Rotary puts fun in fundraising

Mayor Randy McLean serves up steak during Rotary's Taste of Ales last Saturday afternoon. *

Group taps into winning combination

Princeton Rotary Club hosted their first annual 'beerfest' last Saturday afternoon at Princeton Castle Resort.

The "Taste Of Ales" featured a total of six micro-breweries (Cannery Brewing Company - Penticton, Tin Whistle Brewing - Penticton, Tree Brewing - Kelowna, Mt. Begbie Brewing Company - Revelstoke, Alpine Brewing Company - Oroville and Okanagan Premium Cider - Kelowna / Vancouver) and appetizers provided by three local restaurants (Santo's, Copper Mountain Bar & Grill, Billy's Restaurant).

Add to that live music from the Hedley Mountain Boyz and Slim Pickins Quartet, set in the outdoor grounds of Princeton Castle Resort all in an effort to raise money for local Rotary projects, including a chunk of the proceeds earmarked for Vermilion Trails Society, and you have the makings of a casual and fun afternoon social gathering of friends visiting and tasting a variety of beers, coolers and lagers.

Close to 200 people attended the event spending hundreds of dollars on extra drink and meal tickets as well as buying $498.00 worth of raffle tickets and adding an additional $210.00 to two silent auction items.

The total raised for the event is estimated to be around $5,000.00. An exact figure will not be known for another week.

Plans are already in place to make the Taste Of Ales an annual event.

McLean says, "I'm trying to defend our Valley."

An informal meeting held last Wednesday night at Riverside Centre had three objectives when it started: the formation of a group; a name for the group and a defined purpose.

By the time the meeting ended ninety minutes later, there were three objectives: the selection of a chairperson; a name for the group and a defined purpose.

What happened between the start and end of the meeting was very interesting.

A total of fourteen people attended the meeting, which was chaired by Randy McLean. He explained his concerns regarding the coal power plant proposed by Compliance Energy.

He made it clear he was not completely in favour, nor opposed to the project.

"As far as I'm concerned, if Compliance Coal lives up to all the government standards it's still not a valley I'd want to live in. We should want the very best for our valley and the very best for our province."

McLean also explained why he thought it was important for a citizen group be formed locally.

"If we are able to form a group in the community to act as another spearhead to act on this issue it would have a little more impact than just a couple of people."

The purpose of the group, although never really defined, was given clear directions from McLean.

"We believe we need to get the best deal for the forty years this (Compliance's power plant) will be here."

McLean says a letter sent to Town Councils in nearby communities - asking the question 'How would you like a coal-generating plant at the gateway to the Okanagan/Similkameen?' - has been met with unanimous support, although local Town Council members are split on the proposal with three, including McLean, opposed and two "waiting to see what happens."

It was revealed at the meeting that Compliance has apparently sent a spokesman around to local businesses to conduct one-on-one discussions with business owners on the benefits of the power plant.

Two business owners at the meeting called the tactic 'brainwashing' and one admitted embarrassment for "falling for it."

Another business owner at the meeting said, "We have a legacy. If we don't protect it what have we got? We've got air. Without that we have nothing."

He went on to point out the beehive burner at Weyerhaeuser being removed and changes to the landfill site to address environmental concerns over the years. He then asked why the community would even consider having a coal power plant after these steps had been made to improve the area.

No profit, just house arrest

He was growing pot, but never made a nickel.

Michael A. Hayman, formerly of Princeton, appeared in Provincial court in Princeton on October 12 to plead guilty to a charge of possession of an illegal drug for the purpose of trafficking.

Hayman was arrested on November 10, 2004, along with three other residents of a home at 170 Dolly Street in Princeton. A search of the residence revealed more than 300 marijuana plants, most of which were seedlings.

Hayman admitted he was the only person growing the plants. Charges against the other residents were stayed.

Hayman, now a resident of Richmond, B.C., was ordered to serve a conditional sentence of 18 months, the first 12 to be served under house arrest, the next six months to be served under a curfew. Conditions include no alcohol or drugs, but he is allowed to go to his job.

In addition, he must pay a $1,000 fine. Following his conditional sentence, Hayman will also serve a 12 month period of probation. He forfeits everything taken from the house, and has a 10 year firearms prohibition.

The sentence was a deal worked

McLean commented, "If we make enough noise and it gets too expensive for them and they leave, I can live with that."

Two major goals were determined during the meeting. The first one was described as "getting the best deal we can," with the second as "not getting a bad plant" with the main goal for the group to be able to present "the other side of the story" as Compliance has spent a lot of time and money promoting their proposal and concept.

"We're two and a half hours away from 1.5-million people and some time someone will bonk us on the head and say 'Don't you know where you live?' They're all coming out here (to get away from the Coast)."

Another meeting is planned for this Wednesday, 7:00 PM at Riverside Centre.

The meeting is open to anyone interested in getting involved in the 'steering committee.'

Poverty and Homelessness in B.C.

by Harry S. Lali
MLA, Yale-Lillooet

Like most British Columbians, while sitting down to eat Thanksgiving turkey with my family and relatives on Monday night I couldn't help but wonder how many people could not afford to have such a privilege, leave alone how many people actually went without a meal at all on Thanksgiving Day in this province. The fact is there are far too many British Columbians today who are living in poverty and/or who are homeless because of the uncaring policies of Gordon Campbell and the B.C. Liberals.

The thing that is becoming painfully clear is the Campbell Liberals do not share the same values of caring and compassion that British Columbians hold in high regard. In a province that is rich in resources and witnessing an economic up-turn it is a damning indictment of Gordon Campbell's Liberal Government that it has failed to manage the economic prosperity and to eliminate poverty.

In fact, the Campbell Liberals have been guilty of making things worse since taking office in 2001: poverty rates have increased (child poverty rates are the highest in the country); homelessness has increased 150%; and the availability of affordable housing is the lowest since the end of the Second World War. While Gordon Campbell's friends – a select group of folks including Big Corporations and the wealthiest 10% of British Columbians – are reaping all the benefits of the economy the middle class is shrinking and the poor are falling further behind.

