

ATV heaven for a weekend

The latest models of ATVs were set up at the fairgrounds against the heritage backdrop, pointing out the changes from the days of horseback travel to the days of all-terrain vehicles.

Council urges PXA changes

When Princeton Exhibition Association (PXA) met August 12, Councillor Spencer Coyne presented a list of recommendations from Town Council about the conduct of PXA business.

Two of the recommendations were adopted into policy. The first covered a hiring policy which stated if the PXA decides to hire a person for more than 20 hours per week, then they must post the job in local newspapers and at the Skills Centre for at least one week prior to hiring, and no PXA member may become a regular paid employee of the PXA.

This recommendation, although adopted as policy, was rejected in a sense. Vice-President Jody Woodford questioned whether the PXA wanted to be involved in hiring a regular employee at any time, as it would mean establishing a Workers Compensation account and Employment Insurance account. She suggested hiring a contractor for any work the volunteers could not handle.

Members agreed with Woodford, and decided manure piles near the stables should be moved by a contractor.

The other recommendation adopted dealt with conduct of meetings. Councillor Coyne said this recommendation would speed up meetings. Members agreed reports should be written and handed out with the agenda at the beginning of each meeting, and any verbal reports should be no longer than 10 minutes.

Minutes should be attached to the agenda for members to review before the meeting.

A committee to deal with issues related to the barns has been struck, and a committee has been struck to review policy, rental costs at the barn, and other matters related to the use of the barn and stables.

The PXA has no policy manual, and members agreed there should be one. However, everyone is too busy to review all past motions and pertinent information at this time. Members agreed to let the policy manual issue rest until October, and attempt to put some kind of manual in place by the annual general meeting on November 18.

Flea market

The PXA is planning a flea market for September 13, to coincide with the Fall Fair Horseshoe Tournament, which takes place one week after the fair. The PXA will rent tables to the public for the flea market, and expressed no restrictions on what products may be sold.

Halloween Fun

Topley Hanna, representing Princeton's firemen, requested the use of the fairgrounds for a Halloween spook house, bonfire and fireworks. PXA members did not hesitate to grant permission, and enthusiastically endorsed the idea.

Hanna explained the difficulties Fire Department members have faced when putting the spook house in the fire hall. He explained that the set-up and tear-down would be so much simpler at the fairgrounds, as the spook house materials are stored there anyway.

PXA President Sandi Gabor stated this event will be a goodwill gesture to the community and no rent will be charged for the use of the grounds. She added the firemen must be responsible for fireworks and the bonfire to ensure safety and fire protection. At the same time, she did not expect any fire problems, as there are generally a few good days of rain before October 31.

ATV group reports to PXA

Two representatives of the ATV jamboree attended the August 12 meeting of Princeton Exhibition Association (PXA).

Bev Felske, from ATVBC, and Ed McMurray of the Lower Mainland ATV Club, explained to PXA members exactly what they would be doing on the weekend. They have been working with Cascade Forest District in planning their rides in the back country. Each group on a ride carried a fire extinguisher and water jugs.

Ed McMurray commended Princeton Rodeo Club for doing the breakfasts and dinner, and complimented RCMP Sgt. Kurt Lozinski for the level of cooperation they received from him. They told the PXA their policy is to do their annual general meetings and jamboree in rural areas and are well aware of the economic bene-

ATV BC had a great time exploring valley

The ATVs left their camp at Princeton's fairgrounds on Saturday morning for a number of different trips through the upper Similkameen watershed. One group took Mayor Keith Olsen and Chamber manager Lori Thomas on their trip, and Mayor Olsen was impressed with the responsible way this group behaves when on a ride.

Groups went to Rampart Lake, Elkhart Lodge, Coalmont, Tulameen, upper China Creek, and one group took the children to Three Lakes Store for ice cream. Everyone had a great time. The group who went to Coalmont had lunch at the old hotel, and were welcomed by host Peter Jack, the owner.

Breakfast was served on Saturday and Sunday mornings by Princeton Rodeo Club, who put together a beef on a bun dinner on Saturday evening, and ran a refreshment garden for the ATV group.

The jamboree registered 143 members, plus 16 children. This was the second year of combining the annual general meeting with a camp-out. Those who attended expressed their appreciation of the fairgrounds as a "perfect set-up" – it was secure, everything was in one place, including an area for them to ride and maybe try out a few of the new models on display in the marketing area.

Princeton gave a good welcome.

Twenty-four year old Tucker Lewis of Princeton was killed at approximately 4:30 a.m. August 12 when the semi he was driving failed to negotiate a slight curve on Highway 3 at Allison Pass. Lewis, who was alone in the truck, was trapped in the passenger area, which indicated to police he was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident. Hope RCMP and Hope Search and Rescue found him dead at the scene.

A preliminary investigation revealed the tractor trailer unit gradually left the highway on the right side, then rolled onto its side. The investigation is ongoing.

fits to communities selected. They like the Princeton facility, and were satisfied with the arrangement to use the showers at the arena.

PXA members had promised local ATV representative Otto Coers they would have showers for the jamboree, but the cost proved prohibitive to build or rent at this time. One shower building was offered for sale to the PXA, but it proved unsuitable.

Felske said ATVBC is promoting ATV tourism, along with registration of ATVs and safety regulations for driving ATVs. She said this would be of benefit to all owners, and registration would make it possible to trace stolen ATVs. Through registration and licensing of the vehicles, the ATV association hopes to receive a portion of the cost back to create mapped ATV trails in B.C.

Community supports fair playground

Princeton turned out and gave great support to members of the Fire Department and Fall Fair in a car wash and bake sale at Princeton Plaza on Saturday. The fundraising effort was to help pay for the expensive inflatable playground, laser tag and climbing wall for the kids at this year's Fall Fair on September 6 and 7. Thanks to the generosity of local residents, at total of $628.80 went into the fund.

Judge finds driver guilty

David M. Isaacson of Laidlaw, B.C., defended himself on August 14 in Provincial Court in Princeton. Isaacson stood trial on one count of dangerous driving and one of assault causing bodily harm.

The charges arose from a motor vehicle accident on April 20, 2002, in which Isaacson drove three passengers – Joel and Bill Kramer and Carmen Caruso – to visit Kramer's mother, who lives on the Princeton-Summerland Road. Caruso testified that Isaacson was driving "like a maniac" and failed to negotiate a corner. The car went off the road into a field, rolling four times before landing on its wheels.

Isaacson demanded the group abandon the car immediately, and later went back to pick up evidence of liquor in the vehicle. A neighbour gave Caruso and Joel Kramer a ride to Kramer's mother's residence, and later gave Isaacson and Bill Kramer a ride to the same location.

In the early hours of the morning, Caruso called a friend and asked her to take her and Joel back to their home in Princeton. Isaacson wanted to accompany them, but they refused because they were still angry with him for causing the accident. At this point, witnesses said Isaacson tackled Joel and there were blows.

Isaacson denied he had been driving fast, and his mother testified on his behalf that the speedometer on his vehicle did not work, so Caruso saying he was driving 120 kmph was an error. Further, Isaacson said he sneezed just as he came up to the corner, and the Kramer brothers were distracting him as well.

