Counci looks at proposal for liquor outlets

A proposal to Council by Steve Brodie (JAC Management) will be the subject of a public meeting at Town Hall.

Brodie proposes to move the location of a previous liquor licence (Princeton Hotel) to a new location at 301 Bridge Street.

Brodie states he intends to put a liquor retail store at another location, 199 Highway 3, Princeton. Brodie submitted the required documentation for Town Council's perusal, but Council decided there should be an opportunity for the public to have a say or ask ques-

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS LEADER by Solana Allison

I was headed into the Overwaitea the other day, picking up a couple of things for dinner. I was in line with the rest of the town, when I became aware of grumbling in front of me. An elderly gentleman was voicing his concern with increasing volume over the wait in line.

Part of the hold up, I discovered, was a flustered teenage boy attempting desperately to sort out some change issues he was having; trying to get a bill back instead of more change. The clerk was gently trying to walk him through it.

Before the red-eared boy had even gotten out of ear shot the gentleman in front of me proclaimed loudly, "I don't know what they're teaching in schools these days, but it sure ain't math." He craned his head around with a conspirational smirk in my general direction.

The next day I headed up the hill to see 'The Man.' His name is Bill. He is from downtown 'Toronta' if you know what I mean, and he's been around the block.

"My name is Bill Lawrence, I'm a Principal and it still amazes me." Q: How long on the Job?

"Eight years. Two years here as Vice Principal, four years Principal at Riverside and then this is my fourth year here, at Princeton Secondary as a Principal."

Q: What inspired you to be a Principal? You used to be a forensics guy from back east is that right? And now you're a Principal in a small town.

"I didn't like the forensics and I think we've spoken about that, didn't for whole bunches of reasons and I needed to get into a job that was more people-oriented in a positive way and I had some experience at university TA-ing and I liked it. Boom - got into it. You know, being from a blue collar background, just being a teacher was like the epitome for my family, cause I'm the first guy with a degree."

Q: Is there a big difference from being a Principal at an elementary school to being a Principal at the high school level?

'Yeah. Issues are different, you know, more all around, a lot more parental involvement at an elementary school. Parents are really interested in each class their kids are going to be in especially if there's a choice of two, those sorts of things. Parents don't necessarily get involved here in which teacher they want or what teacher their child is going to have. We have to have a class makeup that's fair, right? I don't want to speak for the elementary Principals, but there are some kids that take more time than others and you want to try and ensure that there's an even distribution. More academic kids, some kids that require a little more work, some kids who behaviourally need a little more time with an adult. So you don't want one teacher loaded down with that. We do look at that here, but it's less. You know it's just different because at elementary schools, you have a teaching load as well. Here I'm fortunate that I get enough admin time that I can take care of things, I'm not teaching, at elementary school you are teaching a third of the time."

Q: Holy cow, as well as running the school? "As well as running the school, and it's very difficult. You know when a parent walks in they don't want to hear that you're teaching. They don't want to hear you're 6.5 percent Principal and 3.5 percent teacher. They want the Principal, and they want them now. So it's tough, but the headaches are less. We have bigger headaches here, drugs - not that it's a big problem or any of that stuff but it is an issue, continued on Page 7

Upper Similkameen Indian Band secures woodlot

The Upper Similkameen Indian Band will receive $135,000, establish a woodlot and gain access to more than 256,000 cubic metres of timber through two forestry agreements reached with the Province, Forests and Range Minister Rich Coleman announced last week.

"A major goal of these agreements is to diversify British Columbia's forest industry, while creating economic opportunities for First Nations," said Coleman.

"The Upper Similkameen Indian Band will be able to use its new timber volume to support its existing forestry operations and expand its new furniture-making business."

The band's woodlot volume will total up to 1,624 cubic metres of timber annually. A second short-term mountain pine beetle agreement grants access to 256,480 cubic metres of wood over five years. Timber volumes for both agreements will come from the Merritt Timber Supply Area.

The Upper Similkameen Indian Band is one of the biggest contractors working in the Cascades Forest District, harvesting an average of 200,000 cubic metres of timber annually. It's forestry enterprises include harvesting, engineering, silviculture and archaeological research. It also runs USIB Wood Products, which ships pine furniture to Alberta and across B.C.

"We believe in pursuing every opportunity to improve the lives of our people and to contribute to the surrounding community," said Chief Rick Holmes.

"The agreements recognized today support that vision."

The Upper Similkameen Indian Band has eight reserves and 65 members, most of who live in Hedley.

Since 2002, the Province has reached agreement with 127 First Nations, providing $166.5 million in revenue and access to 24.4 million cubic metres of timber.

Town plans dyke repair

The provincial government has expressed concerns about snow-pack levels and the potential for flooding during the spring freshet this year. The province has established a fund for flood damage prevention. Although the government left little time to apply for funds and do the work, Town Council has applied.

Due to restrictions, conditions and funding limitations by the government, there is only one area that reasonably qualifies for funding. The dyke area between the New Beginnings building and Highway 5A will receive some upgrade work if the project is funded by the provincial government.

The work must be completed no later than May 15. Typically, the peak of the freshet is on the long weekend in May, although the worst flooding has occurred when spring temperatures remained below normal and then the temperature spiked. Both the 1948 and 1972 spring freshet floods occurred in early June.

