princeton and District Community Skills Centre has been brokering vocational and general interest courses to the benefit of many Princeton residents and businesses.

Recognizing the challenges of rural post-secondary education delivery, coupled with the high cost of on-campus training, the Skills Centre is proud to unveil its latest endeavour – support services to distance education students.

We believe that the distance education model, whether book-driven or on-line courses, is the next wave of educational service delivery. In fact, we believe there is proof this is the next level of service in recent moves by the Ministry of Advanced Education and a variety of BC colleges and universities to partner in a cooperative for distance education and online education delivery.

Campus education is expensive, classes are overloaded and are not always the ideal method of obtaining education. Whether you are 18 or 38, distance education is an education alternative deserving attention.

The Skills Centre has put together a package of services to help you at all levels or at only those levels you need.

Beginning with career exploration and counselling, moving forward to your program and course selection, making your admission applications, securing a professional atmosphere conducive to learning, networking with other students, obtaining skills necessary to succeed in your studies, accessing tutors, practicum or work experience arrangements and invigilation of your exams, the Skills Centre supports students at every level.

Most programs have continuous enrollment, start at your convenience. Programs offered by distance education are plentiful, from Home Support Resident Care Aid to complete business degrees. There are programs for all interests. Distance education certificates and degrees are the same level of competence as classroom-based training.

Additionally, still utilizing the beautiful campus located at 206 Vermilion Avenue in Princeton, we are working diligently with BCIT to bring a classroom-based instructor-led Forestry Technician Certificate program to Princeton. Slated for January 2003, and continuing full-time for nine months, this program will be of interest to anyone wishing to pursue professional forestry as a career or those wishing to obtain employment in the field in a junior or assistance capacity.

We require a class of 20 students for this course that will include field experience in Princeton's wood basket.

Information on distance education services of the Skills Centre, identified programs and the on-site Forestry Technician program is available at the Skills Centre.

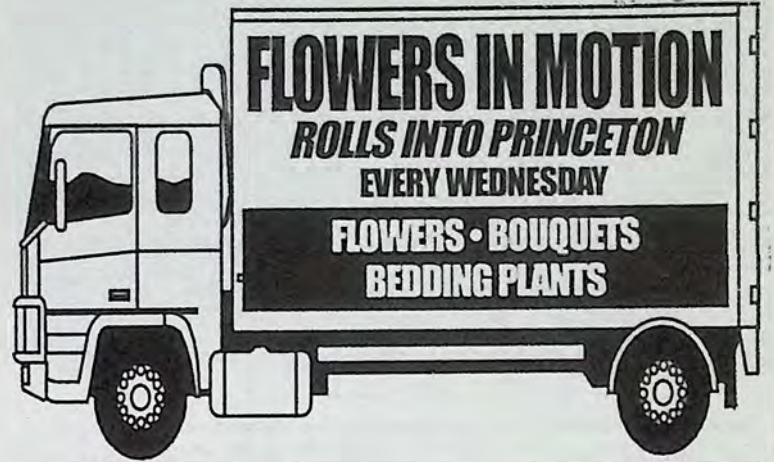

Staff is set to discuss your educational needs, service needs and program information specifically at our Open House scheduled for Wednesday – Friday, July 24-26, 2002 during office hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Whether you are a recent high school graduate or an adult returning student, examine the distance education option or the on-site Forestry Program and begin your future with Princeton and District Community Skills Centre.

Re-zoning will correct an old error and make expansion possible.

Re-zoning solves problem

A series of "cabins" on Burton Avenue were built during the post-war housing shortage in 1946. When Princeton was incorporated, and zoning was done, the property was zoned for single family dwellings despite the fact that there were multiple dwellings on the property.

The original owner died a few years ago, and the present owner, Marv Carlson, discovered he can build nothing on the property without a change in zoning. One of the units had burned, and he could not replace it. Carlson plans to create a hostel and rent the units to cyclists and hikers using the TransCanada Trail and other routes in the area. The property is in an excellent location for that purpose.