There was a great deal of extraneous information for Judge B. Grannary to sort through, but when the judge gave his verdict, he explained why he did not believe Isaacson's version of the events. His explanation included Isaacson's past convictions for fraud and possession of stolen property which the judge said were an indication of lack of credibility. "As in all such cases, credibility is a serious issue," Judge Grannary told Isaacson.

At the same time, the judge found Isaacson guilty of common assault, not assault causing bodily harm.

Crown Counsel Vern Frolick asked for a period of incarceration for Isaacson, but Judge Grannary ordered a $500 fine and a one year suspension of driving privileges, with a $75 victim fine surcharge, for the dangerous driving conviction. The sentence for the assault was a $250 fine with a $50 victim fine surcharge and one year on probation.

Low river water means danger of disease

People who allow their children to swim in local rivers should urge their children to avoid taking the water into their mouths and stomachs. The water levels are very low and warmer than normal now. This makes an excellent breeding condition for water-borne diseases such as "beaver fever".

Many wild animals will go to the river to drink and many will go into the water to avoid the heat.

Not only beaver, but many wild animals will defecate into the water. The E. coli, coliform and bacteria levels in general will be higher than normal due to the low volumes of water. There is not enough water to reduce the count per million.

The safest place to swim is the public pool where the water is chlorinated.

For the second time in a month, Princeton Fire Department was called out to battle a blaze near John Allison Elementary School caused by surface coal dumped when the mines were operating years ago. Fortunately, there was no wind or the blazing logs could have ignited a grass fire that would have spread to the forest and endangered residents in the Deerview area. Firemen agreed the property should be cleaned up. The area is within Town boundaries.

Don't take water for granted

Although the Town of Princeton is not facing a water crisis, water levels in the southern Interior of B.C. are lower than normal. A number of rural residents have little or no water in their wells, and we are now in the middle of the two driest months of the year.

Water, Land and Air Protection Minister Joyce Murray issued a water conservation reminder last week to residents.

"The southern half of the province faces one of the driest summers on record and we must take steps to conserve water dur-

Judge orders fine for impaired

In Provincial Court in Princeton on August 14, Douglas Greening pled guilty to a charge of impaired driving. He had been apprehended after police noted a vehicle weaving in the lane. A breath tested registered .210 blood alcohol.

The 47 year old Princeton man had a prior conviction for impaired driving, and was ordered to pay an $800 fine with a $120 victim fine surcharge. His right to drive is suspended for one year.

ing this driest point in the year," Murray stated.

Household water conservation tips:

- * Turn off your tap when you brush your teeth or shave - this could save 12 litres of water a minute.

- * Take shorter showers, or install a low-flow showerhead, and save 10 litres per minute.

- * install a low-volume toilet. Toilets account for up to 40 percent of indoor water use, and older toilets use up to 30 litres per flush.

- * Don't use your toilet as a place to flush away garbage.

- * Toilets are notorious for hidden leaks and can waste hundreds of litres of water each day. Check worn parts to see which need replacing and use food colouring in the water tank to see if water is leaking into the toilet bowl.

Kitchen and laundry:

- * Do only full loads in washing machines and dishwashers, or do dishes by hand. Each machine load uses from 170 to 190 litres.

- * Wash vegetables and fruit in a pan instead of under a running tap, and use the water in the pan to water house plants or your garden. A tap uses seven to 12 litres each minute it is running.

- * Instead of running the tap to get cool water, keep a jug of water in the refrigerator.

- * Change tap washers in a dripping tap. Dripping taps can waste as much as 300 litres of water a week.

Outdoors:

If local restrictions allow you to wash your car, use a bucket and sponge or spring-loaded nozzle on the hose. This could save 300 litres of water or more.

- * Choose drought-tolerant native plants for your garden.

- * water your garden using a watering can or spring-loaded nozzle to save 10 to 35 litres per minute.

- * Water your garden early in the morning or late in the evening when evaporation rates are low.

- * You do not need to water your lawn more than twice a week. Do not cut your grass too low. Longer grass retains more moisture.

- * Aerate your lawn to allow better absorption of water.

- * Use mulch and compost to reduce evaporation, promote plant growth and control weeds.

Have You Checked Your Oil Lately?

THE SENSIBLE ESSENTIAL

There are 50 or so essential nutrients that are needed in the human diet to maintain health. Two of these nutrients are the essential fatty acids (EFAs): omega-3 EFA (or alpha-linolenic acid) and omega-6 EFA (linoleic acid). A deficiency in either progressively results in poor health. Like other essential nutrients, the human body cannot function without EFAs in the diet. Flax Seed Oil provides an excellent source of both omega-3 and omega-6 EFAs.

An old-time threshing bee brings together friends and neighbours! Cawston's Rolly Bilodeau and friends threshed a field of wheat and demonstrated tractor bundle hauling on Saturday and Sunday. Many Princeton area residents attended the celebration of old-fashioned farming methods.

Farming with biology, not chemistry

When Cawston's Bruce Harker first got involved in organic growing, it was viewed as not much more than a passing fad.

"Now it's a trend that keeps growing as a result of demand."

Harker's wholesale business, which has been growing steadily in the past 20 years, ships organically grown produce from the Similkameen Valley all year long.

The largest customer is Caper's, a lower mainland retail outlet specializing in natural foods. Over 210,000 pounds of organics from Harker's farm were shipped there in the past eleven months with another 200,000 pounds from other organic growers in the area.

Harker not only sells his own product, but is also a shipping agent for 30 area growers using the brand name of Harvest Moon Growers Cooperative.

This arrangement produces additional revenues to local growers, and eliminates a long involved process of getting product to the consumer.

"Produce goes direct from the farm to the retailer," Harker explains, "In many cases, it's picked one day and on the store shelves the next day."

In addition to Caper's, orders are shipped to Thrifty Food Stores, a small grocery chain.

"They are B. C. owned and operated and support organics and the farmers in the Similkameen as well as the rest of the province," Harker points out.

Harker has also just entered into a test program with the Earl's Restaurant chain stating, "they seriously want to add organics to their menu."

During peak season, Harker has 30 full time staff working on everything from harvesting to packaging product. In the winter, there are 8 to 10 on staff packing and shipping.

"Organic growing is more challenging," Harker explains, "there's a lot of science involved."

Harker explains the process in a flow chart manner starting with healthy soil and healthy plants. These create healthy food, which ultimately leads to healthy people.

Organic growers must understand soil conditions and how to recondition soil with methods such as crop rotation. The health of plants, the removal and recycling of diseased plants through composting and insect habitat protection all play a role.

"The use of host plants creates habitat for insects that are predators to other insects that damage crops," says Harker.

For example, an insect that may damage a peach orchard, could be relocated into a pear orchard and prey on the insects damaging that crop.

"Basically it's a switch from chemistry to biology."

The objective of the organic grower is to improve the quality of the soil by following a soil management program.

The program is aimed at building the nutrient base and the levels of organic matter in the soil.

In other words, feeding the soil which lets the soil feed the crop.

To achieve these objectives, a horticultural specialist visits Harker's farm on a weekly basis.

