Fall Fair welcomes new displays

There will be two new booths at the Fall Fair this year. One will tell us how nice we are, and the other will tell us how to keep our food supply close to home.

New Beginnings will have a "community appreciation" booth. They plan to give fairgoers little gifts and make people feel good about living in our community.

The Food Security Program will be quite different.

The coordinator for our region plans to do a survey of local people asking their input on how much local produce they buy. The purpose of this survey is to establish a group interested in exploring ways to make local foods more accessible in our town.

Lawnmower races will be a feature at the Fall Fair this year. The races will be on Sunday only (September 9) but should prove to be a great source of entertainment. Many people have seen the lawnmower racers in Keremeos and enjoyed them. This is the first time professional lawnmower races have taken place in Princeton.

Town invites input on new OCP

The Town of Princeton is excited to announce the kick-off for the preparation of the Town's new Official Community Plan (OCP).

The existing Official Community Plan was adopted in 1993 and is out of date. Given the differing circumstances of today, a complete reworking of the plan is necessary.

The new plan will be supportive of Council's overarching goal of 'Stepping Up...Taking Princeton to New Heights.' As stated by Mayor Randy McLean, "Princeton has changed in the past 14 years and we are looking at an exciting future ahead. Given the importance of having the public participate in the review of the OCP, we will be adopting a Public Engagement Strategy. Residents need to take ownership of the OCP and participate in the process. The timing of the OCP update marks the first stepping-stone in achieving our vision and goals in the new Strategic Plan that was unveiled this spring."

An Official Community Plan outlines ways in which land within the community will be used over the next 10 to 15 years. It provides direction to Council and the public to evaluate development and ensure proposals are consistent with the community's vision for the future of Princeton. The Official Community Plan contains policies that guide:

- Form and character of future growth;
- Locations and densities of different types of land uses;
- Infrastructure (e. g. roads, water, sewer) and community services;
- Enhancement and/or protection of the environment, hazard areas, and special or unique areas within the community such as the downtown;
- Development of social housing;
- Economic development;
- Procedures and guidelines for handling new development.

Before Council starts to prepare the new plan, they want to hear from the public. The first public workshop and information meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 19th at 6:30 PM at the Princeton and District Community Skills Centre at 206 Vermilion Avenue.

This will provide the opportunity for Princeton residents to share their thoughts and ideas. Everyone is invited to attend.

Similco landslide creates downstream concern

by Similkameen News Leader Owner/Publisher W. George Elliott with thanks to Becki Andrist KOMW Radio, Omak and Dennis Walker, Giant-FM Penticton

The Okanogan County Sheriff's Department says the landslide that blocked the Similkameen River at the former Similco Mines site was first noted at 11:00 PM on Wednesday, August 1st.

An unidentified camper along the river had reported the level of the river had dropped sharply near Princeton "consistent with a landslide blockage."

Local residents noticed the low river the following morning and alerted a variety of agencies about their concern and that "the flows then spiked back up at 9:00 AM."

Eyewitnesses told the News Leader that suddenly the river climbed between three and four feet in height and the water had changed from a crystal clear colour to what was described as either 'chocolate milk' or 'coffee with cream' brown.

As the morning passed and the river level stabilized there were stories that there had been a breach or collapse of a dam wall at the massive tailings pond named Smelter Lake, about 15 kilometres upstream from Princeton on property formerly owned and mined by Similco Mines.

The Okanogan County Sheriff's Department says a helicopter reconnaissance flight from Penticton at 12:30 PM was scheduled by officials on the Canadian side of the border and an hour later had located and photographed the slide site.

"Their report stated their priorities were to monitor river levels downstream and assess the stability of the slope above the slide site."

By mid-afternoon the Washington State Emergency Operations Centre (EOC) contacted Okanogan Emergency Management Department and based on the information they had at the time "it was felt that the only danger was muddy water."

Within the hour the Oroville Irrigation District contacted OEMD with concerns of "a surge of water coming down the Similkameen" as there were 12 to 24 miners in the river.