At Town Hall, Carlson learned the original cabins had been allowed despite the zoning due to a process known as "grandfathering". Now he must go through the process of changing the property to the correct zoning for the buildings on it. He is collecting letters of support from his neighbours.

The hearing will be held at Town Hall at 7:00 p.m. August 6.

What do you do to beat summertime boredom?

It's too hot to work. There's nothing you want to watch on television. What you want is a cool breeze as you sit in the shade with a cold drink in your hand. There you are, sitting in the shade with your cold drink and suddenly, you realize this is how you spelling "boring". What can you do? You can visit your public library. Not only does it have really great air conditioning, it has an excellent collection of fiction and non-fiction books for you to read while you sit in the shade with a cold drink in your hand. Take a look at some of the books on the shelves. Maybe this is a good time to read one of the many books on gardening, so you can plan your fall planting and winter pruning. Maybe you would like to read some of the Christmas craft books (does the thought of winter cool you?).

Are you thinking about a winter vacation? There are plenty of travel books. Speaking of vacations, if you are planning one soon, you might want to check out where you are going by doing some research at your library. If you have Internet at home, you can visit the library online at orl.bc.ca and you can select and order books online. Stimulate your mind even if you don't feel like moving your body!

How to make sure summer salads are safe

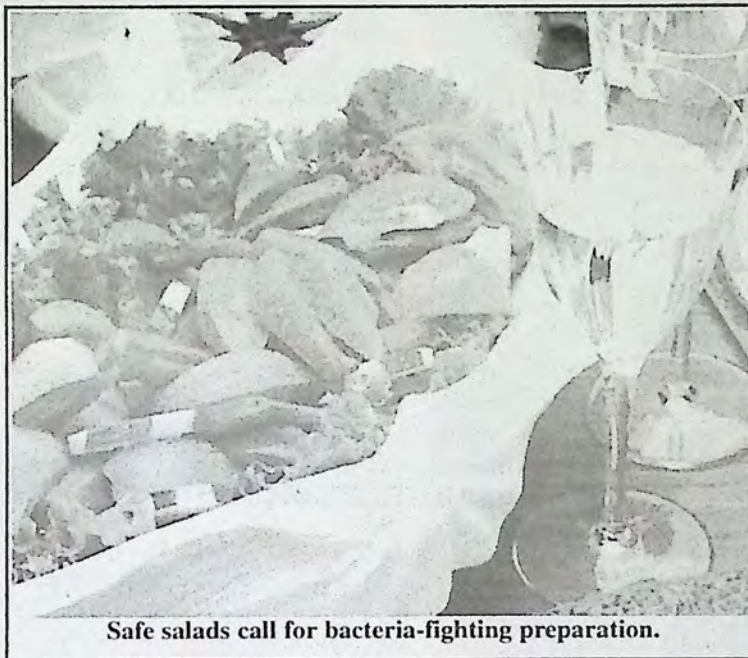

Interior Health Authority sent out an advisory on eating uncooked vegetables, and at the same time, encourage people to enjoy the fruit and vegetables of summer.

In recent years, there have been outbreaks of illness associated with cantaloues, raspberries, bean sprouts and spinach. While the food industry is working to reduce the risk of contamination of these products, bacteria can still taint the food at any stage of the journey from farm field to the consumer.

There are simple things consumers can do to reduce the risk of illness from fresh fruits and vegetables.

Interior Health Authority recommends all fruits and vegetables which are to be eaten raw be washed thoroughly. Spinach and lettuce must be washed leaf by leaf, taking care to remove as much dirt as you can see, and remove the brown spots, as bacteria may be hiding in these damaged areas.

make sure both the produce and the water are clean before the produce is submerged. This will help reduce the risk of illness. You can use spray type wash methods instead of just submerging produce. If not washed properly, lettuce, spinach, sprouts and berries are all high-risk foods.