The B.C. Government's own Provincial Health Officer, Dr. Perry Kendall, in his latest report lays the blame squarely on Campbell Liberals' uncaring policies for the presence of too many people being too poor to make healthy diet choices, and for not having enough money to feed their families properly. Dr. Kendall says Liberal Government policies are hurting children the most. Since becoming premier Gordon Campbell has indiscriminately cut tens of thousands of recipients from social assistance rolls and pushed them into the ranks of the homeless, dropped the minimum wage from $8 to $6 per hour, hasn't raised welfare rates for 6 years (British Columbia now has the second lowest welfare rates in the country while having the highest costs of living), and has eliminated social housing and replaced it with rent subsidies.

The end result of Campbell's mean-spirited Liberal policies is that more British Columbians are homeless, more food banks are springing up across the province, more people are going hungry (even in towns like Merritt, Princeton, Hope, Lillooet and Keremeos), and more people are suffering from malnutrition, especially young children. Dr. Kendall's report found that under the NDP in the late 1990s child poverty diminished to one in six. However, under the Campbell Liberals the child poverty rates rose sharply to one in four from 2002 to 2005. In his column in the Vancouver Sun (October 9, 2006), Paul Wilcocks writes: "Children in hungry households are more than twice as likely to suffer from asthma and much more likely to suffer from a variety of ailments that tax the health care system for years."

The right thing for any government to do is: 1) to raise the minimum wage to $8 per hour with yearly increases tied to inflation and cost of living; 2) to raise welfare rates to provide a level of dignity to seniors and single mothers so that they don't have to utilize food banks and charity of friends and loved ones to feed their hunger; 3) to stop indiscriminately cutting recipients off social assistance; and 4) to immediately reinstate the social housing policy of the previous NDP government that channeled funds and resources to non-profit societies and organizations that built and owned affordable housing for low income and welfare recipients.

Governments, like people, make choices. The economy is doing well right now. Is it then acceptable to allow Gordon Campbell to choose to help his Big Corporate buddies while the working poor in this province, those on fixed incomes, seniors, Aboriginal people, welfare moms, and children suffer from high levels of poverty and malnutrition? Since taking office the Campbell Liberals have been lining the pockets of their friends (Big Corporations, developers, forestry and mining giants, those making over $125,000 per year, etc.) through massive tax giveaways, tax breaks, tax credits, and tax incentives while kids go to school hungry, leave alone hungry kids actually sitting down to eat a healthy meal for Thanksgiving Day.

This tells you a lot about Gordon Campbell's values: that they are not the same as those of British Columbians. It is a crying shame that Campbell Liberals' choices include helping the most privileged lot in society as opposed to the poorest British Columbians who need government assistance the most. Gordon Campbell and the B.C. Liberals chose to help the GREEDY and not the NEEDY.

PXA increases rental rates

Princeton Exhibition Association (PXA) is the Board of Management for the fairgrounds complex. The PXA has established new rates for use of the agricultural barn beginning on October 1. Rental for a pen/stall combination is now $50 a month, which covers costs of operating the barn and keeping pace with maintenance required. New pens will be constructed as soon as possible.

Barn users requested a tack room but the PXA decided lockers could be constructed, and rented out to cover the cost. This will be discussed with barn users.

The heritage structure started in 1996 must be completed, but there is only $2,900.00 in the fund. The PXA must decide how to finish the building.

Members were disappointed with the rejection for funding from the Weyerhaeuser foundation for community building. A letter from Weyerhaeuser expressed appreciation for the importance of the facility but regretted they are unable to fund improvements at this time.

A lot of discussion centered around removing the old stage and replacing it with a "china top" trailer which would provide a roof.

John Draper is going to contact an outlet for used equipment and find out what is available.

Plans are going ahead for the annual Spook House to be held at the fairgrounds on October 31. The concession will provide food and hot drinks, and the Fire Department will run the Spook House.

The annual general meeting of the PXA will take place on November 24 at Town Hall. Persons wishing to be part of the Board of Management can buy a PXA membership at that meeting. A new executive will be elected.

Group hosts successful fashion show

Saturday, the last day of September, was a beautiful, sunny Fall day - perfect for a fashion show. The St. Peter's Ladies Group held their first fashion show and salad luncheon in Popovich Hall and it was a fabulous success. The salads, homemade breads and desserts were delicious. The decorations were beautiful - pumpkins, colorful gourds, peppers and leaves and sunflowers.

However, the piece de resistance was the fashion show created by Diane Jensen from Shades of Linen in Naramata. Diane uses all natural fibers to sew her own line of comfortable clothing. The clothing was beautifully modeled and it was easy to see why people appreciate Diane's designs. Thank you, Diane and staff.

As always, an event such as this requires the help of many hands. Thank you to Maureen Sanderson for her great MC job. The women of St. Peter's outdid themselves in the planning and preparation - in particular Kim Walsh who did a wonderful job of keeping everything and everyone on track (every project needs a strong leader), Sue Elwell and her food committee (Sue made the wonderful bread, too), Connie Howe and the decorating committee (they made the hall look like a Fall garden), and to Ruth Hooper and her models (didn't they look fantastic?). Special thanks to Dawn Lay and all those who worked in the kitchen. Your help was so appreciated!

Thank you to all who donated raffle prizes (the afghan was made by Sue Elwell) and door prizes.

To everyone who assisted us and especially to all who attended, thank you.

St. Peter's Ladies Group hope to make the fashion show and luncheon an annual affair.

We look forward to seeing you again next year.

BC Hydro awards scholarship

Hydro has awarded Keremeos student Jeffrey Shemilt with a $1,000.00 BC Hydro Aboriginal Peoples scholarship. Shemilt is one of 70 students from across the province who were awarded the scholarships this year.

BC Hydro's Aboriginal scholarship is offered to B.C. residents who are status/non-status Indians, Inuit, or Metis who plan to enroll in or are attending a post-secondary institution in any field of study.

"BC Hydro has proudly supported students through our scholarships programs for more than ten years," said BC Hydro Outreach programs manager, Cynthia Dyson.

"We are always impressed with the quality of the applications received. We congratulate Jeffrey and hope this scholarship guides him further to attaining his goals."

Shemilt is a Simon Fraser University student in the BA Communication program.

BC Hydro awarded scholarships in four categories: General, Aboriginal, Trades Pre-apprentice, and the L'Ecole Polytechnique Scholarship after examining 434 applications. Scholarship applications are accepted from February 1 to April 2 each year, and application forms are available on BC Hydro's website located online at www.bchydro.com/scholarships.