Village Council briefs

by Dennis Walker, Giant-FM News

COUNCIL LOOKS AT TILMA

Businesses and local governments in British Columbia and Alberta are discussing the Trade Investment and Labour Mobility Agreement and as provincial Ministers move to enter into the agreement, some local governments have concerns about it reducing their autonomy.

Keremeos Village Council resolved at last Monday night's regular meeting to write a letter to the provincial government to advise them the agreement not be imposed on municipalities.

The agreement, in part, is intended to allow a more efficient flow of goods and services and investments between the two provinces.

COUNCIL PREPARES GREEN

RESOLUTION

Keremeos Village Council will be preparing a resolution for the UBCM convention in September which they hope will be forwarded to the provincial government asking them to extend the current reduction of Provincial Sales Tax on alternative fuel vehicles to include fuel efficient vehicles.

The Federal Government's budget identified fuel efficient vehicles as cars getting 100-kilometres for 6.5 litres, or trucks getting 100-kilometres for 8.3 litres or better.

Hybrid vehicles are quite expensive, and the fuel efficient vehicles aren't as pricey, so it's a way to get some dollars back into the pockets of people who can't afford a hybrid vehicle but are trying to actually address greenhouse gas emissions.

Country for Canada Day Celebrations.

A total of $11,200.00 was approved as Grants-In-Aid with Similkameen Country receiving a total of $5,700.00 for Events and the InfoCentre, Keremeos Museum received $2,500.00, the Garden Club also received $2,500.00 as a fee for service and the Keremeos Citizens On Patrol (COPS) will receive $500.00.

In Keremeos Grants-In-Aid are applied for by various non-profit organizations by September 15th in the year prior to the year for which the grant is requested. Council reviews the applications during their annual budget discussions and, in accordance with Policy 22-03 (Grants In Aid), applications are assessed on a number of criteria including financial need and benefit to the community as a whole.

Donations are requested for specific purposes by various nonprofit groups, reviewed by Council as they are received throughout the year and, in accordance with Policy 8-88 (Donations), requests are "assessed on their individual merits."

For fat: limit it to an amount the size of the tip of your thumb.

Some people believe that since marijuana is a natural product, it is not harmful. The truth is that marijuana contains more than 425 chemicals that convert to thousands when smoked. Many of these chemicals are very toxic. There is also a danger from the pesticides and fungicides used to grow the plant that remain as a residue on the leaves and can cause harm. Natural doesn't mean safe.

Most people don't breathe deeply enough. There is a new theory being studied that says a few minutes of slow, deep breathing each day may help reduce blood pressure. It could be that deep breathing helps get rid of excess sodium which can reduce blood pressure. Take the time to slowly and deeply breathe. It's good for you.

RSPs: No parking zo

(NC) - With the passing of another RSP season, many Canadians who contributed to their RSPs may think they're off the investing hook for another year. However, contributing to your RSP - no matter how big or small the contribution - is only the first step. With the pressure to meet the RSP deadline behind you, now is the perfect time to re-evaluate your retirement plan so you can get the most out of your investments.

In a mad rush to make an RSP contribution before the deadline, many Canadians simply park their contribution in a low-return money market fund or savings account. While making the RSP deadline is better than missing a contribution opportunity altogether, simply parking your RSP dollars limits your investment's growth potential.

"Many Canadians park their RSP contribution for one of two reasons," says Julie Sheen, vice president, BMO Term Investments. "Some park their contribution with the intention of revisiting it at a later time. Others are still confused about what an RSP really is and are not aware of all the investment options available."

An RSP is not an investment product; instead it's an investment vehicle designed to hold your retirement savings and investments so they can grow in a tax-sheltered environment. Many types of investments can be held within an RSP such as mutual funds, guaranteed investment certificates (GICs), equities and stocks.

Sheen adds, "Now that the RSP rush is over, it's a good time to review the investing options available within your RSP and to decide how to invest your RSP contribution. A great way to get started is by meeting with an investment professional at your local bank branch who can help you determine which investments are best suited to your needs."

Overall, investors should aim to create a diversified investment portfolio, which means dividing your investments among a variety of asset types so that you don't have all of your eggs in one basket. GICs and mutual funds are also a good place to start as they contain a variety of options suited to various investing styles.

Earth Day turns 37 - 7 ideas to help you commemorate

(NC) - This April marks the 37th anniversary of Earth Day, providing an opportune time to think about how you can help address the growing concern of environmental impact from high energy use. A logical first place to start is by making your own home more energy-efficient.

Philips, a global leader in home lighting technology, suggests replacing incandescent lights with energy saving compact fluorescent bulbs in seven key locations in and around your home. This can dramatically reduce energy consumption and replacement costs.

However, even though most people want to become more energy efficient, they find it difficult to navigate a sometimes complicated world of energy-saving options.

Switching to Compact Fluorescent (CFLs) products is probably the easiest and quickest way to promote energy-savings around your home. Philips Marathon Compact Fluorescent bulbs are a long life, energy-saving light bulb that provides soft white light while at the same time helping to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and the costs of electricity bills. Available in a variety of models, colours, and wattages, these lights offer an energy efficient replacement for most types of incandescent lights in your

Below are seven of the best can switch to CFLs:

1. Of all the areas in your home, the kitchen is most likely the best candidate. Not only is this room used frequently, but an additional advantage of reduced energy is lower heat emissions. Decreasing the temperature by even a few degrees will save additional energy costs, and the family cook will be very appreciative.