Proper washing is a critical step in ridding these foods of bacteria. Industry standards are created to help reduce the number of bacteria that may contaminate these products.

Consumers should be careful when handling these foods. To avoid cross-contamination after handling raw foods, it is vital that you wash your hands and clean up the food preparation area properly.

Ottawa cuts B.C., Yukon fisheries budget by $209.2 million Fisheries and Oceans Canada Pacific Region, which covers all of B.C. and Yukon, will receive only $209.2 million for all operations, including fisheries permitting, enforcement, research, management and planning for 2002-03. This translates into a $55.5 million loss for the Okanagan Similkameen Boundary region. For the same period, the Ottawa region (National Capital Region) has received a $131.7 million increase to its budget.

In fact, by the 2003/04 fiscal year, the National Capital Region budget will represent 47.3 percent of the entire Fisheries and Oceans Canada budget. In terms of geography, the National Capital Region is approximately 3,000 square kilometres, while the Pacific Region has 29,500 kms. of coastline, 6,600 islands and approximately 450,000 square kms. of internal and offshore waters.

The first spawning salmon in the Columbia River system within northern Washington were seen two weeks ago. Reports to Okanagan Similkameen Boundary Fisheries Partnership indicate the salmon run this year should be better than in the past few years. Higher, colder stream flows are undoubtedly a positive factor.

Increasing the salmon spawning potential and salmon production is a stated goal of the federal government, but it would appear they are not willing to spend money on the Pacific salmon.

Triathlon looks for women

The categories for the Tulameen Triathlon are Men's Single, Women's Single, Mixed Relay, Men's Relay and Women's Relay.

There has never been a women's team entered in the Women's Relay, so if a women's team enters it is guaranteed to be in the money.

There are four women entered this year in Women's Single,

Our downtown deer visited the lot beside Town Hall last week, then decided they were the object of far too much attention. They cut across Bridge Street and went over to the Legion.

Horoscopes July 23 to 29

ARIES - Watch yourself while driving during this week and next. You have too much playful energy, which is good if you apply it to sports but not behind the wheel! You can put feet in mouth, too!
TAURUS - Check your home for fire safety. This week could involve some cranky talk around home, probably by you! The problem is - you want to play. You might be tempted to fib this weekend but watch out!
GEMINI - You could suddenly spend too much or gain a lot of money this week, so caution is the key. Life around home is good, and you can benefit by home redecoration or just general cleaning.
CANCER - Financial matters, mainly lack of money, occupy your energies this week. If you want more money, or more possessions, you are going to have to actively pursue what you want. Do it!
LEO - You are becoming increasingly more egotistical and full of yourself this week. You want to tell the world all about how important you are. You will feel the consequences by the end of the week.
VIRGO - Your flow of positive energy continues but there are some angry thoughts building up these days. Is somebody taking shots at you! Is your ego endangered? Is your pride in yourself under attack?
LIBRA - Your circle of friends has a lot to say this week. They could be very vocal and you may find all their ideas and plans just too much to deal with, but pay attention - they may be right.
SCORPIO - You will be on the run this week - at your career and at home. This is an active phase challenging you to keep up with everything. Find gentle relaxation with a group of friends.
SAGITTARIUS - Your ability to promote and sell is at its peak this week and next. Get out there and really move ahead. Anything you need to sell, promote or advertise will get results now!
CAPRICORN - Your focus shifts to resources you share with others. Check real estate values, bank accounts, insurance, mortgage, loans, and possessions. Spouse may be unpredictable about spending.
AQUARIUS - Suddenly, a new partner may come into your life. You could have a whole lot of fun, but do not take it seriously for awhile yet. At the same time, don't toss it aside - it holds promise.
PISCES - Health and employment matters are suddenly extremely important to you. You will be subject to burns, scrapes and infections, and if you are over 50, have your heart checked. Be serious about it.