Through its Outreach Program, BC Hydro contributes more than $1 million per year to support enhancing education, increasing the accessibility and sustainability of arts and culture, encouraging environmental awareness, and promoting aboriginal development across the province.

Treasure Hunt rules are simple to follow

Similkameen Country has released an information package which contains all the rules related to the first annual Great Similkameen Treasure Hunt.

The event, which runs in conjunction with Taste Of Our Valley, will run from 10:00 AM to 3:00 PM on both Friday, October 20th and Saturday, October 21st.

The Treasure Hunt is not a race, but in order to participate you must first purchase a Passport (at a cost of $5.00 each) from Valu-Plus Foods or the Similkameen Country InfoCentre.

The rules are as follows:

- 1) You must go to all eleven participating businesses listed on your passport.
- 2) Find and identify the treasure at each location.

3) Have your Passport validated/signed by the business.

4) Once your Passport is signed by all businesses, you must complete the name portion found at the bottom of your Passport and submit it to Victory Hall during the "Taste Of Our Valley" on Saturday, October 21st between 5:00 PM and 7:30 PM.

Your name will be placed in the draw for a chance to win a $1,000.00 cash prize which will be drawn at 8:00 PM that evening.

The Winner does not have to be present at the draw to win the prize.

Similkameen Country and Treasure Hunt Organizers are hopeful the Treasure Hunt will take off and become a larger event with more businesses getting involved each year.

For more information on the Great Similkameen Treasure Hunt, contact any participating business (with a poster in their window) or call Similkameen Country at (250) 499-5225.

PS Capsule Comments

by your Pharmasave Pharmacist Wen Wong

Many people take the same dose of the same drug for many years. It is sometimes useful to check with your doctor to see if the dose might be reduced a little. Sometimes, people lose weight and a lower dose will give the same effect with reduced side effects.

The average Canadian consumes about 4,000 mg of sodium per day. The recommended limit is about 2,400 mg daily. Just so you can visualize what this looks like, one teaspoonful of table salt contains 2,000 mg of sodium. Out of interest, even a glass of milk contains 375 mg of sodium.

Some people find cough syrups containing DM (dextromethorphan) to be an effective cough suppressant. However, if you are taking antidepressant medication, don't use this type of cough syrup. There could be an interaction with the antidepressant that could cause problems.

Pharmaceutical companies are looking to India and China to save money in doing human clinical trials on new medications. It is estimated that the costs are 40% lower in India than in North America. The companies say the results of these overseas drug trials are as reliable as those done anywhere else in the world.

It's important that pharmacists keep current on what's new in their profession. Ours is a life-long learning profession and we really enjoy it.

Preventing cervical cancer

(NC)-The approval of a cervical cancer vaccine this year by Health Canada was welcomed by the Canadian Cancer Society as a significant advancement for women's health.

The vaccine has the potential to prevent the majority of cervical cancer cases in Canadian women.

"Not only is this great news for Canadian women, but it's also an exciting development in the cancer fight," says Heather Logan, Director, Cancer Control Policy, Canadian Cancer Society.

The main risk factor for developing cervical cancer is an infection of the cervix with certain types of the human papillomavirus (HPV), which is spread through sexual contact. There are more than 100 different types of HPV. The vaccine is effective against HPV 16 and HPV 18, which are responsible for about 70 per cent of cervical cancers.

Since the vaccine is not effective against all types of the HPV, the Canadian Cancer Society continues to recommend that women be screened for cervical cancer through regular Pap tests.

"The vaccine should be viewed as a complement, not a replacement, for cervical cancer screening," says Logan. "We know that cervical cancer screening works. Since 1977, incidence rates have declined by 50 per cent and death rates have dropped by 60 per cent as a result of ad-hoc screening for cervical cancer using the Pap test. However, even further reductions may be possible if we moved toward an organized approach to cervical cancer screening."

The Canadian Cancer Society recommends that women who are sexually active should have a Pap test and pelvic examination every one to three years depending on the screening guidelines in their province. Women who have had a hysterectomy may still need a Pap test, but should talk to their doctor about whether this is necessary. Pap tests are still recommended for women who have stopped having sex.

You can live well with ulcerative colitis

(NC)-The inflammatory bowel disease known as ulcerative colitis can be painful and debilitating. Living with ulcerative colitis can bring about a number of concerns and fears.

For the 170,000 estimated Canadians who have mild to severe forms of inflammatory bowel disease (IBD) they may ask themselves these following questions:

- What is the long-term outlook?
- Will I need surgery?
- Will the disease lead to cancer?

Ulcerative colitis (UC) is a chronic IBD marked by inflammation and ulceration of the innermost lining of the colon. This can cause bloody stools, severe diarrhea, and frequent abdominal pain leading to further complications such as hospitalization, surgery and, in some cases, colon cancer.

Everyone has his or her own concerns, but these are among the biggest to people with ulcerative colitis - and without answers and understanding, these and other concerns can lead to stress.

Among the most common ways one can cope with these concerns are:

- Educating yourself about ulcerative colitis, its treatments, and new research. Your doctor is an excellent resource for information, as are gastroenterologists, physicians who specialize in gastrointestinal disorders.
- Promoting your overall health through a proper diet and regular exercise.
- Maintaining a positive attitude and associating with others who have positive attitudes.
- Understanding that you are not alone - support is available.

And while some questions may go unanswered, seeking information will give you a better sense of control over your condition.

Many ulcerative colitis patients have found that controlling their symptoms has made a real difference. Medication is an important aspect to controlling the disease, and new advancements in treatment are helping patients with UC lead healthy, active lives.

Health Canada recently approved Remicade for the treatment of moderate to severe UC in patients who have had an inadequate response to conventional therapy, making it the only biologic approved in Canada for treating both UC and Crohn's disease (CD), the other IBD.

Biologics, like Remicade, are newer drugs that block specific proteins, which are involved in the inflammatory process. In clinical studies, people treated with Remicade were able to achieve a reduction in signs and symptoms of UC, clinical remission, intestinal healing and reduction or elimination of steroid use.