Harker nods to the Sterile Insect Release Program and the TLC - The Land Conservancy program as benefitting not only his operation, but all growers in the region - organic and non-organic.

"The conventional growers are now using a softer approach, which means chemicals are only used as a last resort," which Harker says is a step closer towards organic growing.

Harker's property on Highway 3 contains a total of 8 hectares under organic production with an average day seeing 10,000 pounds of organics being shipped to customers throughout the province.

During the Summer months, Harker's Organic Fruit Ranch operates a roadside fruit stand, adding retail sales and service to its operation.

Harker's children represent the fourth generation of the family farming at the same location.

Walking tours are available, and displays are present at the fruit stand promoting the benefits of organically grown produce.

Alysha Harker stands in rows of organically-grown corn located next to her family's roadside fruit stand in Cawston.

Cst. Myrl Stus is new to Princeton Detachment.

Police work keeps him busy

RCMP Constable Myrl Stus began work with Princeton Detachment on July 2, and has been very busy ever since. He says some of his shifts have gone long past schedule due to all of the events of the past six weeks.

Originally from Saskatoon, where he worked as a civilian in a dispatch center and on information analysis in special investigations, he has been in the RCMP for six years. He comes to Princeton from 100 Mile House, and does general duty work.

Cst. Stus is married and has one child.

He and his wife enjoy hunting, fishing (he ties his own flies), hiking and mountain biking.

Kars falls short for COP

Keremeos Citizens on Patrol put on a great show for everyone but themselves. Kars Under the K did not meet their financial expectations. They did not lose any money, but the high cost of liability insurance and renting toilets ate up the profits.

There were 133 vehicle entries, including a good contingent of antique tractors. Buzz Henshaw stated they had expected more fire trucks, but due to the forest fire situation, many did not come to the show.

There were approximately 60 dash plaques left over, and COPs gave these to the Tourist Information Centre to give to tourists for their dashboards. These will make a great souvenir from Keremeos!

Last year, Henshaw organized the entire Kars Under the K and came away exhausted. This year, he was on the committee, and is tired out again. He has decided he will not be on the executive next year and it will be up to the community if they want another Kars Under the K show.

There is no question it is good for the community. Henshaw has checked with restaurants and found they did very well due to the show.

"Without the volunteers, we couldn't do it." Henshaw told the News Leader. "They deserve a big thank you from the community."

There were plenty of compliments made about the show from people who attend show 'n' shine events.

"You don't have just paint and metal, you have entertainment and something for the whole family," one visitor said to Henshaw.

There were approximately 500 people on the grounds at any given time. They enjoyed the great music from Rusty Nail and Denim Country, bands from Westbank. In fact, other groups were interested in booking them for their events.

In the long run, Kars Under the K was good for everyone, it was a lot of fun, and a lot of work, but did not do much for the COPs bank account.

Keremeos leads in house sales

South Okanagan Real Estate Board reports Keremeos leading the way in increases in house sales. In July, 22 units sold this year as compared with only three sales last year. However, the average value of the sale was down by 18 percent to $102,332 when compared with July 2002. Within the region, Kaleden Okanagan Falls were the only other area showing a drop in the average selling price, down nine percent.

Student learns rural medicine

Next week, Joey Bonifacio begins his third year of medical school at University of British Columbia. He will go into his studies in family medicine with a new perspective gained through four weeks of practical experience in Princeton. He is "shadowing" the doctors at Vermilion Medical Centre.

Bonifacio is learning about family practice in rural areas. He does a history of a patient and physical examination, then the doctor takes over and suggests treatment. This has been a great experience for Bonifacio because he had the opportunity to do suturing and helped with treatment of trauma patients.

As he lives in the ambulance station next to the hospital, Bonifacio has had the rare opportunity to go with the crew to the scene, then follow the patient through the emergency room and into the regular care ward. His eyes light up with excitement as he describes going on call to a motor vehicle accident.

"Your hospital is excellent," Bonifacio told the News Leader. "You have the best doctors, and your nurses are wonderful!"

Whether he will go into rural medicine is a question Bonifacio cannot answer at this time. He grew up in Burnaby, and had his mind made up to go into practice in the lower mainland. During his experience in Princeton, he is seeing other sides of medical practice in a rural community.

"You really get to know your patients, and their families. I see a patient, then another with the same name, and I asked if they are related, and they are."

He likes the idea of knowing his patients really well.

The Princeton experience gave him some other perks, in addition to trauma treatment and knowing patients well. He says all of the doctors, nurses and ambulance crew have been very encouraging. He has been able to see all aspects of being a doctor in a small town, from rushing to a crash site to greeting people in the office and listening to them talk about their health concerns. He compared his experience with that of a student doing a practicum in Penticton, and Bonifacio discovered Princeton is more fun. The other student had not done any sutures! Most of the patients are willing to allow Bonifacio to sit in on their visits to the doctor, and he is grateful that few have refused. As for the patient's response, it has been favourable. Sharon and George, at the News Leader, went to Vermilion Medical Centre and came back with "you should interview the medical student" as a direction to the reporter.

The News Leader thanks Vermilion Medical Centre for agreeing to the interview and insisting Joey Bonifacio go along with it. It was a pleasure.

Joey Bonifacio is learning medicine in Princeton.

Ridgewood drug costs are not totally covered

In an article last week about residential care in B.C., the News Leader published the contents of a Ministry of Health Services news release. The news release stated prescription and over the counter drug costs were covered for residents of longterm care facilities. Local pharmacist Wen Wong called the News Leader to say this is not accurate.

Due to Interior Health not wishing to handle pharmaceutical supplies, Wong has the contract now to supply Ridgewood residents with their prescription needs. He told the News Leader that Ridgewood residents pay the non-eligible portion of drug expenses according to their individual income level on the Fair Pharmacare formula just like anybody else. Furthermore, Wong says nearly all over the counter pharmaceuticals are NOT covered under Pharmacare.

Wong, who owns Princeton Pharmacare, wants the public to be aware of the facts.

Living Past 100
New anti-aging concept

Strange little independent, free-living organisms called mitochondria formed a relationship with animal cells in the course of evolution. These mitochondria are in our cells and have a distinct DNA or their own, separate from our own DNA. Research has discovered mitochondria provide 90 percent of the energy fuelling our own cells, keeping us alive. In effect, mitochondria are the ignition system for firing up activity in our cells.

One of the theories of aging is that these mitochondria break down and stop producing as much energy, and then this breakdown affects the cells in which the mitochondria reside.

The theory is that protecting your mitochondria will slow aging.

Mitochondria function best in skinny people who eat well. People who eat a diet rich in nutrients but low on calories will live 30 to 40 percent longer than those who are fat. To put it another way, the average lifespan is approximately 80 years. Forty percent longer life adds 32 more years. Living past 100 is not unlikely.

Mitochondria love alpha lipoic acid. This is found in broccoli, spinach, beef, yeast and kidney.