2. High ceilings and stairwells are also great places for lighting replacement with an added advantage of the longer life CFLs have. The life expectancy of a CFL when compared to an incandescent is substantial. For example, a 75watt incandescent bulb has a rated life of 750 hours, where as a 26watt compact fluorescent bulb has a rated life of 10,000 hours'.

3. While motion censors can limit the hours in which your exterior lights are operational, they can also use a higher proportion of energy to turn on and off - making these lights another perfect candidate for an energy efficient lighting solution.

4. Areas where the family spends a great deal of time, often more than 3 hours a day, are prime locations when looking for energy savings. The family room can be one such

5. If you have a home office, consider replacing your incandescent desk bulb with an energy efficient household twister such as the 15W Mini-Twister Philips Daylight bulb that gives a cool white light.

6. CFL chandelier bulbs allow you to make your dining area more energy efficient. Philips is one company that makes a specialized CFL chandelier bulb as part of the compact fluorescent range.

7. A 16 watt dimmable flood light is a perfect replacement for your 65 watt incandescent light in the recreation room, games room or any recessed lighting areas in your

Ultimately, by choosing to use CFLs in your home, families can:

- # Help cut greenhouse gases from electrical power generation.
- Reduce electricity bills.
- Enjoy longer lasting bulbs (5-7 years depending upon specific usage).
- Contribute to less landfill waste (approximately one CFL for every 10 incandescent bulbs).

Keep honey on your shelf

Honey is an ancient remedy for a number of diseases. We tend to think of honey as just a sweetener, but old-time doctors recommended it for skin wounds and home nurses used honey as a standby medicine.

Research shows that honey can kill several types of bacteria that commonly cause skin infections. Many types of honey contain hydrogen peroxide, which is an antiseptic used in the human body to destroy microbes. Children suffering from diarrhea can be helped by feeding them honey dissolved in water. This not only prevents dehydration, but the honey kills bacteria in the intestine that caused the infection.

Honey is excellent as a gentle laxative. It contains a large amount of fructose, which draws water into the bowel and acts as a laxative.

Never give honey to infants. Many honeys contain a spore that will cause botulism in infants, but will not affect older children and adults. Doctors say honey should never be given to a child under one year of age.

Honey for cooking: Substituting honey for sugar means you use less honey. One cup of honey replaces 1 and 1/4 cups of sugar. In making jellies and jams, boil a little longer because honey adds extra liquid.

...... continued from Front fights - although we've only had two of those this year. So it's been good in that way but the headaches can be bigger here and the ramifications more in some ways."

Q: What's your favourite thing about being a Principal? What do you like about the job?

"I guess that it's so challenging, that's what I like about the job. It's got all kinds of elements in it, right? You're primarily dealing in people. As teachers, we're in the relationship business; forming, establishing, creating relationships, and all the difficulty of that. All relationships can be difficult, right? And how do you manage that? And then there's the logical part of it: scheduling, and getting course requests, and matching up what teachers want-with what kids want, and making sure that your schedule reflects what the kids are asking for, so there's a whole logical, sequential part of it. There's a lot to it and it challenges me, everyday. And you know what? I love the kids."

Q: Is it harder being in an educational facility now than when you first started out? Is it harder being a teacher now than when you first started out? Is government funding an issue for you guys?

"You know, I can't say funding has been an issue for us, really. I think resources we've gotten, our staffing isn't bad, compared to the provincial average - we are at 18 kids per class, and the provincial average is 24 - so you know, as far as our district goes, we've been pretty good around those issues. Could you always have more? Yeah, you could. Is it a difficult job? It is a difficult job. The hardest thing that teachers have to do is having kids in a broad spectrum of ability within your class and creating an environment within your classroom that is challenging and yet not frustrating for each of those kids."

Q: You told me a story at one point about Communications. How there used to be Communications. One more time.

"Alright the story there, we had between 15 and 50 percent of our grade eleven and twelve students taking Communications rather than English twelve. So taking those courses doesn't open enough doors for you, in my opinion. In fact, it closes too many doors. You need English twelve, because then all the doors are open. When we sat down and talked with the English department, a lot of kids were just choosing the path of least resistance. It wasn't because they didn't have the ability to do English, they didn't want to do it. 'I don't want to do this, so I'll take Communications for now, and I'll get through, I'll graduate.' So a few others and myself decided, 'You know what, we'll just eliminate it. This is not an option.' So the first year we did it, we got all of the grade elevens through, and the next year we got all of the grade twelves through, but one."

Q: You went from having...

"Yeah, basically 15 to 50% to basi-percent cally zero Communications."

Q: Was it a lot of extra work to make that happen?

"It was the dedication of the teachers, actually. A lot of co-operative learning. We've had a big co-operative learning initiative here. Guy named Barry Bennett who's a cooperative learning guru, right? And co-operative learning is based around getting kids to work together. People working together is probably the number one skill you see advertised: 'ability to work with others.' How often do you see that in the ads? You know what? Kids learn better. In our staff, nine or ten of us have been through co-operative learning."

Q: We talked at one point about a statistic; Princeton has the least amount of degrees around. Is your hope that if we raise the bar at a high school level, if we expect more from kids, are we going to get a better degree yield?