"I've seen Remicade transform patients, who go from living with severe disability and constant pain to leading an active and relatively pain-free life," said Dr. Richard Fedorak, gastroenterologist at the University of Alberta. "Additionally, patients on Remicade have another option to a colectomy (having their large intestine removed), which carries some significant risks such as infertility."

"For years, I lived with significant abdominal pain and could not participate in life like everyone I knew," said Jennifer Kelly, 39, a UC patient from Stratford, Ontario. "I was lucky enough to gain access to Remicade through a clinical trial and it has literally given me my life back. I can work, travel and keep up with my active children - all things that would have been difficult or near impossible before Remicade." For more information about ulcerative colitis and treatment options, speak with your family doctor or with a gastroenterologist, a physician who specializes in gastrointestinal disorders.

New warnings about cocaine

Medical researchers in the United States have raised an alarm about the longterm effects of cocaine use, not only for the user but for their children. The part of the brain affected by cocaine is the same part of the brain that prevents Parkinson's disease. Researchers believe cocaine users could develop Parkinson's disease, and further, women who have been cocaine users may pass this problem on to their unborn children.

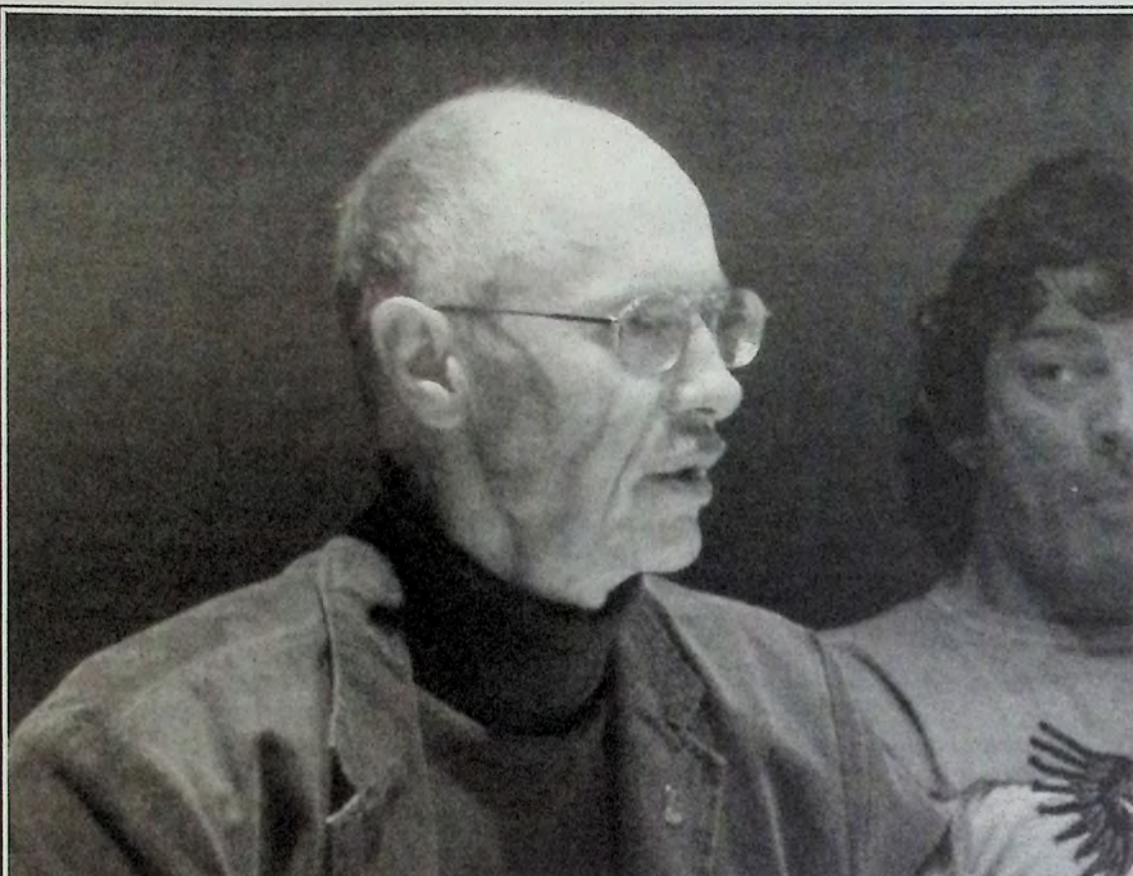

Parkinson's disease is a severely disabling degeneration of the nervous system. It has been considered a disease of old age, but it is not limited to the elderly. The disease is caused by the brain ceasing to produce dopamine, a brain chemical that enables messages to flow from one nerve cell to the next.

Symptoms of this disease include muscular rigidity, drooling, tremors, impaired speech, a stooped shuffling walk, and a fixed facial expression.

There are drugs which can alleviate the worst symptoms of Parkinson's disease, but there is no cure for the disease.

The best method of preventing Parkinson's disease is to eat a well-balanced diet, as malnutrition is believed to be an underlying factor. With the latest research, avoidance of drugs affecting brain function should be avoided.

Hedley hosts community forum

A total of twenty-five people attended what was called a 'non-political forum' chaired by RDOS Chairman Dan Ashton.

The panel included BC Southern Interior MP Alex Atamanenko, USIB Band Manager Philippe Batini, local business owner Brenda Gould, Youth Representative Megan Nendick and Regional District Director for Area G Joe Nitsch.

Atamanenko described the format for the evening as simple.

"The idea is to have people here from within the community from different segments along with elected officials to discuss various local issues."

Then Ashton allowed each panelist an opportunity to bring up issues.

Nitsch identified four issues which included what he considered under representation in Ottawa for Western Canada; new slaughterhouse regulations; accountability in government and difficulties the Keremeos Museum Society has encountered in acquiring the former RCMP station building for expansion.

Nendick, a Grade 12 student, spoke about her concerns related to drug use - crystal meth in particular - in her community and the effect it has on her community.

Gould indicated she had "a few beefs" which included the universal childcare credit; the GST; the lack of federal legislation protecting heritage sites and the slow response of Heritage Canada on a project she is involved with through the USIB.

Batini admitted he really didn't have much to say. It was a welcome break from what was turning into panelists complaining to the MP rather than tackling issues with the MP.

Batini mentioned a concern regarding cuts to government programs that were benefiting the community and then Atamanenko was allowed to respond to all points presented.