Old age is a problem for British Columbia

In this week's edition, on page 22, there is a review of the age of British Columbia's population as compared with the population of the rest of the nation. Our population is older than every other province in the west, and Alberta's population is younger than the rest. This is significant information, because it affects our economy.

Of particular significance is the number of people in B.C. who are over age 65, and the lack of those under age 35. It is no secret that B.C. is the favourite retirement haven for prairie people, and no secret that Alberta is where a lot of young people go to find work. Finding work is the key to the migration of the young, and that migration has an impact on our economy.

There are other numbers showing the real significance of the economic impact. B.C. shows a decrease in people between the ages of 34 and 20, and a corresponding decrease in children under age five. The economic impact is the loss of young families. Young families mean growth of local economies and the loss of young families in a community means a loss to retailers, to real estate and construction, and to school districts. We may have to look at ways to change this trend.

One of the strongest impacts on our economy as a result of a growing number of elderly people is the high cost of health services. People over age 60 become increasingly dependent on health care services. They are not only dependent on doctor, hospitals and medications, they are dependent on home care, dental services, optometric services and services for diabetics. We need to be sure the federal government allocates health care funding according to the age of our population. This may mean Alberta receives less health care money per capita while B.C. and Quebec receive more, but when we consider that not all of our retired population originated in B.C., this is the fairest way of allocating health care dollars across Canada. There is no reason why B.C. taxpayers should bear the entire brunt of health care costs for those who move here from other provinces to spend their most costly health care years.

Message to BC: Ontario learned the hard way

Dear Editor:

The recent Ontario provincial budget probably doesn't sound like exciting summer reading to most people, but British Columbians might want to pay close attention.

The political message from the budget is clear: Mike Harris' so-called "Common Sense Revolution" is nearing the end of the road - just as BC's "New Era" is getting going.

Ontario's budget suspended previously promised tax cuts, increased health care spending substantially, and provided new funding for water treatment. This change of direction offers some hope for the future to Ontario citizens concerned about the deterioration of public services and quality of life since 1995. It also offers an opportunity for others in Canada, whose governments have picked up "Harrisism" as an export product, to learn from our painful experience.

Mike Harris' "revolution" has been an abject failure both fiscally and socially, even on the Ontario Conservatives' own terms.

The Common Sense Revolution was supposed to be about fiscal responsibility and reducing the deficit. Yet despite the longest continuous economic expansion in the province's history, Ontario's public debt has increased by $20 billion under the Tories. Half of that increase was incurred to pay for tax cuts granted before the books had been balanced.

The Common Sense Revolution was supposed to be about tax relief for average families. In fact, most of the benefits of the tax cuts went to the wealthiest 20 percent of the population and to profitable corporations. For most people, the tax cuts have been gobbled up by user fees and increased costs to provide services privately instead of publicly.

In the process, Ontario's revenue has been slashed by 20 percent. A recent estimate by the Federal Department of Finance puts the impact of provincially-initiated corporate and personal income tax cuts at $12.3 billion for 2002-03.

This huge hole in government revenue is reflected directly in a large and growing public services deficit. In the elementary and secondary education system, the effects of over $2 billion in cuts since 1995 are being felt across the province in school closures, program cuts, and waiting lists for special education programs. Parents are being asked to fundraise for books and gym equipment. Physical education programs are being restricted. And many school boards, having hit the wall financially, will operate deficits in 2002-03 in defiance of the Education Act.

After closing hospitals and laying off nurses, the government has gone on a hospital building spree and created an emergency program to deal with a shortage of nurses. Waiting lists for basic services are growing, and emergency rooms are routinely closed to new patients arriving by ambulance.

Many working families live from crisis to crisis, as they scramble to fill the void created by child care funding cuts. College and university tuition have soared, putting post-secondary education out of reach for many families. And perhaps most shamefully, in Canada's wealthiest province, homelessness and hunger are growing and growing.