"The stat is we've got the fewest number of adults in town who have a university degree. Number one in the province for the least amount. What does that tell you? I guess that just tells you we've got a more blue-collar sort of place. Trades are great. Our school is in the top 5% for getting secondary school apprenticeships for our size, for our kids. We're doing a great job there. John Kitts (PSS teacher) has got a bunch of placements for kids to do that and they get advanced standing at college. But as far as that vision goes for university and college, I think that's where we need to work, we need to try and create that."

Q: When you're talking to kids and you're telling them 'Look, you should think about this,' what do you list as a reason? I mean, what is staying in school or going to university going to get you? Number one for me? I say options. That was what my mom said to me, you know? So I just pass that on, Number one: have options in life. Create as many options as you want. You know what? You get your high school degree with great marks you can go to any university, you can go to any trade. You can do whatever you want; you've got way more options. You don't get your high school degree, all of a sudden you can't go to university, so now I'm limiting my life to this narrow section of jobs that I might be able to do."

Q: You have a career counsellor

"Sandy Blair (PSS Vice Principal) does that, talks about careers and what options there are. We have a trades night. It's having a vision. I guess for me it's less about what we say as opposed to what we do. We take our grade elevens and twelves to Kamloops to see the University there, to Kelowna to see the college and university there. And to Penticton to see the college there. Our grade elevens had an exercise where they had to register for classes online. Because that's what all the universities and colleges do Q: And that's a new initiative?

"Penticton just set it up for the first time this year, but we will do it again next year."

Q: Could there be better community support around our kids? Schools pick up a lot of slack.

"It's a safe place for kids. I guess on one hand, I really want to say the community does support us really well, especially in the coaching and volunteer departments. We have, right now, 12 community people that come in and help us with our sports and coaching. Our community supports us really well with scholarships. We give over thirty thousand dollars in scholarships to grads on a yearly basis."

O: What would you like to see in the community that would be beneficial to kids?

"Probably somewhere to hang out. I see kids hanging around downtown, you know, smoking their cigarettes. A gym that's open in the evenings, or a games room, a hang out joint, right? Kids are going to hang out somewhere."

Q: A safe hang out joint.

"Yes a safe hang out joint, not the streets. Streets bother me."

Q: Best thing going for you?

"Hardworking staff. I go around at lunch all the time. I counted 93 kids one day in classes or the library, or the gym, or the computer room. Working with teachers. So out of our 215 kids we've got 93 engaged in the classrooms, because why? Because staff are giving up their lunch hours to go and work with kids."

So in answer to the gentleman's question; what they are teaching these days is: English 12, not Communications, what they are teaching is co-operative learning, and how to prepare for the future so kids have options.

What they are striving for is a place for kids to exist in the world and in our Town. What they are trying for is Vision.

It's so easy to blame the schools, to point and say this is why our Youth have gone awry.

We start to do things - we like to yell at the government for lack of funding, we like to stand the nuclear family cookie cutter shape up and trot it around the 'if only' corale and sing about the days of

We say outrageous things like teachers don't care.

I say it takes incredible heart to be a teacher.

How many jobs or vocations are there where the employees regularly give up their lunch hours or donate more of their time to do more of the same work?

We complain when we begin to feel uncomfortable and inadequate around the pitfalls of modern teenage hood (of which there seems to be an endless supply).

We look for the scapegoat, not the answers.

As my dear old mom used to say 'Sometimes you hafta look at what's right before you can figure what's wrong, it's part of takin'

We looked for blossoms last week to prove that Spring was actually here. We got as far as a small orchard on Armstrong Drive in Cawston before we found any blossoms. This apricot blossom was the only one open on this tree and we were lucky enough to snap a photo just as an ant was inspecting it.*

MP sends books to area schools

Alex Atamanenko, MP, and Paul Edney, Director for the We Are What We Do Society in Canada have sent a book to all schools and public libraries in the BC Southern Interior.

The book is 'Change the World for Ten Bucks - 50 actions to change the world and make you feel great,' a not-for-profit venture inspiring people to use their everyday actions to change the world and have fun while they are at it.

"As a former teacher, I knew this book would resonate with young people," said Atamanenko.

"It's simple and entertaining and, best of all, there are lots of actions to choose from so there is something everyone can find to do."

Some of the actions included in the book are: decline plastic bags wherever possible (Action #02), hug someone (Action #05), install at least one energy saving light bulb (Action #07), learn to be friendly in another language (Action #18), turn off unnecessary lights (Action #21), turn off the tap while brushing your teeth (Action #31) or write to someone who inspired you (Action #35).

Paul Edney, a resident of Nelson BC, said, "Many of us feel paralyzed when we think of the global issues facing the world; this feeling especially affects children. They think 'What can little me do to make a difference?' Change the World for Ten Bucks empowers kids and adults alike with simple actions they can do. When you multiply these action by many people doing them you get some pretty amazing results."

Take Turning the tap off while brushing our teeth for instance. Leaving the tap on wastes up to 9 liters of water a minute or 26,000 liters of water per family, per year. The book tells us that this means your street alone could fill an Olympic sized swimming pool each year. And in case you were wondering, an Olympic sized swimming pool holds 2,500,000 liters of water.