The next thing that helps keep mitochondria functioning well is Coenzyme Q10. This coenzyme is found in mackerel, salmon, whole grains and organ meats. Nutritionists say 60 mg. of Q10 will act like a sparkplug to the engine of mitochondria. The combination of Q10 along with broccoli, yeast, kidney, spinach and beef provides a tremendous strengthening effect on the mitochondria in our cells. When the mitochondria is healthy, it activates our cells and boosts our immune system, scours free radicals, and prevents aging. Although we are talking about something we could not see without a specialized microscope, this tiny part of our cells may be the key to a long, healthy life. What we need to do is stay slender, eat the right foods for nutrients, and maybe take a Q10 boost for best results.

Reading brings success

The child who reads a great deal is more successful in school than the child who does not. Although teachers in school may teach children the mechanics of reading, experts say it is parents to teach children the love of reading.

How do parents do this?

Parents who read books to their children have taken the first step toward teaching a love of reading. Parents who value books and have many books at home give children the idea that reading is a good pastime. Parents who read books teach the same thing, but often teach more: they teach children to look for valuable information in books.

When personal computers began to become commonplace, many people thought their children would not need to be so good at reading. This has proven untrue, as the written word is still the primary method of communication on the computer screen.

The other thing parents can do is encourage their children to talk. Communication is what reading and writing are all about, but a child who cannot express his or her thoughts is not going to be good at reading and writing. Ask your children about what they did at school, how they enjoyed a movie, or what they think about events around them.

Children who use libraries are more likely to find a book they will enjoy reading. Each person has special areas of interest. If your child likes hockey, find books about hockey and hockey stars. If your child likes dogs, find books about different breeds of dog or about how to train a dog. Encourage your child to use the school library and public library.

Kids loved the County Fair theme

The Son Harvest County Fair theme of this year's Vacation Bible School involved the children in a lot of fun. They learned about fairs, farming, and Christian values—love, joy, patience, peace and kindness.

A Christian youth group from Prineville, Oregon, spent a week in Princeton helping with the school. These enthusiastic teenagers put their hearts into teaching the lessons, and received a round of applause during last Friday's closing ceremonies. The children sang songs they had learned, and when they left, they took home barns and sunflowers they made.

Each child was asked to bring a non-perishable food item for Crisis Assistance. When the wheelbarrow was presented to John Wilson, it contained 167 food items.

Many local people from the Christian churches helped with the program and received thanks. Linda Rytkonen led the children in a short prayer of thanks for the fun they had and for the people who helped. Parents were asked to encourage the children to enter Princeton's Fall Fair to learn what happens in their home town.

It's Back To School time again!

As a result, School Zones will soon be in effect. The Mayor and Town Council would like to remind residents to obey all Speed Zones and Crosswalks near area Schools. Also watch for students walking to and from classes and observe all signals from School Buses.

Let's make this a safe and happy School Year!

Country cousins from Oregon helped teach the lessons in skits.

Start the school year right!

Most parents are relieved to send their children back to school and may want to sit back and relax. At the same time, most parents want their children to have a successful school year. The key to both is a little advance planning.

Now is the time!

Right now, before school days begin, start your family's school days schedule. Children who have been sleeping late and staying up later all summer will adjust better to school if you spend time now establishing a routine. Explain to the children how important it is to start now, so they will feel better on the first full day of school.

What should you do first?

Start with the easiest schedule – mealtimes. Begin a regular time for breakfast, lunch and dinner, and the mid-morning and after school snack times. After dinner, turn off the television for a couple of hours, or insist the children do some quiet time reading in their rooms. Re-establish bath times and bedtime.

Have your children make a plan

Children should be able to plan their time and be conscious of time. Each child should have a calendar, and should use it to track classes, homework, tests and activities. Have each child establish a habit of checking his or her calendar daily and learning to do forward planning.

Make school user-friendly

Each child's physical environment should make it possible for him or her to prepare for school. For example, have the child prepare an area for doing homework. Have the child organize the area (table or desk) with a good light, pencils and pens, and any other school supplies needed for homework. Make sure there are few distractions in the homework area.

Prepare everything the child needs for school

Make sure your child has everything needed for school, such as clothing pressed and ready to go, a lunch box if needed, all of the pens, pencils, colouring equipment, etc., running shoes, backpack, haircut, and an organized closet. If your child is 10 years of age or older, have the child do a lot of this organizing and then do a check on everything. If your child is a teenager, have your teen make the list and do his or her own check-up.

Food for lunches

If your child takes a lunch to school, stock up on items to go into the lunch box. You may want to pick up fruit that handles well, such as apples, oranges and prune plums. Sandwich fillings such as cold meats, peanut butter, or other foods your child likes for lunch. If your child has lunch at home, stock up on his or her lunchtime favourites.

There is nothing worse than starting school in a confused mess. A good plan now will save a lot of trouble later, and teach your child the value of planning and being organized.

Lunch boxes need a well-stocked cupboard full of foods suitable for travelling to school and keeping fresh.

Okanagan Hockey School inspires Princeton Minor Hockey player

Nigel Mack attended Okanagan Hockey School International Development Program in Penticton from July 27 to August 3. There were 10 teams from various locations from Alaska to Scotland, Canada, Dallas, and the world. Nigel was placed with the Swiss team.

"I learned more in camp than in a whole life of playing hockey here," Nigel told the News Leader.

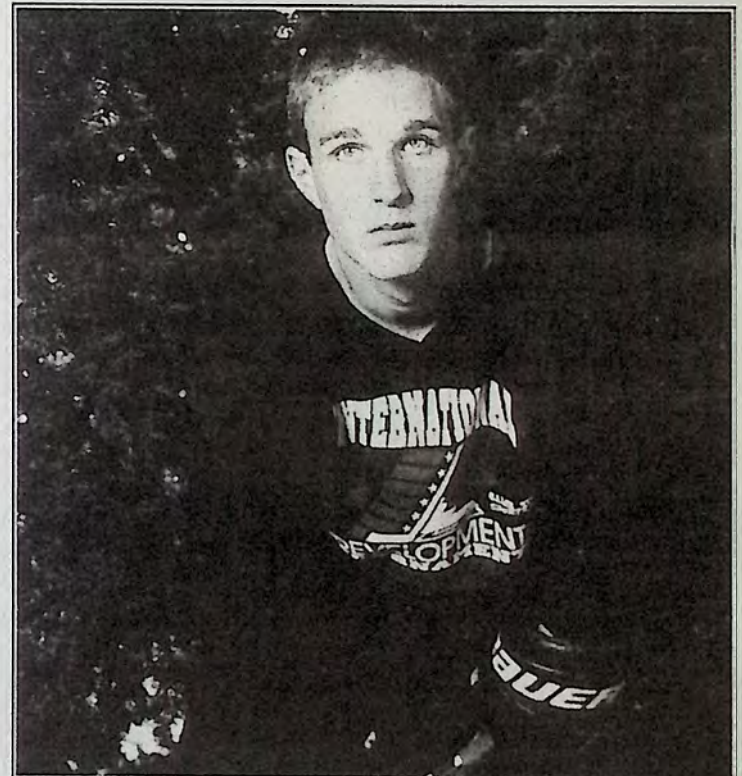

Nigel says it moves well. Nigel worked well. It was not all work. They went to the water slides, bowling, to the beach, and went tubing down the channel. He had a good time. At the final ceremonies, the banquet, each player received a report card.

How did Nigel do?
"Fairly well," he says.