A deficit in the tens of billions in investment in public infrastructure has emerged. Our sewer and water systems have been found by public inquiry to be substandard. Roads are deteriorating. The highest profile case in the mess of Ontario's public-private partnerships - the construction and sale of Highway 407 - took the people of Ontario to the cleaners, selling an asset for $1.6 billion that is now valued on the books of the purchasing company at more than $5 billion.

This is just the tip of the iceberg. Both economically and politically, the Harris Revolution is over. Every day, Ontarians are reminded that the cuts of the Harris years are sustainable. The Conservatives themselves are now rushing back to the political center Continued next page ...

Why can't the English speak English?

Dawn Johnson, Editor

I don't know how the rest of you feel about how the English language is murdered by broadcasters, but I feel really annoyed with their inability to correctly pronounce words. I forgive them when they persist in pronouncing Osoyoos the way it is spelled – who would guess it is supposed to be Oh-soo-yiss? However, when they take ordinary English words and mispronounce them, I feel they ought to be reprimanded and sent back to school to learn English.

For example, how often do you hear them talking about nuclear scientists and call them "nucular"? What is so hard about saying "Nuke-lee-ar"?

Another, less frequent, error is mispronouncing words ending in "ial". For example, I heard one interviewer ask about financial planning and called it "finantual". That was pure ignorance.

The broadcasters who really cause me to grate my teeth are the "English" English-speaking people. They pronounce "mother" as if it were spelled "mothah". This is not so terrible, but then they will take a simple word like "Argentina", which ends in a sound they love, and turn it into "Argentiner". Where did that "r" at the end come from? If they can add it at the end where none exists, why can't they put it in at the end of "mother"?

The worst one yet was in a news story about an "oaker" going back to its pod. What's an "oaker"? Well, if you mispronounce badly enough, it is actually a killer whale known as an Orca! You see, some English-speaking people pronounce "or" as "oh" and then make it worse by adding the "r" after the "a" at the end of a word.

I believe a person who speaks to the public as a broadcaster should set an example for good English usage. A broadcaster in London received an award for the best English spoken in broadcasting. He was born in Africa and learned English as a second language. Often, the people who speak the worst English learned it first.

B.C. government changes gaming laws

A new law to strengthen and streamline the management of gaming in British Columbia will come into effect on August 19, 2002. This new law will make gaming more accountable.

The Gaming Control Act sets up a comprehensive framework for regulation and managing gaming in B.C. Under the new act, the Gaming Policy and Enforcement Branch will be responsible for policy, standards, regulation, registration, enforcement, gaming licenses, horse racing and the distribution of gaming revenue.

The B.C. Lottery Corp., will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of provincial gaming, including casinos, commercial bingo halls and lotteries. The new act repeals the Lottery Act, the Lottery Corporation Act and the Pacific Racing Association Act.

Last fall government consolidated five different gaming agencies into two: the Gaming Policy and Enforcement Branch and the B.C. Lottery Corp. The new act builds on those reforms by establishing one comprehensive act to oversee all areas of gaming in B.C.

To look at an online version of the new gaming act, go to http://www.legis.gov.bc.ca/37th3rd/3rd_read/gov06-3.htm

To reach the Gaming Policy and Enforcement Branch by phone, call 250-952-6652.

Learning from Ontario

in the hopes of salvaging the next election. Unfortunately, it is difficult to take much satisfaction in the early stages of this retreat. It will take years to renew Ontario's public services, and the damage caused to the province's social fabric may never be repaired.

The same is in store for B.C., only worse. Gordon Campbell's policy script is a warmed-over and speeded-up version of the failed Ontario experiment. Tax and spending cuts have been implemented faster and on a larger scale, despite the fact that BC doesn't have the prospect of record growth in exports to the United States to bail the government out of its self-inflicted fiscal mess.

There is an important message here for people in the provinces headed down the road paved by Mike Harris: the bridge is out, and at the end of the road you will find inequality, social division, higher levels of public debt, impoverished public services, costly policy reversals, and a daunting task of renewal. Read the last chapter of the book now, and change the ending.