"Having Alex's support has been fantastic. Not only did he bring the book to attention at a federal level, now he's helping to inspire the kids in his riding to make a difference. I'm very appreciative of his support," added Edney.

"I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Paul Edney for making this book available to the public," said NDP MP.

"Hopefully he and I will be able to meet the leaders of our federal parties, including the Prime Minister, in the not too distant future."

Council gives theatre group applause

Princeton Performing Arts was given a big pat on the back at the April 2 Town Council meeting.

Councillor Ray Jarvis reported on the activity of the Arts Council during the meeting, making special mention of the theatre group about to make its public debut with a production of The Mousetrap. Councillor Jarvis remarked on the transformation of the gym at Riverside Wellness Centre, praising the group for the work they have done.

He went on to describe Arts & Culture Week activities and urged Council to attend both the drama presentation and the ballet.

Councillor Pam Jones introduced a motion to have all members of Council attend the play, but the motion was deemed unnecessary, as all planned to attend. Mayor Randy McLean will attend the final performance of The Mousetrap to proclaim the beginning of Arts & Culture Week.

At the end of the meeting, Arts Council President Dawn Johnson reminded Council they had invested (through a grant) in this first theatre group play.

· Councillor Jim Manion responded, "Then we have to go to see what our investment is doing."

Council was urged to attend the ballet, too, on April 29.

Skills Centre prepares for busy Spring

Princeton & District Community Skills Centre has a number of programs coming up in April and May including:

- Conversational Spanish Level
- Foodsafe Level 1
- Emergency First Aid (OFA 1 Equivalent)
- Traffic Control Person
- Airbrakes
- Introduction to MS Word
- Supervisor Safety Management The Skills Centre reminds you that with all programs there is a minimum class enrollment needed to break even on course delivery.

This is why it is always a good idea to at least call the facility to register your interest in one or more courses. This allows for planning for class size and determining whether or not there is enough interest in bringing a particular course to the Skills Centre.

In other Skills Centre news, the Ed2Go Online Education program is in the process of a classroom upgrade.

"Our online education partner Ed2Go is pleased to announce that they are planning to upgrade the online classroom interface. These changes are being made in response to feedback and suggestions received from partners, students, and instructors. This upgrade will be launched in two stages," explains Skills Centre Manager Sharan Jung.

"The first stage of the upgrade (due later this spring) updates the look of the classroom. There will be developed a warm and reassuring color scheme that will put even the newest and most technophobic student at ease. A new tabbed navigation system will make it easier for students to explore the classroom, while making better use of scarce screen space."

Jung says the second stage (due later this year) incorporates all of the improvements from the first stage, and more.

"A new upper menu bar will be introduced to give students convenient, one-click access to all classroom features. Helpful prompts will guide students step-by-step through various course components, helping to ensure that they continued on Page 10

Q. Do Realtors have to inspect property they are listing or selling?

Yes. Your listing Realtor, has a duty to properly inspect your property to discover any problems affecting the use or value. If they discover a problem they must tell you about it immediately so that you can rectify the problem.

If you are buying property, your Realtor has a similar obligation to protect you by properly inspecting the property and recommending any expert advise, like inspections.

Q. What is considered a proper inspection by the Realtor?

The Canadian Real Estate Associations Standards of Business Practice says; A Realtor has an obligation to discover facts pertaining to every property for which the Realtor accepts an agency which a reasonably prudent Realtor would discover in order to fulfill the obligation to avoid error, misrepresentation or concealment of pertinent facts. If the Realtor is acting as your Buyer Agent, they are subject to an even higher standard of care.

So don't be offended when your Realtor points out a potential problem to you. It is just part of the work that they do for you.

See you next week!

Why Should I File If I Don't Have Income Or Have Pay Tax?

If you are 18 years of age or older, you should file a tax return even if you have no income, in order to apply for the GST credit. You must be 19 to receive the credit, but if you will turn 19 before April 1 of the following year, you should apply now so that you will receive your first GST payment as soon as possible after you turn 19. Some provinces have benefits similar to the GST credit. By filing your tax return, you are applying for these benefits.

If you have earnings, but not enough net income to pay tax, you should file a tax return in order to start accumulating your "earned income" for RRSP contributions. Your earned income can be carried forward indefinitely. Also, you can contribute to an RRSP, up to $2,000 more than your earned income, and wait until a future year (when you are making higher income) to deduct the contribution. This gives your retirement fund an early start.

In order to receive or continue to receive Canada Child Tax Benefit (CCTB) payments for your children, you and your spouse must both file tax returns. CCTB payments are non-taxable monthly payments made to eligible families with children under age 18. To learn more about the CCTB, visit the CRA website CCTB page. Many provinces and territories also pay benefits to families with children. By applying for the CCTB and filing your annual tax returns, you will be eligible to receive these benefits. For more information, see the CRA page on provincial and territorial child benefit and credit programs.

For seniors who are receiving the GIS (Guaranteed Income Supplement), filing of their annual income tax return automatically renews the GIS. For more information on the GIS, see the article on GIS information on the Seniors page.

Some provinces have refundable tax credits, which are payable to you even if you have no earnings and have paid no tax. This means they will send you a cheque for the tax credit!

Tax Tip: File a tax return even if you don't have taxable income.