Although the school is expensive, Nigel would recommend it to any of the other minor hockey players. Nigel is slated to go into Midgets this year, but has heard there will not be a team. He is going to try out for The Posse, and if he does not make that team, he says there may be a Juvenile team.

He has played hockey with Princeton Minor Hockey Association since he was a Tyke. Camp began with getting acquainted, then an official welcome to the school, followed by the first ice session. On his team, there were 10 Swiss players, seven Americans, three Canadians (two from B.C. and one from Alberta). Coach Matt Bardsley kept them busy all day with lectures, skill development, and a daily game. Nigel's team played every other team.

Videotaping of the games and individuals during skills development was invaluable. They saw themselves and listened to advice from the coach on how to do their moves better. They had training lectures on skills, and motivational training, which Nigel called "mental training". They learned to visualize themselves performing their various

Introduction To Mutual Fund Investing

Mutual funds are an excellent investment to hold within a self-directed RRSP. The following are some of the key benefits of mutual funds, as an RRSP investment:

Diversification - Investors whose RRSP contributions are limited may achieve a more diversified investment portfolio through an investment in a mutual fund.

Tax Sheltering - Within an RRSP, your mutual fund investment grows on a tax-deferred basis and benefits from the power of compounding.

Maximizing Your Foreign Content - Maximizing the foreign content portion of your RRSP is easier with an investment in a mutual fund.

Canadian mutual funds that invest in foreign markets can add value to any portfolio, including your RRSP. Currently, regulations permit individuals to invest up to 30 percent of their RRSP's in foreign content. This can be achieved through direct global investments or through mutual funds. The global dimensions of your RRSP can be further increased by investing the non-foreign component of your RRSP in mutual funds that maximize their 30 percent foreign content allowance. These mutual funds qualify individually as domestic RRSP investments, and thus do not add to your RRSP's official foreign content.

This means you can take full advantage of the opportunities available in foreign markets within the guidelines of the RRSP foreign content rules. As rules on foreign content often change, please be sure we discuss potential suitability for your portfolio.

Swim students face reality

Instructor Carol Mack decided it was all very well to teach her Bronze Cross students all the rescue and resuscitation techniques at the side of the swimming pool, but real life is not confined to pool-side emergencies. She took her 10 students down to the river for real life training. In fact, it was so real, a resident of a nearby home came down to the river to see if the victims were all right!

The Bronze Cross certificate is just one step down from the National Lifesaving Certificate which is required to qualify as a lifeguard. Princeton students are gaining valuable skills which may someday help qualify them for a job.

Their instruction includes rescue techniques, first aid training, CPR, and physical fitness activities. The training program meets standards set by the Lifesaving Society of Canada, and when the students pass the course, the society issues the certificates.

Bronze Cross students had to deal with the rocky shore of the river as well as very little "real" emergency or rescue equipment. They were forced to improvise to meet the needs of the accident victims they were treating. An unconscious young man, and one with a broken leg, demanded different techniques and different treatment. Carol Mack made the students go through the entire symptomology and treatment on the riverbank, and double-checked their performance.

Above, keaton Brown feigns agony from his broken leg immobilised in a combination of foam pool toy and towels. His agony seemed so real it made his rescuer, Lynn Smart, laugh.

We do the planning but we miss opportunities

Tourist season is nearly over, and we have missed some opportunities. Last fall, during meetings of local business people, recommendations for signage were made to both the Chamber of Commerce and to the Town of Princeton. The prop for large signs to advertise events was put in place but not utilized to best advantage. That was a missed opportunity.

Another missed opportunity was the failure to implement the recommendation to put large signs in Memorial Park directing people to Public Swimming Pool. Our swimming pool costs taxpayers a lot of money, and could be utilized more. Tourists who want to go swimming here have no idea, at a glance, where to go and when the pool is open. Putting up signage in Memorial Park is the responsibility of Town Council, and we are surprised they would ignore an opportunity to bring in more money from the pool.

The Chamber of Commerce has a big, beautiful new building. The building looks great, but the eye appeal ends with the building. The grounds are terrible. The kiosk donated by the Ministry of Forests was to be moved back into a place where tourists could view it. The kiosk sits by the river looking like a piece of junk along with the other junk left there. Weeds have taken root where possible and add to the unkempt look of the site. In actual fact, the site could be gorgeous with a little landscaping, some lawn and a few picnic tables inviting tourists to stop and stay awhile. We know the Town hired two students who were given the assignment of weeding all along the edge of highways and the TransCanada Trail. Could they not have been assigned to do beautification work at the Chamber of Commerce site? After all, the Chamber and the Town have the mutual interest of promoting tourism in Princeton. What about the Princeton website? People find the home page and discover none of the links work. Whose job is this? Oh well, another missed opportunity!

We should make the most of beef

Dear Editor

Yesterday, we were told that Canadian beef producers were suffering because of 'Mad Cow' disease and the closing of the US market. Today we are told that the border will open once more but we will not be able to ship any live cattle – and the beef producers are still crying.

If we are stupid enough to rely totally on a volatile foreign market that screws Canada at the slightest whim, we deserve everything we get. Instead of our producers rejoicing over service industry jobs staying in Canada, they are crying because they can't ship jobs across the border in the form of live club.

If I may draw an analogy, for 30 years in British Columbia there has been a constant uproar over the shipping of raw logs to the US because of the manufacturing jobs lost. I think it's time we got our act together under national guidelines. As long as the provinces compete with each other and use their own guidelines the US enjoys cutting us up – all the way to the bank.

Let us instead give thanks to the new American laws regarding the importation of beef on the hoof, laws that protect Canadian service industry jobs!

Sincerely,
HP Toews

Coffee party helps raise research money

Dear Editor;

Change your daily grind and help the Alzheimer Society of B.C. fight Alzheimer's disease.

Businesses and individuals in Princeton and area are needed immediately to volunteer to host a Coffee Break to take place on Thursday, September 18. Hosting a Coffee Break can be as easy as brewing a pot of java and serving coffee to your friends or customers "by donation" or as aromatic as a full day percolating with a variety of events. A detailed Coffee Break Host Kit and Coffee Break Host Guidelines will be provided to participants.

Coffee Break is a national fundraising event. The goal for B.C. this year is to raise $100,000. Money raised supports local programs and services in our community and helps in the fight to find what causes this devastating neurological disease that can affect anyone. Each year, more than 16,000 British Columbians are diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease or a related dementia, even people in their 30's and 40's.

The Alzheimer Society of B.C. is a non-profit organization that provides local support programs and resources to caregivers, family members and people in the early stages of dementia. The Society exists to alleviate the personal and social consequences of Alzheimer's disease and related dementias, to promote public awareness, and to search for the causes and cures. The Alzheimer Society of B.C. receives no ongoing government support, relying instead on the generosity of individuals and the community.