Yours truly,
Hugh Mackenzie,
Director of Research for the United Steelworkers of America.

Heart Food

by Dave Machin

God favours me, and let me tell you that you are one of His favourites also! Psalms 145:8 & 9 declares that the Lord is gracious and full of compassion, slow to anger and of great mercy. The Lord is GOOD TO ALL and His tender mercies are over all His works. God is gracious. Do you know what that means? He is disposed to show favours. It's just His nature to bless people. He is also full of compassion. The word "compassion" is not just a passive word like "pity". It is a force that stirs one to action. One definition of compassion is "eager yearning". How awesome! God is eagerly yearning to do you good. In fact, the Bible says that God is looking for someone to bless. He is not satisfied unless He can do someone good (11 Chronicles 16:9). In fact, it goes so far as to say that God actually cares for the birds of the air. Well, if He cares for birds, what about you? All He wants is for you to open up the door to your heart a little bit and His love will come flooding through it. Flooding is a good word to use to describe His mercy because if we will just give Him the slightest opening, His mercy will rush in upon us. God wants to do you good. He wants you to live the good life! So next time someone tells you that God's will for you is to be sick or downtrodden, just remember what Psalms 145: 8 & 9 says. Even in this dark and fearful world, a life of health, a life of joy, a life of abundance. God's word is a word that will put hope and encouragement in you, instead of discouragement and hopelessness. His plans for you are good. Remember this: when you discover you have been deceived into believing something, you are not deceived anymore. If I could shout anything from the highest point in Princeton, it would be this – God is good, His word is good and good all the time.

Sore feet, anyone? by Dr. Duane Drobot

Have you ever seen the Tower of Pisa in Italy?

Why does it lean? The answer is: it does not have a solid foundation. During the years, a weakness in the foundation of the building created a progressive tilt in the tower. In fact, the building has recently been re-levelled by engineers to prevent it from collapsing.

What does this have to do with your body? Similar to the foundation of a building, you require a solid foundation of support. Your foundation begins at the feet.

The primary function of the foot is to support the static weight of the body against the effects of gravity. The foot must react also to dynamic changes in body weight as you move. In addition, the foot must adapt to the changing contours of the ground. The foot accomplishes these tasks through specific alterations in internal structure resulting in either a rigid or flexible posture.

The foot must maintain a rigid or flexible posture at specific phases of the gait cycle. From heel strike through mid-stance, the foot must remain flexible to absorb the shock of impact and conform to the contour of the ground. From mid-stance to toe push-off, the foot must change to a rigid posture to maintain forward propulsion in an energy-efficient manner. When this profile fails to occur, the result is inefficient movement and susceptibility to injuries. Symptoms such as pain on the heel, medial arch, ball of the foot, knees, hips, lower back and mid-back are common manifestations of improper foot biomechanics or support.

Research suggests that 30 percent of people demonstrate proper biomechanical function in the feet. That is an amazing statistic! It means approximately 70 percent of the Canadian population has improper foot function!

The bad news is that most footwear does not provide proper anatomical support for the feet and perpetuates foot problems. Even expensive brand name shoes most often fail to provide proper support, even though they may provide adequate cushioning. Unfortunately, the trend in footwear is toward aesthetic appeal and not anatomical function. This fact is especially apparent with women's shoes.

The good news is that improper foot biomechanics generally fall into one of two categories, those whose foot remains too rigid (3 percent) and those whose foot remains too flexible (67 percent) through the gait cycle. The appropriate treatment really depends on the problem. However, the first step is to seek the advice of a professional who is trained with knowledge of the area. Classically, this is the specialty of a Podiatrist. However, chiropractic is well-placed for the diagnosis and treatment of most conditions because it looks at structural dysfunction in the body and how it impacts body function. In fact, we see many patients on a daily basis with knee, hip, pelvic, spine, headaches or other more complicated neuromusculoskeletal conditions all related to structural problems with the feet.