42nd Chopaka Rodeo results

In Team Roping the pair of Jackson Louis and Leo Louis took first with the amazing time of 5.89 seconds. Leo Louis also took second place with partner Cecil Louis with 6.34. Third place went to Tony Verbeeten and Josh Ellis (6.85-seconds). The only Princeton teams to score were Terry Wright and Ed Nault (7.55) and Mac Lind with Stan Thompson (21.70).

There were no scores recorded in the Bareback event.

Steve Pozzobon took Calf Roping with a time of 15.43 seconds. Jarret Dais was second (27.76) and Colter McLean finished third (28.56).

Princeton's Aimee Willis won Ladies Barrel Racing with a time of 16.25 seconds. Marlo Fosbery was second (17.02) and Sheryl Spencer third (17.32). Former Princeton cowgirl Darcy Willis finished with 21.48-seconds.

Marmots are a 2:1 bet today

Could it be the smell of Spring?

You know, the budding of the trees which leads to those wonderful looking blossoms which leads to runny noses and the sneezes as Springtime allergies kick in.

Maybe it's the result of some of those invisible particles wafting over us as a result of a well-aimed chem trail or something else that's claimed to contain zero emissions but continues to belch out some sort of contaminant that has affected us in some strange and unexplained way.

Maybe it's the result of a not enough to do and a little too much caffeine or maybe it's our current addiction of trying to cheat at Sudoku or the addiction we just kicked of cheating at solitaire.

Whatever the cause, the result is crystal clear:

We have started an office pool.

Not just your ordinary who wins the Stanley Cup-type office pool. No sirree, not around here. We concern ourselves with other matters of major local concern.

So far the choices are many.

BCTF President on the FSA's

To The Editor;

Parents of students in Grades 4 and 7 may be aware of the government's bureaucratic Foundation Skills Assessment plan. These tests are administered over a two-week period in May. The results are unfortunately used by the privately funded Fraser Institute to rank schools. Parents are sent their child's results the following school year.

Teachers are concerned about FSAs for the following reasons:

1) Valuable time is taken away from teaching a rich curriculum and is instead used to "teach to the test." More and more school districts expect teachers to prepare their students for the FSAs in order to achieve better results. Teachers and parents know the good work going on in schools to benefit their students cannot be measured by a standardized test.

2) The cost of administering FSAs is approximately $60 million annually. Compare this to the $10 million spent on textbooks for schools already struggling with stretched resources.

3) The government does not provide additional resources to schools whose rankings are low thereby making the process futile, and hindering real efforts to improve student progress.

Teachers are not alone in their thinking. UBC Dean of Education Rob Tierney, and SFU Dean of Education Paul Shaker, have spoken out on the futility, unfairness, and harm of standardized testing such as the FSAs.

Shaker says, "It's unprecedented that you can see such a simplistic kind of ranking used to such an extent."

Teachers believe in authentic assessment. They believe:

a) a wide variety of assessment tools such as quizzes, homework, tests, reports, and oral presentations are examples of real and authentic assessment that truly measure student progress.

b) reporting to parents formally through report cards, and informally through meetings and conversations, is the best way to report on student progress.

 c) in a fully funded quality public education where every student can fulfill their individual promise and aspirations.

Finally, consider this. Countries who properly fund public education, and who do not focus on standardized testing, traditionally rank in the top 10 internationally. Finland and Sweden are examples of two of the top-ranking countries according to the Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA) tests. Compare this to countries who use standardized tests as a way of measuring student progress.

The United States stresses standardized testing and punishes poorer performing schools by taking away funding. It traditionally ranks around 35th in the world.

Teachers ask: why would our provincial government follow the United States model, which is failing its public education system and thereby its students, rather than a successful model like Finland's?

Current Comment:

Are our governments selling us out?

Dawn Johnson editor@thenewsleader.ca

How much do you know about our federal government's involvement in the Security and Prosperity Partnership (SPP) of North America? If you are like most Canadians, you know very little, because all of the discussions, and maybe plans, are done behind closed doors with no media cover-

At the end of March, the Council of Canadians held a teach-in in Ottawa to alert people to what is going on. Believe it or not, their main source of information came from the U.S.

What is SPP? It is a plan begun in Mexico in 2005 during a meeting of leaders of the three North American nations. SPP is about a continental resource pact (all of us share our resources), a North American security perimeter (Fortress America) and harmonized military and security policies. The interesting thing about these discussions is that the decision-makers are corporate leaders and high echelon bureaucrats and politicians. The rest of us are out in the cold. Media is not invited to cover the discussions. We know next to nothing about the plans for the future of our nation, and we would know less if it were not for the Council of Canadians, a nonpartisan watchdog group supported by average citizens like you and

This whole thing started with the attack on the World Trade Towers in 2001. Two months later, Canada signed a "smart border" agreement with the U.S. Six months after the Trade Tower attack, Canada agreed to a "deeper integration" with the U.S. and full participation on the so-called war on terrorism. This new agreement made it possible, one year after 9/11, for Canadian citizen Maher Arar to be detained at Kennedy Airport by the Americans, then deported to Syria. Six months after Arar was shipped off to Syria to be tortured for a year, the CCCE (an organization of corporate CEO's) called on the governments of Canada, Mexico and the U.S. to integrate their economies in a deal that would include a resource security pact (whatever that is) which would cover agriculture, minerals and energy. In addition, the CEO's called for the sharing of defence and security and "a new institutional framework" for North American integration. This was

In 2004, the U.S. Council on Foreign Relations announced a task force made up of people from the three nations. It is called the Independent Task Force on the Future of North America. Ever heard of it? A year later, this task force released a report calling for a North American economic and security community in 2010, a security plan involving Canadians, Mexicans and Americans, a continental energy and natural resources strategy, and an annual meeting to discuss economic and security integration. I have not seen this report. Have you?