Some were surprised that he supported each and every issue discussed and had a response for all of them.

Then the meeting shifted to the original intent, input from those in attendance.

The biggest issue from the floor was the proposed coal-fired power plant project of Compliance Energy for Princeton.

Opinions were requested from panelists and Batini was obviously targeted based on a financial deal the USIB signed with Compliance.

Batini explained the purpose of the arrangement stating the document covers items including protection of the environment and respect for Aboriginal rights and title.

"If the project is a real potential risk to the environment and health then we are not in favour of it," he said saying the USIB deal is designed to establish accountability guidelines with Compliance.

He then pointed out many established industrial sites that have already been accepted by residents are already threatening the environment.

Atamanenko's response to the question was simple and direct.

"Any decision made on this (the coal-fired plant proposal) should be a local decision."

He expressed concerns shared with Princeton Mayor Randy McLean that the established pollution control standards may not be strict enough and a curiosity of why such a plant would be established with global warming concerns becoming more obvious.

The group fielded more questions from the floor on a variety of subjects and following a short refreshment break, continued with casual one-on-one discussions.

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 58 (NICOLA-SIMILKAMEEN) TRANSPORTATION ASSISTANCE

Families living beyond the regular school bus routes who may be eligible for transportation assistance for the 2006/2007 school year, and are asked to make application before October 31, 2006, regardless of whether transportation assistance was received in previous years. Applications after this date will be approved as of the date the application is received, and will not be retroactive. Please note that parents of kindergarten students who are required to pick their child up or bring them to the school at lunchtime may also qualify.

Transportation Assistance forms are available at each of the schools in Princeton.

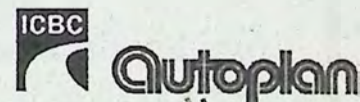

Parents are reminded that road/weather conditions may cause delays/cancellations to the regular bus run(s). In extreme circumstances, notice of delays will be announced over the local radio station and the school will attempt to contact parents by phone, in order that children do not wait extended time periods at a bus stop.

Gag order irks Atamanenko

Alex Atamanenko, MP, BC Southern Interior, NDP Agriculture critic, says he is stunned by the recent gag order which has just been delivered to the Canadian Wheat Board by the Conservative government and is calling on the Prime Minister to repeal it.

"It is inconceivable that democracy can in any way be served by such a blatant abuse of ministerial power," stated Atamanenko.

"By imposing these types of restrictions it makes you wonder what the governments real agenda is and why they so desperately need to hog-tie the Wheat Board in such a way."

The Minister of Agriculture, Chuck Strahl, requested that an Order in Council be issued to the CWB with the following directives for the conduct of its operations:

- a) it shall not expend funds, directly or indirectly on advocating the retention of its monopoly powers, including the expenditure of funds for advertising, publishing or market research and
- b) it shall not provide funds to any other person or entity to enable them to advocate the retention of the monopoly powers of the CWB.

"Stephen Harper, as past President of the National Citizens Coalition, before he was Prime Minister, spoke against the use of gag laws, calling them unconstitutional. Those of you who have heard him speak regarding this issue should be wondering why he now condones it as an acceptable tool to promote his governments hidden agenda," noted Atamanenko.

"This current gag order is not the only front in the governments war against the Wheat Board. On October 30, Bill C-300 - An Act to Amend the Canadian Wheat Board will be the next skirmish in this epic battle. I am calling on all members of the Liberal Party, the Bloq Quebecois, and those of conscience within the Conservative Party, to unite in opposition when it comes before the House at the end of the month," petitioned Atamanenko.

"In light of the fact that the Board has been silenced, I would urge all supporters from across the country to e-mail, telephone or write to the Agriculture Minister or to their Member of Parliament, and let them know what you think of the tactics they've employed so far in their attempt to destroy farmers marketing advantage. The postage is free," Atamanenko concluded.

Council sets airport committee structure

Town Council has approved the structure of the official Princeton Airport Select Committee. Council and staff regarding specific operational issues affecting the airport and lands, and advise on any proposals with regard to use and operation of the airport and lands.

The committee will be comprised of two members of Council and the mayor, Area H Regional Director, and three community members appointed by Council.

Councillor Ray Jarvis proposed the following be appointed to the committee: Mayor Randy McLean, Councillors Ray Jarvis and Pam Jones, Area H Director Gerri Logan, Dave Woodruff, Bill Quinlan and Mike Heisey. Appointments will be ratified at the October 6 Town Council meeting.

Board complies with class size law

Bill 33, an Act governing class sizes in B.C. schools, dictates limits to class size in all districts, and requires a compliance report from every school district.

At the October 4 meeting of School District #58 (Nicola-Similkameen), Superintendent Byron Robbie submitted the compliance report.

The report shows Kindergarten at 17 students per class. Grades 1 to 3 have an average of 20.1 students per class, while Grades 4 to 7 have an average of 21.9 students per class. At the secondary school level, Grades 8 to 12 have a class size average of 20.1 students.

Posse honours former hometown players

It's a subject that has been debated for many months.

The fact that Princeton's Junior B Hockey Club no longer has a 'hometown' boy in a Posse jersey since the 'retirement' of fan favourite Chance Lintick may have something to do with attendance figures at Princeton Arena.

Regardless of what may have kept some fans away, the Posse honoured former 'hometown' players in a big way, although in a quiet manner.

Gerad Norman, who played in the Posse's first season along with Tyler Gunn, and Lintick who played three seasons with the team were each presented free season passes.

Not just for the current season, but lifetime season passes for the Princeton Posse.

Lintick also has the distinction of having his jersey number retired from the team in a ceremony which took place at the beginning of last season.

There's no doubt each of the trio contributed something special and unique to Princeton's hockey club when they were part of the team.

Each of them will be remembered in different ways by the fans who cheered them on and the Posse has recognized these players contributions in a very special way.

Although there is no local boys on the team this season, some veteran players have returned and are considered by many fans and supporters of the team as locals.

It's not the same as having a homegrown boy on the squad, but for now its close enough.

From behind the floodlights

by Mo Sanderson

When Eric and I moved to Princeton in 1976 we were asked to join the Drama Club.

Neither of us had ever acted before, but it seemed like a good idea at the time: little did we know how much fun we would have or how hard we'd have to work.