So what is the answer? Everyone needs properly fitted footwear providing both cushion and anatomical support. For 30 percent of the population, this is achieved with a properly fitting shoe from a reputable maker. However, many people (70 percent) require additional anatomical support for the foot. One option is a custom orthotic support specifically designed to meet the individual functional requirements. A word of caution—there are many devices present on the market for the feet. The solution right for you depends on many factors. There are no quick fixes! The advice of a professional who understands these issues will set you on the right footing.

For further consultation about foot problems or health issues, contact Dr. Drobot at Similkameen Chiropractic (295-0533).

B.C. is oldest province

New census data on age and sex reveals that British Columbia is now the "oldest" province in western Canada, while Alberta is the country's "youngest" province.

Census data indicated Canada's population has aged significantly.

Between 1991 and 2001, the median age of BC's population increased from 34.7 years to 38.4 years. This was just short of the nation's highest median age of 38.8 years in both Nova Scotia and Quebec. The median age in Alberta was 35. (Median age is the point where exactly one half of the population is older and the other half is younger.)

The 2001 census showed the median age of Canada's population reached an all-time high of 37.6 years, an increase of 2.3 years from 35.3 in 1996. This was the biggest census-to-census increase in median age in a century.

In 2001, young people aged 19 and under accounted for 25 percent of BC's population; those aged 20 to 64 made up 61 percent, and seniors aged 65 and over made up 14 percent.

The population of every age group in BC increased between 1991 and 2001, except for two. The number of pre-school children aged four and under declined seven percent from 220,830 to 205,655, and the number aged 25 to 34 declined eight percent from 562,080 to 518,615.

On the other hand, between 1991 and 2001, BC experienced substantial increases in its older working age population, and large increases among the elderly. The population aged 45 to 64 soared

Apricots are more than just good taste!

This is the time of year when apricots are at their peak, and they are worth the effort of preserving. In China, where apricots originated, this fruit is considered the very best anti-disease fruit, and is believed to increase fertility.

In fact, research has proven the Chinese correct: apricots are a rich source of a mineral needed for the production of sex hormones. However, apricots are far more important for fighting heart disease, blindness and infections, and may help fight cancer.

All of us have heard of beta-carotene, the cancer-fighting vitamin found in broccoli. If you don't like broccoli, stock up on apricots. Beta-carotene is not the only carotenoid found in apricots. There are 600 different kinds of carotenoids, and apricots contain some of the most beneficial.

Apricots are marvelous at fighting heart disease. Apricots contain a combination of beta-carotene and lycopene. Together, these combat the effects of cholesterol. Research has shown you can lower your risk of heart attack by eating foods rich in carotenoids, especially the two mentioned, and apricots are a delicious source.

Apricots' high levels of carotenoids help prevent cataracts, too. Studies have shown the people who eat a lot of foods containing carotenoids are 30 percent less likely to have cataracts.

If you need a high fibre diet, then consider apricots as a valuable source. The skin of apricots is rich in fibre, and apricots should be eaten with the skin on. Even preserved apricots are prepared with the skin on.

Apricots are good for you dried or canned, and home canning, here in the Similkameen Valley, is the least expensive way to store apricots. Buy them in bulk and put them up for winter eating.

Line-ups to the new bridge during paving last week were extremely hot. The line-up one day was further complicated by a car catching fire and the Fire Department arriving. The heat was nearly unbearable for drivers, and nobody could understand how the flagpersons and paving crew could endure the exposure to the high temperatures for an entire shift.

Revelstoke does not support WCWC "Bugaboo Rainforest"

In June, Princeton Town Council received a letter from Western Canada Wilderness Committee (WCWC) asking for support for their proposal to make the Bugaboos a national park. The WCWC initiative was in opposition to a proposed major resort development in the Kootenays in the famous skiing area known as the Bugaboos.