For more information on hosting a Coffee Break, or to discover other ways you can help, please contact Robbie Westgard at 1-800-634-3399 or visit www.alzheimerbc.org/coffee.php

Yours truly,

Man's heart is bigger than town

Dear Editor;

Our vacation in Tulameen will always be remembered due to the incredible kindness of the gentleman who found my husband's bank card at the side of the road. As he was wheel chair bound, he was unable to pick up the card himself (or even us his arms to flag down someone), he waited at the side of the road until somebody arrived who could pick up the card for him. He then took a chance that we were staying at Otter Lake campground and took the time and energy to travel a long distance in his wheelchair to find us. As we all said, many people may not have even bothered to look for the card, let alone go to all that trouble. He deeply touched our hearts and taught us about generosity. Thank you - we will never forget you.

The Fenns,
Ladner, B.C.

B.C.'s small town people live in fear small town b.c.

majestic mountains and hills cradle the town in Mother Nature's arms. the gentle winds blow as to rock and soothe those who mourn.

gossip and whispers grow louder, like a city subway train nearing, screeching that jobs are lost ... people are confused not knowing what to do ... or where to go ... people parading in everyday life wear masks that smile, while beneath the mask is a face of desperation that is frozen on their face.

the whispers become reality, the winds begin to howl, and Mother Nature hears her family cry out in pain and they question

"Are our futures as frozen as the desperation in our faces?"

by Louise Szcapanik

Dear Editor;

I live and am home-based in Kamloops, but have come from a small town where a major industry in my hometown of Princeton closed a few years back. I have since travelled throughout BC with my husband, who is in the paving business, for the last four summers and have seen what has happened to other small communities.

We get to actually live in, not just visit, these other small towns and

I get to know the people and their hometown, their festivities and ... their fears. Most of the towns are mining and forestry related and I am just wondering how many more towns and people's futures will be deflated and devastated because of the province's economy?

I am currently in McBride, B.C. and can see first hand how the community has suffered from the cutbacks in forestry. Almost every house and business is up for sale ... other homes and businesses are just empty. How sad to see so many who must be suffering beneath their masks. My heart goes out to them.

Sincerely,
Louise Szcapanik

Why not pave the road to Missezula?

Dear Editor;

As I was driving into town on Summers Creek Road and coming almost to a stop to drive over a section of very sharp rocks (one of three sections around two kilometres up the road), I began wondering why this road hasn't been paved, the paving crew having just been here doing extensive work in our area - must be doing some side roads. Sure enough, last week I took relatives on a tour up to the Allenby Road and found that the road into Allenby area had been recently paved! I had asked Argo early in July if Summers Creek Road was scheduled to be paved and he replied that many roads have been on the list for years but there is never enough money.

There are very few homes out Allenby Road thus far, although I'm sure it will be developed more now that the road is paved. Also, some private drives were paved free of charge.

Folks at Missezula Lake pay a lot in taxes and have at least a 45 minute drive on winding gravel road. We only have 4.5 kms paved and it is very dangerous in winter. In fact, this past winter a person died in a vehicle accident because of the icy winding road and the rescue truck or ambulance went off the road.

We suggest the government look at paving Summers Creek Road, at least in part, now that the Allenby Road has been paved.

Sincerely,
L. Neumann

'Fireworks' fires back

Dear Editor;

Re: Fireworks display - Tulameen, Sunday, August 3 - in response to J.V. Atkinson

Please get the facts straight. The "fireworks" were not set off by a "purported" seasoned local logging contractor. They were set off by a neighbour who has taken the instruction course for setting off this type of "fireworks".

There was much discussion and preparation as to the safety and danger of a display such as this at this hazardous time, thus, the fireworks were installed on a float and anchored out into the middle of Otter Lake.

The largest "Roman Candle" was set off first as a test to check out the extent and pattern of residual debris. There was a "spotter boat" on the windward side of the "fireworks float" to observe where and how far the debris from the mortar would land. It was determined that the residual sparks did not come even remotely close to the shore. In fact, all were extinguished at least 400 yards from land. The decision was then made to continue the display.

I'm sure if the local authorities wish to investigate, they will have no trouble finding out who was responsible for this "thoughtless, unorganized" event.

Sincerely,
N.J.S. a.k.a. "Sparky"

Heart Food
by Dave Machin

My intention when I started writing this column was to write about the goodness of God, and to the best of my ability I have not deviated from that goal. I'm sure many of you think this is a "religious column" but religion and relationship have only one similarity - they both begin with the same letter. My intention is to plant deep in your thinking that GOD IS GOOD and knowledge of that fact will bring you to a place where you will take a step of faith and enter into a relationship with this good God. When you begin to realize God is for you and not against you, you will find it far easier to trust Him. When you realize you can trust Him, you can enter into a relationship with this God who loves you as a father. I'm sorry if people have told you God gives us sickness and trouble to bless you. You will not find that in God's word anywhere. That statement was made by men who had trouble and tried to fit it into a religious box. God is not confused about good and evil, and knows exactly what is good for you and what is not. He knows it's good when you have more than enough provision in your life. He knows it's good for your children to be blessed and for you to be in physical health and your mind at peace. On the other hand, He knows it's bad for you to be sick, poor, frightened and oppressed. Actually, the Hebrew word "shalom" found frequently in the Bible is used to denote blessing, which means to have wholeness in your life - spirit, soul and body. It means to have nothing missing and nothing broken. God knows that this is the way things ought to be, and that is the way He wants them to be, not just for a select few but for all His children. My prayer for you is that this goodness will happen to you. Perhaps you've not yet taken the first step on your walk of faith. I can only think of one reason why someone would be hesitant to make Jesus the Lord of their life, and it's because they don't know how good God is. They might be afraid He will deprive them of the good things they want or need. Fear will always cause people to draw back, or be afraid to act. PLEASE understand that God has your best interests in His heart. God is good, His word is good and good all the time.

Our museum has an interesting history

Three women began a centennial project in 1957. They decided to start a museum for Princeton. The centennial was British Columbia's 100th anniversary of the founding of the Crown Colony of British Columbia in 1858.

Gloria Stout, Isabelle (Howse) Cattermole and Rosemary Pesut received a $100 grant from the Princeton Centennial Committee to launch the project.

This was a small beginning, but in the 45 years since the first museum was built, it has grown to be a genuine attraction in Princeton.

At the time the first museum was built, the property was owned by Elmer Burr, who gave permission for it to be located on his property. The Town later acquired the site.

An old log cabin located along Summers Creek became the first museum. Tom Stout, a member of the Kinsmen Club of Princeton, became one of a group of Kinsmen who disassembled the cabin, numbering each log for re-assembly. Rollo Cecon, another member of Kinsmen, hauled the logs into Princeton where it was re-assembled on site.

Princeton Volunteer Fire Brigade provided the roof. John Ewart of Ewart's Hardware (now Home Hardware) donated concrete chimney blocks for an old cook stove Burrs donated, and this became the source of heat.

Granby Mining Corp. donated the windows.

The total cash expenditure for the first museum was $65, of which $60 was spent on obtaining two mannequins for displays. It was truly a community project. Senior Citizens Branch 30, under the leadership of Mary Cavino, spent volunteer hours keeping the museum open to the public.

In 1967, Canada celebrate the centennial of Confederation. With the purchase of the property from Burr, the new centennial project was the present library/museum complex. The log cabin was sold to Rod Dixon for $25.00. He re-assembled it in Tulameen as his summer cabin, and it eventually burned.