We had no theatre, so all productions were staged in the Legion Hall, which was a major chore, as we had to build our own stage, put up flats, get all the props and costumes, set up lights and then do a dress rehearsal on Thursday night, with public performances on Friday and Saturday nights.

Then on Sunday everything had to be taken down and stored in the library basement, which is where we rehearsed for six weeks. It was hard work, but very rewarding to stand in front of the audience and hear their applause.

We used to do two plays a year, as well as British Pub Night and Oktoberfest.

Some of the plays we did were "Bedroom Farce", "Arsenic and old lace", and "Our Hearts were young and Gay". I wonder whether there is anyone out there who remembers seeing me in full chain mail, as Joan of Arc?

I sincerely hope not! Once again live theatre is coming to Princeton, as our group is going to stage Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap" in the spring of 2007, and I am sure the people of this town will come out and support us as they did all those years ago.

There will be acting work shops on Wednesday October 18th at 6:30 PM at the Wellness Centre. These workshops will be conducted by D. Cursons of Cawston.

We are looking for new members and anyone who is interested in joining, the membership for one year is a mere $10.00 and you really have fun.

For further information, phone me, Mo Sanderson at 295-6549 or Paul Huycke at 295-7339.

Horoscopes

October 18 - 25, 2006

Aries - You are about to shift gears. By the end of this week, your focus shifts to matters of insurance, investments, and debts, such as a mortgage. Put your finances in order now.

Taurus - Your partner will show some signs of loving concern, and may become pushy about it. Pay attention. It is for your own good. Expect to have more fun when you cooperate.

Gemini - Make an appointment to have a health check done. You need to focus now on you job and your health. Your partner's health may be a concern, too. Look at lifestyle.

Cancer - This week could end with a lot more fun than you have had in a long time, or it could be full of romance problems. Be sure you communicate with young people. Pay attention.

Leo - You need to do more talking at home. Your mind is more focused on activity at home, and with parents. Take time to resolve problems before they grow. Parents are kind.

Virgo - You are on the move, running errands, talking to people, dealing with decisions. A sibling may make some demands, but take new attitude in stride. Change is positive now.

Libra - A big change takes place in your finances at the end of this week. You will be concerned about what you own. Possessions will be important, but restrict spending now.

Scorpio - This is your best time of year. This weekend marks the beginning of a very positive phase for you. Prepare for a lot of action, and a lot of changes. Keep ego under control. Enjoy!

Sagittarius - A phase of your life is ending this week. You move into a potentially dangerous phase in which you could put foot in mouth and be your own worst enemy. Caution!

Capricorn - Groups you belong to demand your attention, but in a good way. Now is a good time to begin making plans for the future. Activity may become hectic, but it will be fun.

Aquarius - Your home, parents and career are about to have some major positive changes, but you will find these challenging. You could get a promotion or other career upgrade.

Pisces - Travel, education and spiritual matters are about to get a big boost in your life, but do not expect to remain the same as you have been. You will see the world in a more positive way.

Peanut and Caramel Cheesecake

(NC)-There's always room for dessert and sometimes, simple is best. Serve up this classic cheesecake favourite with a twist and finish your meal on a high note. For even more tips and recipes, visit www.presidentschoice.ca.

Peanut and Caramel Cheesecake Prep time: 5 minutes. Makes 10 servings.

- 1 pkg New! President's Choice (PC) New York Deli-Style Cheesecake, thawed
- 1/2 cup PC Butter Toffee Peanuts
- 1/2 cup butterscotch ice cream & dessert topping

1. Remove all packaging including base board and place cheesecake on serving platter.
2. Place peanuts in large plastic bag. Using rolling pin, crush peanuts into large chunks. Set aside.
3. In microwave safe bowl, heat butterscotch sauce on HIGH for 30 seconds. Drizzle over cheesecake. Sprinkle with peanuts. Serve immediately. To serve, cut with knife moistened with warm water.

news leader puzzle page puzzle maps of exploration

Draw a line on the map from (bracketed clue) solution to (bracketed clue) solution

Finally reaching Tahiti 18°S/150°W, a long and dangerous journey from England around the Cape of Good Hope and across the Indian ocean; we were now ready to start our primary task... the search for a northwest passage from the Pacific to the Atlantic, around or through the Americas. First we headed north across the Equator to the unexplored islands of (sound of laugh then baby cry-two eyes) that he named (the slices of bread with different food between) islands. Finding a safe harbor and lush vegetation we took on fruit and water then reluctantly left the island of Kauai and encountered a large pod of killer whales that dived and swam close to us for awhile. Heading east for the west coast of North America we made landfall in (C- Ali for Nia) and sailed north parallel to the coast mapping the shore as we went. Past (solid ground minerals-no more) and Washington State eventually stopping at Nootka Sound on Vancouver Island. Reprovisioned we continued north along the coast, now heading west around the gulf of Alaska and enjoying what seemed like the same whale pod we had seen in Hawaii. Finally we sailed into the Bering Strait which was impassable with ice. Frustrated and cold we returned south following 165° longitude to winter in warmer climes near the Tropic of (crab constellation) in the Sandwich Islands. We made anchor in a beautiful tropical harbor at Kealakekua Bay on a big Island with a volcano. Our welcome was fantastic. The natives treated us like kings, bringing gifts and entertaining us at great fire lit feasts under palm trees. After a month of such treatment the Captain decided to continue our exploration north. We had not sailed far when our foremast snapped and we had to return to Hawaii for repairs. This time our reception was strangely hostile, a small boat was stolen and the Captain, very angry, commanded a landing party. On the beach a skirmish with native warriors started and the Captain was stabbed to death on the waters edge, his body taken as a prize.

my turn

C.R.O.P.S. or P.O.S.S.E.?

Maybe it was the result of too many late night meetings in a row, but it was bound to happen.

While sitting in the back row of one meeting last week we drifted into a daydream about another meeting we attended a night or two before.

The 'daydream' meeting was to pull together a local citizen driven steering committee to tell the "other side of the story" regarding the Compliance Power Plant. We're pretty sure what was meant by "the other side of the story" was not the fresh smelling, happy horizon of invisible mercury emissions story we've all been spoon-fed by Compliance.