In 2005, in Waco, Texas, George W. Bush, Paul Martin and Vincente Fox (Mexico's President) met and issued a joint statement to tell us they had created the Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America. The agreement contained most of the recommendations of the Independent Task Force. Later that year, business and government representatives of the three nations met in Sonoma, California, in Canada's Liberal Party had taken part in all of this planning, and they lost the election held in January 2006. Conservative Prime Minister Harper stepped into the discussions with his promise to make Canada-U.S. relations his government's top priority. He went to Cancun to meet with presidents from the U.S. and Mexico two months after he was elected. By August, a group called the North American Competitiveness Council (NACC) met in Washington, D.C. to allocate tasks for regulatory convergence, border facilitation and energy integration.

Last fall, the North American Forum met in Banff, Alberta, to discuss demographic and social dimensions of North American integration, security cooperation and a North American energy strategy. The meeting was secret, and involved high-ranking military officials, politicians and top bureaucrats. Stockwell Day was a speaker, but refused to reveal his speech to the media.

In February this year, SPP ministers, again including Stockwell Day, met with the Competitiveness Council to discuss the progress of the North American integration agenda. In June this year, our Prime Minister will meet with the American and Mexican presidents in Kananaskis, Alberta, at the third summit of the SPP.

If you feel uneasy about all of these activities behind closed doors, then trust your gut feelings. We know that if these politicians thought we would like what they're doing, they would be broadcasting every move they made. Instead, it is all hush-hush, and the silence is a red flag warning us we are not going to like what's going on.

In Canada, the Council of Canadians is the only group warning us about these secret meetings and what the meetings are about. In the U.S., watchdog groups the Minutemen and Judicial Watch have strongly opposed the SPP. The Minutemen don't want Mexican immigrants and Canadian socialists from contaminating American values. Judicial Watch does not want Canada's policy on gays and abortions to influence Americans, and they are opposed to immigration. The Council of Canadians has a completely different approach, one geared to protecting our social policies and our sense of fair play.

What I find particularly alarming in addition to the secrecy of the discussions is the fact that both the Liberals and the Conservatives have had a hand it all of it, and the New Democrats have been remarkably silent, too. I am especially surprised that the Bloc Quebecois has been so silent about these discussions. Who is going to protect Quebec's heritage in an "integrated" North America.

What will integration mean? In my opinion, considering the heavyweight nation with whom we share this continent, I suspect integration will mean dancing to Yankee Doodle. Will there be a Canada after integration? Will there be Medicare, Old Age Pensions and Canada Pensions? Will unions continue to protect workers (under NAFTA's influence, Mexico outlawed strikes and union activists went to prison). Will the big corporations get bigger at the expense of small business? Will Fortress America mean everybody the U.S. doesn't like must become our enemy too?

Will our idea of democracy survive?

Was this really needed after 9/11, or was 9/11 an excuse for this new agenda? Is this Manifest Destiny all over again?

There's A Fire In The Hole

Maybe you have seen the latest commercial on TV where there are three people eating a new spicy hamburger. They talk to each other but do so as they inhale. They do not want to exhale because the burger is so hot that it will cause flames to exit their mouths. Of course one does exhale and flames do come out and then the others follow and the scene is quite Well all through my teens and into my early twenties my vocabulary was similar to a hot spicy burger. I am sure that I could have started fires with my profanity. It was amazing the adjectives I used to describe things and how I changed innocent nouns into flammable verbs. I would assure myself that it was quite alright to talk this way because it was the language of my culture. I talked with guys, guys who worked in the bush, guys who drank at the bar and guys who had heard this language growing up in our small town. I used it, but I wanted to

I tried to stop swearing, actually after I was married, both my wife and I, (I'll call her Elaine, because that is her name) both tried to stop swearing. Of course she, being a woman, did not at that time have the same ability to swear as I did, but I was becoming a good mentor to her. She could start a small campfire with her language where I could set a forest ablaze with a few choice words. Life changed when I became a Christian at age 24, mind you not everything changed, I still drank for the next year or so and my attitude was still in serious need of radical surgery, but instantly the fire went out of the hole between my chin and my nose. I

I remember within that year I sold my welding business and went to work for TriVally Construction in Princeton. I had grown up in Princeton and was well known to almost everyone, so when I went to work for Tom, Willy and Les, they knew about my arson-like language and also knew that I had changed and was now filling a seat in the my local church and not in the bar at the local hotel. For most people in town it was a huge difference. One day I was at work and Willy Wilkinson was showing me what needed to be done on a skid-I crawled under the machine and Willy was telling me what I needed to repair when I lifted my head and banged it on the bull hook attached to the belly pan of

I still remember looking at Willy as my eyes began to tear up and thoughts raced through my head reminding me how much this really hurt. As I looked at Willy, I could see in his face that he was expecting me to describe this latest experience in extreme pain with a language that could start a fire. I could have set the world aflame with the intensity of the pain bouncing through my cranium. Instead I looked at my boss and through eyes that resembled a drop from a water bomber on a forest fire, I asked, Is there anything else you would like me to fix? Things change in your life when you let Christ become Lord and Master, the Bible says, If anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation, old things have passed away, behold all things become new. (2 Corinthians 2:17) I wish I could tell you that I have never swom again, that was some 30 years ago, but I must admit I have seen a spark or two in that time.

reported by a recent CBC television program.