Keeping the museum open in the new building was a problem, as there was no money to pay for an employee. The museum society agreed to let the Chamber of Commerce use the museum office as a tourist booth, on condition they open the museum every day.

The next big change in the museum came with the gift of a huge collection of fossils and minerals. Joe Pollard collected these during his lifetime and his widow, Shirley, gave it to Princeton Museum. However, Princeton Museum had no place to store and display such a big collection.

This time, the museum benefited

Yes, there is a deer petition!

After the News Leader wrote an editorial suggestion about a petition to Town Council to ban feeding wildlife within Town boundaries, Gayleen Elliott called the News Leader to say she had begun a petition.

We were pleased to hear it, and asked if she could put one of the petition forms in our office. She agreed.

Our customers are more than welcome to come in and sign it.

No date is set for taking the petition to Council, but the more signatures on the petition forms, the better the chances of having Town Council pass a bylaw.

Sorry, only residents of the Town of Princeton may sign it, and each must be of voting age.

Is this bear country? Yes!

A juvenile bear was seen last week on the hillside along this road leading to Second Bench. This is not the only area where there is evidence of bears. Droppings have been found on Allison Flats and a bear was seen in the tunnel area. Do nothing to attract them to your property.

Our Museum history continued from previous page .....

by funds from a millennium project. The millennium funds set aside by the provincial government for grants paid for a new wing on the museum, called the Joe Pollard Wing. It houses fossils, mineral rocks and First Nations artifacts collected in the Princeton area.

The Upper Similkameen Indian Band designated Princeton Museum as the official repository for its artifacts, and has contributed a great deal of work and employee grants to the museum. A recent archives project of the Band proved to be an asset to the museum archives as well.

The dedication of many volunteers through the years has contributed to the growth and success of Princeton Museum & Archives. Founder Gloria Stout has remained with the museum for more than 30 years. Archivist Margaret Stoneberg not only maintained and developed extensive archives, but attracted the interest of paleontologists who come to Princeton to examine the fossil beds. Stoneberg received a token of their appreciation when they named two new fossils in her honour. Lorraine Lance, Don Coyle, Ev McCallum, Rosemary Doughty, Councillor Kathy Clement, Ann Jensen, and Nick Mills have donated a lot of their time to special projects. Longtime members such as the Stenvolds and Eric Jacobson have contributed a great deal in support of the society.

The society has received student employment grants to hire young people to keep the museum open in the summer. Thanks to grants from Weyerhaeuser, during the past two summers, students found their first-ever job at the museum.

Preservation of the history and artifacts of the upper Similkameen Valley area has always been the objective of the Museum Society members.

The museum is a far cry from the original log cabin, but one of the problems these days is the age of the members. They feel the limits of old age and despite their dedication, they feel they cannot do the work anymore. New members are needed, but it seems few middle-aged people want to become involved in preserving history or being museum tour guides.

Cawston woman safe after falling asleep at the wheel

A 57 year old Cawston woman was uninjured after falling asleep at the wheel on August 8 near Princeton. At 2:30 p.m., Princeton Emergency Services and RCMP attended the accident north of Princeton on Highway 5A.

The woman had been driving south toward Princeton when she veered into the northbound lane, hit the ditch, and a steep bank. There was extensive damage to the vehicle, and RCMP say the woman was likely saved from injury due to wearing a seatbelt.

The woman was issued a violation ticket for Driving without reasonable consideration under section 144 (1) (b) of the Motor Vehicle Act.

Pot and guns lead to court

In Provincial Court in Princeton, a 36 year old Princeton man pled guilty to one charge of production of a controlled substance and a charge of unauthorized possession of a firearm.

Raymond Michaud was sentenced on August 14 to serve house arrest for 12 months for his marijuana grow operation from which police seized 71 plants. The conditional sentence includes a curfew, abstinence from consumption of alcohol or illegal drugs and counselling as recommended by his sentence supervisor.

On the gun charges, Michaud is prohibited from owning any guns for 10 years. Four rifles and a shotgun were seized from his home. Not all of the weapons were his, and those belonging to the other person will be returned to the owner.

In addition to the above penalties, Michaud must do 100 hours of community work service.

Michaud submitted a letter to the judge expressing regrets about becoming involved with the grow operation, and told the judge his quality of life had been one of suffering since his arrest.

issues rattlesnake warning

Continuing hot temperatures and forest fires have rattlesnakes on the move. The dry plateau area of southern British Columbia is the natural home of the Western Rattlesnake. The Similkameen Valley is no exception, and contrary to popular opinion, rattlesnakes have been encountered fairly close to Princeton.

People should be very cautious. There is a worldwide shortage of antivenin (the antidote for bites). If you see a snake, leave it alone. More than half the number of rattlesnake bites are the result of people provoking the attack by trying to capture the rattler or by harassing it with a stick or other object.

If a rattler bites you, go to the hospital immediately.

About rattlesnakes

The Western Rattlesnake is one of B.C.'s largest snakes. Adults range from 60 to 150 cm. in length. These snakes are shy and retiring and bite only in self-defense. They do not chase after people. They can strike only the length of their bodies.

Rattlesnakes prefer dry rocky rugged landscapes with sparse or scattered tree cover. They are rarely found in elevations above 1,000 metres.

Prevent rattler bites:

- * leave snakes alone
- * be aware of your surroundings at all times
- * avoid snake habitats such as brush piles, abandoned buildings and areas in which very large boulders are common, rock-slides, riverbanks, and shaded areas

* wear leather shoes or boots that are at least ankle high.

* make plenty of noise so the rattler can avoid you.

What to do if bitten:

* In many cases, first aid performed in the field by the victim or companion may cause additional injury. Nothing, including first aid measures, should delay getting the victim to a hospital.

* Allow the bite to bleed freely for 15 to 30 seconds.

* Clean and disinfect the wound if supplies are available. Remove rings and other constricting items.

* If the bite is on the hand, finger or foot or toe, wrap the arm or leg with a 3 to 6 inch crepe tensor bandage and immobilize the limb at approximately the level of the heart.

* Vacuum pump devices have been shown to remove up to 30 percent of the venom without an incision if applied within the first three minutes. Making an incision adjacent to the bite increases the risk of complications and should NOT be done.

* Calm and reassure the patient. Rattlesnake bites are serious medical emergencies but rarely life threatening.

Antivenin is the only and best treatment for rattlesnake bites. It must be given as soon as possible. It is available only at hospitals.

Don't miss your last chance to swim

The summer is flying past, and soon the public swimming pool will close. If you have not yet made a point of going for a swim or arranging for family fun at the pool, book your time now. Lifeguards will be on duty through August 31, then summer is over. Don't miss your last chance to swim!

Local house sales increase in value

Princeton's real estate sales soared 76 percent in July 2003 over July 2002. According to South Okanagan Real Estate Board, the average selling price of homes in Princeton area climbed four percent to $90,093. (These figures include all residential units, mobile homes, condos, recreational units, lots, commercial property and farms.)

The region's real estate market was buoyant in July, and is gaining over last year's averages, both in number of sales and average selling prices.

The landscaping around Valley First building has been completed, giving a great improvement to the entrance to Princeton from both Highway 3 east and Highway 5A.