The part of the meeting we were actually daydreaming about was the struggle of this local citizen driven steering committee to come up with a name that has a snappy acronym. Which, by the way, we think is far less important than the actual substance of the committee: the purpose.

Anyway, we started working on names. Remember, it was at a late night meeting that seemed to be going nowhere when we thought about the local citizen driven committee meeting that seemed to be going somewhere.

Then we decided it was time to S.L.A.P. (Saving the Land Around Princeton) ourselves to wake up. It was really that S. I. M. P. L. E. (SIMilkameen People Lovin' our Environment). Before we knew it, it was hard to S. T. O. P. (Someone's Taking Over Princeton). It was only about C. O. A. L. (Compliance Offers Another Laughable project) and B. I. O. M. A. S. S. (Better Industry Offers More ASSistance).

We tried to make them G. O. A. W. A. Y. (Get Out Already, We All don't like You) then we wanted someone to P. R. O. V. E. I. T. (PROtecting our Valley and Environment, Including the Town) because it sounds at times like a bunch of C. R. A. P. (Compliance Ruins everything Around Princeton) which made us think about the C. R. Then it occurred to us. What we really need is a local citizen driven steering committee with the skill, drive and determination of a P. O. S. S. E. (Protecting Our Special Similkameen Environment).

Toews reflects on news

Dear Editor:

Revenge is the normal response we read about in the headlines when someone has been wronged. The search for revenge is what makes more and bigger headlines than the original crime. Drug traffickers will use automatic weapons to exact revenge.

People who don't carry guns will ask the courts to get revenge for them. When they believe that sentences imposed by the courts on their behalf are too lenient they lobby progressive governments to increase punishment (revenge). As a last resort they will vote for extreme governments who promise to increase punishment.

This is the accepted norm in our society despite warnings from psychologists that revenge does not bring the closure that the victims crave and expect. Conversely, hatred and the thirst for revenge often create mental instability and otherwise decrease the longevity of the victim.

We look on the Amish people as being backward and ignorant because of their lifestyle choices, but what I saw on TV today was a deeply moving experience. Instead of crying out for revenge, the Amish families in Pennsylvania prayed for forgiveness for the deranged man who killed their little girls. In this one respect, these humble people carry out the wishes of their teacher, the man who told them to turn the other cheek.

And this is a divine law that very few of his followers actually practice.

Through this simple act of selflessness the Amish people will profoundly change many North American lives for the better. Personally, I don't know how I'd react under similar circumstances, but I'd like to think that after the initial shock I could do the same.

Sincerely,
HPToews, Princeton

Letter To The Editor

Joe offers solution

Letter to The Editor,

Maybe we could put a series of mini - power dams on the Tulameen and Similkameen rivers which would also allow us to conserve the water before it disappears and becomes just a faint memory.

At the present river levels it wouldn't take much to drink Princeton dry. Now that would truly be a tragedy !!

Current Comment:

Watch out for corporate health care

Dawn Johnson
editor@thenewsleader.ca

Canada's health care system may have its problems, but there are a lot more problems when corporations take over health care.

Private health care means corporations provide health care. This can be a highly dangerous situation for those of us who need health care. As things stand now, we have to pay for many health services out of our own pockets. Imagine what it would be like to have to pay for everything out of our own pockets, and hope an insurance company will cover the cost when we send in our claims. That is the way privatized health care works.

Right now, our only leverage on our public health care system is our vote. We can make or break political careers through our votes, and no politician wants to be tossed out of office because the voters rejected the politician. Canada's medicare is both a federal and provincial concern and is influenced by politics. Pay attention! Tell your Member of Parliament, Alex Atamanenko, and your MLA, Harry Lali, that you want health care protected from privatization.

Don't buy the lie that private, corporate-owned health care systems are cheaper. They are not. A number of studies show that our neighbours to the south pay twice as much for health care as we do, and 40 million Americans do not have any health care coverage.

Why is private health care so costly?

Our system runs as a not-for-profit system. A hospital operated by a corporation must show profits. To show profits, the corporation must charge more per patient than a not-for-profit hospital. Shareholders own the corporation and they expect to receive dividends on their shares.

If you listen to those people advocating a private health care system, they will tell you all sorts of lies about health insurance. They will tell you health insurance covers the cost of your medical and hospital bills. Do not believe it! Like all insurance companies, there are loopholes in fine print. For example, if you have a condition which existed at the time the insurance was granted, even if you did not know you had this condition, your coverage may be denied.

What if you can't get health insurance? This happens under privatized health care. Suppose you have a child born with a serious birth defect. Who will provide health insurance for this child? Good luck trying to find an insurance company willing to cover that child's medical and hospital costs. Health insurance corporations, like all insurance companies, exist to make profits. They don't want to insure anybody who is automatically a liability.

Let's say you find an insurance company willing to give you health insurance. Can you afford the premiums? Under our present system, everyone has health insurance provided by our government, and premiums are scaled to income. If you are really poor, you pay nothing.

Why am I talking about corporate health care and corporate health insurance in the same breath? It is because they go together.

What has alarmed many Canadians is the election of Dr. Brian Day as President of the Canadian Medical Association. Dr. Day advocates for-profit health care. He operates a clinic in Vancouver where most of his patients have private health insurance. He really believes our present system is not a benefit to Canadians, and cites waiting lists as one of the indicators that what he says is true.

I am sure Dr. Day makes a good living at what he does, and probably any doctor who followed in his footsteps would make a good living, too. They would probably earn more than doctors providing service under the present system. Don't kid yourself into believing doctors don't care about the bottom line. Doctors are business people. They run their own health care services businesses. Of course they care about making a good living. They have invested a lot of years and a lot of money into gaining the skills and the certification they require. (In Canada, taxpayers invest a lot of money into physicians' training.)

The Council of Canadians, a citizens watchdog organization, is touring Canada this month to alert Canadians to the dangers of having Dr. Day as spokesman for the Canadian Medical Association. Many people tend to believe what doctors say because most people have a mental image of a physician as a selfless professional dedicated to saving lives. I am sure there are physicians who live up to that image, but there are just as many who are more concerned with making money than saving lives. Corporate health care is a money-maker with few controls, and the people who make the most money are those who run the hospitals and other medical services.

If you want to pay more for health care, believe what the privatization specialists tell you. If you want to make sure every Canadian has access to health care, tell your politicians how you would vote on this issue.