The results of FSA tests do not assess the learning ability of students living in poverty. They simply sort out the most vulnerable students who will more likely be judged as failures based on the test results.

The BC School Trustees Association states on their website that public education is the great equalizer. It is the means by which people of diverse languages, cultures, and socio-economic circumstances come together as a society. In Canada, our commitment to public education open and available to all is a key element in shaping the way our society has evolved and will continue to

This is contrary to what is happening in BC schools with the accountability scheme and FSAs. Our students living in poverty are at a definite disadvantage and the education system is not a great equalizer for them.

By withdrawing their students from the Foundation Skills Assessments, parents can stop the accountability scheme, so all students can get back to learning and teachers can get back to teaching.

Making students accountable for test scores works well on a bumper sticker and it allow many politicians to look good by saying they will not tolerate failure. But it represents a hollow promise. Far from improving education, high stakes testing marks a major retreat from fairness, from accuracy, from quality, and from equity. - Senator Paul Wellstore-(1944-2002).

Hardy shares more on 'chem trails'

To The Editor;

It is amazing to learn that by use of the chem trails which I have been writing about that the lives of humans worldwide have been test subjects.

In the last week I have witnessed the spraying of the powdered chemicals over the Princeton area on a daily basis.

When the sun is setting there is a spectacular florescent hue visible in the clouded areas from those chemicals that are admittedly part of the ground cover for our so-called protection.

It is hard to believe that the medical profession is not aware of the cause of so many serious illnesses and deaths of those whose immune systems have been compromised. A few years ago the majority of the herd of about 240 Big White Horned Sheep in the South Okanagan were found dead. An autopsy revealed that they had succumbed to the same bacterial pneumonia that many humans had died from that same winter. Friends in Oliver had observed the daily thick and constant aerosol spraying above them with many tanker planes involved in the attack of germ warfare.

The laboratory created RNA, aluminum oxide, ethylene bromide, barium salts, polymer fibres, etc. hold a plethora of risk for humans as well as all animals, birds, fish, insects, etc. There are less bees now to pollinate the agricultural needs for our very own food supply. The classified technology of giant corporations like Monsanto is obtained in conjunction with the attempt to lock down food and water. The electro-sensitivity of the soil itself will eventually only allow genetically modified crops to grow.

Ionization of these sprayed particles also causes many forms of radiation to rain down upon the unsuspecting populace of the world as well as lensing programs to dehydrate land and dry up water supplies. The big lie of the New World Order is that a shield is needed because the atmosphere has been depleted.

So we find that the High Frequency Active Auroral Towers Project which has opened up the ozone layer the size of our continent is involved with creating that need within all life on the surface of the planet by spraying conductive materials which inevitably ends up in the soil, water, food and the air we breath.

So much for Harper's Clean Air

The chemical porridge being dumped on us causes neurological imbalances as well as heart and lung problems which critics claim allows our DNA to be infiltrated and re-arranged by acting like a vaccination program upon the entire global population. There will never be enough educated doctors to treat the people with these increased cases of flu-like symptoms because antibiotics won't help but will in fact weaken ones own immune system.

On top of the realization that the main goal of the NWO is control of food and water through weather modification, a TV news item warns us about an excessive number of storms that will be hitting the East Coast this summer according to the Atmospheric (HAARP)

Groups.

The invisible Money Masters also brag about the great inroads that have been made concerning electronic coercion through thought entrainment and other electronic stimulus that preceded the spraying of conductive materials with the widespread use of cell phones. It is the contention of researchers that cell phones are just a cover for the deployment of broadcast towers which is a necessary adjunct to mind control and automated law enforcement.

These are the means planned to control the masses.

Will the Save Our Similkameen Organization be instrumental in stopping the weapons of mass destruction and jet fuels from permeating our atmosphere by U.N. and U.S. planes flying over our sovereign air space bombarding us since 1995?

Will the masses in our South Okanagan and Similkameen area join forces with others to protest the illegal use of chemical warfare that causes us to become electrosensitive creatures for the unsolicited testing for control by the NWO or death by starvation?

FSA testing can be harmful to students!

BC students in Grades 4 and 7 are scheduled to take the Foundation Skills Assessment tests between May 7 and 18, 2007.

Large-scale tests have many negative effects on teaching and learning. These include:

- · Class time lost to practising tests
- · Taking time away from quality teaching and learning
- Spending money that could go toward textbooks and other resources
- Increased stress and anxiety among students

Teachers are so concerned that we are advising parents to withdraw their children from the tests. All it takes is a written request to the school principal.

Dear Principal,

I am concerned that this test will have negative effects on my child's learning, motivation, and self-esteem.

I understand that the ministry provides instructions to principals on how to exempt students from the FSA tests if they receive a letter from parents requesting that their child be exempted.