Museum must have loan policy

A policy on sharing information and artifacts will be developed by Princeton Museum and Archives Society. At the August 13 meeting, members discussed matters which had arisen when people requested copies of photographs and use of artifacts.

President Rosemary Doughty reported on what summer student employees had been doing, including a new fossil display in one case and work on newspapers. The display case had been filled with seashells because local fossils had not been catalogued. Now that the fossils have been catalogued, the seashells were replaced with local fossils. The students are working on gathering information from

State of Emergency continues

Premier Gordon Campbell announced Friday the state of emergency would be extended another two weeks. Last Thursday, 32 new forest fires were reported, bringing to 865 the total number of active fires in the province.

The province-wide state of emergency allows the province to draw resources from across British Columbia as needed and where appropriate to combat the fires. Some of the fires are very large and the preservation of structures within the affected areas is the government's top priority.

In addition to the continuing problems with new fires breaking out, water shortages are adding to the problem. A special bulleting went out on Monday morning in the Okanagan asking all water users to conserve as much water as possible due to the danger to salmon stocks. The Okanagan watershed is losing water reserves rapidly.

duplicate newspapers. Doughty had high praise for the students' work.

Job descriptions for executive members and student employees are on the list of things to do in the autumn and winter. President

Sign up for Terry Fox Run

On September 14, the 23rd annual Terry Fox Run "Unbreakable Spirit" will be held nation-wide. Princeton RCMP are organizing this year's event in Princeton and are looking for volunteer helpers.

This event is not just about cancer. It is about spirit and pride, but most of all it is about coming together to help out for the common good of everyone. This year, Princeton RCMP would like to see the community come together and participate as one body. In the past, schools in the area have held separate events of their own. It would be nice, the RCMP say, to have the schools attend and participate together.

Cst. Mike Kelly, of Princeton RCMP Detachment, says, "It is one way of actually visualizing the good you are doing. When you see a large body of people working with a common goal, it really makes you realize what you are doing is actually making a difference. Now picture this same scene thousands of times over, across the entire nation. When you have done that, then you can appreciate how big this event really is."

The Terry Fox Run is tentatively scheduled to start at about 10:00 a.m. on September 14. The starting point is Cenotaph Park on Bridge Street. The registration desk will be open at 9:00 a.m. Participants may walk, run, bicycle or roller blade in the event. There are two distances - 5 km. and 10 km.

The schools will receive their pledge sheets and entry forms directly from the Terry Fox

Doughty suggested there should be portfolios for executive members, such as a portfolio for acquiring and supervising student help, displays and archives.

The next meeting will be September 10 at the museum.

Foundation as they have in the past. Anyone else wishing to participate in this year's event can pick up entry forms and registration sheets at the front desk of the RCMP Detachment. Volunteers are asked to contact Cst. Mike Kelly at Princeton Detachment office, 295-6911.

Cst. Kelly asks you to "help keep the dream alive". The dream is a cure for cancer.

Hikers return to Cathedral Park

The back country ban was lifted last week in the Cathedral Park and Snowy Protected Area. Signs were removed from the trailheads because the Farewell Fire is under control and risk is minimal to hikers. The Wall Creek Trail in Cathedral Park is still closed.

Conditions at Cathedral and Snowy are still tinder-dry and a camping ban remains in effect. The public is reminded to exercise caution when outdoors in these conditions.

Rotary car show

The "Rotary Wheels 2003" vintage car and truck show will be held August 23 during Ironman Canada weekend. The major sponsor of this fund raising event is BOB BROWN Pontiac Buick GMC Ltd. The show is at Okanagan Lake Park between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Registration will be accepted until noon on August 23. A $2.00 donation buys one vote for People's Choice Award and a chance at a prize. For further information call Elaine Cash-Rumball 492-5324.

Asset #9 – Service to others

by Nadine McEwen, Asset Development Coordinator

Tom Cruise once said, "I teach my children that every day we must do something kind for someone else, whether it is opening a door or volunteering our time."

To many young people, the world is small. It is their home, their school, their neighbourhood and their community. They think all homes are like their own home. They assume all schools are like their school, and they think the world revolves around them.

When children and youth start to reach out and help others, their world grows and so does their confidence. Independent Sector, an organization that studies non-profit groups, surveyed teenagers who volunteer their time to help others. The young people said that, through their volunteer experience, they learned to respect others, gained satisfaction from helping others, learned to be helpful and kind, learned new skills, learned to understand people who are different from them, learned to relate to younger children, developed leadership skills, and became better, more patient people.

By giving their time and energy, many said they received more in return. By serving others, they felt they made a difference in the world.

To help others you do not have to join an organization. You can begin with simple things such as helping a neighbour clean out gutters, provide a trip to the grocery store for an elderly neighbour, invite a child (with parents' permission) into your home to bake cookies for a community event, invite the new kid in your school to sit with you at lunch, help a fellow student with homework, cat-sit, house-sit or child-sit for a friend.

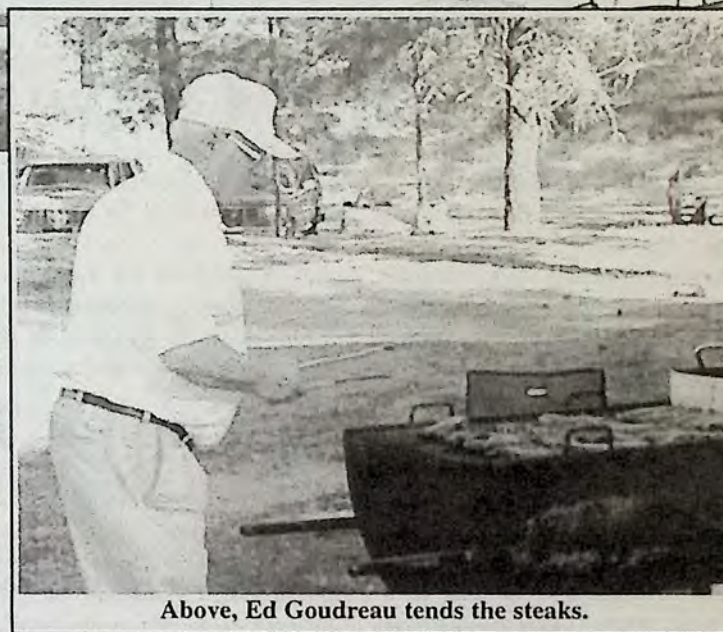

Volunteer your time in local organizations such as Princeton Minor Hockey, Girl Scouts, church groups, figure skating or your local school.

Everyone benefits from serving others in the community for one or more hours per week. Developing healthy lifestyles for yourself develops a healthy community.

The above information was taken from Practical Suggestions for Building Assets in Your Child from the Search Institute of Minneapolis.

All year, Princeton Lions impose fines on each other for supposed infractions, and they auction a number of items to each other. This out of pocket money goes toward an appreciation barbecue, where members and guests just have fun. This year, they held it at Princeton Castle Resort, where challenges in horseshoes kept everyone busy and the dinner was scrumptious. As summer comes to an end, Lions members will gear up for another busy year of doing things for their community.