Love Covers A Multitude Of Sin

I remember the sound of the sirens letting the whole town know that the local fire department was once again summoned for their help. Of course the flames that were covering the outbuilding at the new Chevrolet dealership drew some attention as well. I remember thinking, it's better that I not be present when the fire department and police arrive and so my two best friends and I ran for safer places.

First we hid in Ricky's basement; at least until the police had knocked on the door and Ricky's sister had lied about us being there. (I think they knew). When we felt that it was clear, we snuck out of the basement and jumped a few fences and headed for the river road that led out of town. We could still hear the emergency vehicles coming to the scene, even as we ran, three abreast, down the old pump house road that led up the river and out of town. (Thinking back now, we were headed up the river and none of us had paddles). While we were running with all the strength our 11-year old legs could produce, a local RCMP officer drives up beside us and asks what we were doing. Craig, the son of the local RCMP Staff Sergeant, was closest to the cruiser when the question was asked. He, between gasping for gulps of air, said we were just out for a run. Ricky on the other hand, started to cry, (still running for his life) and said, We didn't mean to start the fire. Needless to say we didn't have to run back to town, we were given a ride. As seasoned passengers in the police car as a result of a few other mishaps, Craig and I knew that if you pretended to tie your shoe as you went through town, no one would see you in the back of the police car. Ricky on the other hand had never ridden in a police car before, and sat up straight and tall as we proceeded to the local RCMP detachment. Years have come and gone since those days in my home town.

Skipping ahead many years, I remember my first place on ministry, Dawson City; I was the pastor of a small church. (I had left my mark in this area as well while working as welder on construction, at that time I drank quite a bit and my wife were literally run out a small community called Clinton Creek, just north of Dawson City) Now I was the pastor and I was asked by the local community to sit on a panel that was to discuss teenage vandalism in our small town. It seemed ironic; at from being the reason for such a meeting as a teenager in my home town, to try and figure out what to do with the likes of Ricky, Craig and me, and now to sit on a panel to offer input on what to do with the new Rickys, Craigs and Jims of the then mid-1980s.

What made the difference? Christ. You see His love covered my many sins. (I had many more sins than I shared in this story) and Christ changed my life. I have been a pastor for the last 20 years and have just become the RCMP Chaplain in Oceanside. Now I can sit in the front of the police car and I don't have to tie my shoes. (At my age I have trouble bending over anyway and Velcro shoes are much easier to do up).

What about Craig? He's been an RCMP member for about 30 years now and he sits in the front of police car as well. Ricky? Well, I've lost touch with him, but I often look in the back of the police cars to see if I recognize anyone sitting up straight and tall.

Thief pleads guilty

Lee C. Kachkowski pled guilty in Provincial Court in Princeton on October 12 to three criminal charges. He stole a vehicle belonging to Princeton area resident Jim Cromarty, drove while impaired, and admitted to a B & E at 1674 Princeton-Summerland Road, north of Princeton.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared. Kachkowski will be sentenced in Princeton Court on December 14.

No 'Wild West' Judge says

Although Jessie Williams, a former Princeton resident, told Judge Wallace why he had been angry with Scott Michaud after false accusations by Michaud, Judge Wallace was not impressed.

She told Williams she had walked around Princeton and noticed it is a western town.

"This is not the wild west," she said. "You don't take matters into your own hands."

As Williams had no criminal record, she gave him a conditional discharge, and ordered a six month probation.

Judge orders a taste of jail

Failure to report to her probation officer brought Dichelle Foss to court in Princeton on October 12. She admitted her guilt on the charge of breach of probation. She had been placed on probation on January 25, 2005, on conviction on a charge of causing a disturbance. She reported to her probation officer twice as required, but did not report between April 21 and May 13.

Discharge comes with conditions

A car left for three consecutive days in the arena parking lot in Princeton led to a chain of events that brought Jason Alvarez to court in Princeton on October 12. He had left his car at the arena as a meeting point for a person to pick him up for work. The arena manager noted the car, advised the police it had been abandoned, and it was towed away. Alvarez, who lives in the rural area,

A drug problem was blamed for her failure to report.

The 34 year old Princeton resident told the court she has not been on drugs or alcohol for most of the past year. She asked for one more chance, despite a history of breach of probation convictions. She did not want to go to jail.

Judge Wallace gave her the chance, but ordered her to serve three days in jail to give her a "taste needed his car to keep his job. He found the car in the Abba Towing impound lot, and drove it through the gate, causing $397.50 in damages.

Alvarez entered a guilty plea, and was given a conditional discharge, nine months on probation, and was ordered to do 20 hours of unpaid community service work, as well as pay for the damage.

Australian driver still pays fine

Despite residing now in Australia, former local resident Ryan Brewer must pay a $600 fine and serve a one year B.C. driving prohibition.

Lawyer Marty Johnson appeared in Provincial Court in Princeton on October 12 to act as agent for Brewer, and to plead guilty to an impaired driving charge under Section 224 of the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act.

Johnson explained Brewer had moved to Australia with his parents, and is planning to apply for landed immigrant status in Australia. Brewer may never return to Canada, Johnson told the court.

Judge Wallace accepted Johnson as an agent for Brewer, but imposed the fine, which must be paid before January 31, 2007. The driving prohibition remains on the books.

of what will happen next time" she fails to report while on probation.

Driver loses licence

A young driver learned the high cost of having too many points. On August 4, 2006, Michael Visscher, a Lower Mainland resident, was stopped in a road block at Coalmont.

He had been prohibited from driving by the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles due to his driving record.

Visscher appeared in Provincial Court in Princeton on October 12 to plead guilty to a charge of driving while prohibited. He was ordered to pay a $500 fine and lost his right to drive for a year.

Judge orders fine

Alana Forbes, a Princeton resident, appeared in Provincial Court on October 12 to plead guilty to a charge of possession of an illegal drug: methamphetamine. On March 2, 2005, police noticed her walking downtown. She appeared to be under the influence of some substance.

Police followed her and noted furtive behaviour. Forbes dropped something on the ground. She was stopped and searched. Police found methamphetamine and she was carrying a pipe for use of the drug.

Judge Wallace ordered the 44 year old woman to pay a $400 fine.