WCWC said the "Bugaboo temperate rainforest" would be in jeopardy, along with the wildlife of the area.

Town Council decided to write to Revelstoke City Council to find their views, as the proposal affects their area. Revelstoke replied, and explained why they do not support the WCWC proposal.

Revelstoke City Council said the provincial government, through the CORE process in 1995, had developed the Kootenay-Boundary Land Use Plan. In the planning process, the public was consulted and all of the local interests - forestry, farming, recreation, tourism and conservation - were addressed. Land was set aside for a provincial park.

The letter to Princeton states, "Throughout development of the plan a balance of economic, environmental and social values were recognized.... Accordingly, it is City Council's view that a balance between these values must be maintained and there fore, does not support the Western Canada Wilderness Committee proposal."

On having heard from the local residents of the area, Princeton Town Council chose not to support WCWC's Bugaboo project.

Among seniors, the population aged 70 to 79 increased 27 percent to 248,130. The number aged 80 and over soared from 87,065 to 134,175, a 54 percent increase - the highest such growth among the provinces. According to projections, this latter group can expect to gain another 43 percent by 2011.

Thirteen of the 25 oldest Canadian municipalities with a population over 5,000 in 2001 were in B.C. At the top of the list was Qualicum Beach with a median age of 58.1 years, followed by White Rock at 50.9 and Sidney at 50.7.

The only two BC municipalities on the list of Canada's 25 youngest municipalities over 5,000 were Fort St. John in fourteenth spot and Whistler in the eighteenth position. Whistler ranked second among the 5,000 plus municipalities for the highest men-to-women ration. For every 100 women, the resort town had 121.6 men. Mackenzie came third, with 117.6 men. BC municipalities placing high on the list of fewer men to women corresponded to the older population - White Rock second with 80.4 men to every 100 women, Sidney fourth with 81.5 men, and Oak Bay eighth with 82.6 men.

In 1996, Victoria had the oldest population among Canada's metropolitan areas. Now Trois Rivieres, Quebec, claims that spot with a median age of 41.2 years, up 2.3 years from 1996. The median age of Vancouver's population is 37.4 years.

In 1996, the population of the urban area consisting of the Lower Mainland and southern Vancouver Island was slightly older than the rest of the province. In 2001, the urban area's population was younger. The median age of this urban area increased from 36 to 38.1 years in 2001. During the same time, the median age of the population in the rest of BC increased from 35.8 to 39.2.

Asset Development

Church can be a great experience for kids

By Nadine McEwen, Asset Development Coordinator

Asset #19: religious community Event: SonCanyon River Adventures Vacation Bible School August 12-16, 9:00 a.m. to noon, at the Baptist Church across from the arena.

Stepping off the street and entering into a church building for the first time can be an exciting, if not anxious, time for a child, but walking into a church building transformed into canyons with raging rivers, dark caverns with dripping stalactites, friendly campsites with tents and campfires – now, that’s another experience altogether! Church buildings by themselves, however, don’t make the experience for a child. Many loving Christians who are joining together from several churches in Princeton bring the real adventures to life. The excitement begins in the “Wise Guides’ Campsite” with live drama, stories of adventure from Biblical characters, lively music (with actions!).

Then the children’s guides will take them further on their adventure to learn practical outdoor skills, make crafts, enjoy special treats, play new, exciting games, and memorize proverbs that teach them how to be wise!

On the Asset Building map, this translates to a wonderful opportunity for Christians in Princeton to offer children an opportunity to be involved in constructive activities, feel valued by their religious community, experience positive adult role models, learn practical life skills, build positive self-esteem, and enjoy life in God’s family, in a week filled with fun and adventure.

For Christian teenagers, this event offers you an opportunity to volunteer your time, build leadership skills, offer something back to the community, be a positive role model to younger children, learn practical skills, laugh and have fun, and use your time constructively.

To volunteer, please contact Linda at 295-0456.