"This information made the situation significantly more serious, threatening the safety of people who would be directly in harms way," stated the Sheriff's Department.

OEMD investigated further and following contact with an unidentified Canadian agency discovered there had actually been a landslide at the former Similco Mines site and that the river had been blocked for nine hours, then the blockage was breached allowing a surge of water to be released.

Water flow data released at the time indicated normal flow was measured at 300 cubic feet per sec ..... continued on page 9

Group entertains residents

We were pleased to have eight New Beginnings members and their two leaders come to entertain us one afternoon.

They sang seven different tunes then played bell chimes to each tune. Their leaders Gloria and Cindy did so well that the members of New Beginnings stayed focussed at all times.

Their smiling faces revealed their happiness in entertaining us. Of course cookies and juices following their program was much enjoyed by all.

Survival Of The Fittest was used for the Vermilion Court residents to make words from and just imagine in a short time 226 words were found.

There's only two months left before our October Bazaar! So we've started preparing things for sale.

Long time Princeton Rotary Club member Bill Huyssoon passed away last week. He joined the local club in May of 1971 and rarely missed a meeting. His funeral was held August 6th in the Legion Hall and was attended by many out of town Rotarians who knew him. Huyssoon's role in the Club in the past few years was to end regular meetings with a joke. The Princeton Club honoured Bill at their August 7th meeting by telling jokes. This photo, taken a few years ago, shows Huyssoon with Rotary Club Exchange Student Cyrielle Bon.

Harvest levels extended

The allowable annual cut increase for five companies with innovative forestry practices agreements in the Merritt timber supply area will be maintained at 830,700 cubic metres until August 31, 2011, in part to address mountain pine beetle infestation and reduce potential losses in healthy timber stands.

The Southern Interior Forest Regional Manager determined that the cut increase awarded to the agreement holders of the Nicola-Similkameen Innovative Forestry Society in July 2005 be extended after reviewing the Society's application, timber supply and beetle infestation analysis, and considering public and First Nations input. The decision follows the extension of the innovative forestry practices agreements from March 25, 2008 to August 31, 2011.

The society is composed of representatives of the licensees with innovative forestry practices agreements: Aspen Planers Ltd., Ardeu Wood Products Ltd., Stuwix Resources Ltd., Tolko Industries Ltd., and Weyerhaeuser Canada Ltd., as well as BC Timber Sales, the Upper Nicola Indian Band and the Nicola Tribal Association.

Stuwix Resources Ltd. is a First Nations-owned company managed by representatives of eight bands in the Merritt timber supply area. The agreement area comprises approximately 1.13 million hectares. Under these agreements, licensees conduct activities above their basic obligations of forest management with a view to improving timber productivity.

The current allowable annual cut increase was set in July 2005 as a result of the Society's forest health strategy to reduce the loss of merchantable timber killed by the mountain pine beetle. Previously, the society had demonstrated greater productivity in the timber supply area through the collection of information on forest inventory, site productivity, and environmental issues.

Under the Forest Act, the regional manager can award an increase to the allowable annual cut of an innovative forestry practices agreement holder. Licence holders must comply with conditions of the increase, the agreement, the Forest Act, the Forest and Range Practices Act and other relevant legislation.

Copies of the regional manager's rationale are available on the ministry's website at: www.for.gov.bc.ca/rsi/IFPA/IFPA.htm.

See page 8 of this issue of the Similkameen News Leader for a story on how beetle killed timber can be used in creating energy.

Foundation imagines the best

The South Okanagan Similkameen is embarking on a new campaign for a Full Field Digital Stereotactic Mammography machine for the Penticton Regional Hospital.

The campaign is called: Imagine the Best...In Breast Cancer Detection.

The reason for new mammography equipment is simple. The current film machine is eight years old and out of date with the newest technology. Since we know that early diagnosis is the key to survival, less aggressive treatment and ultimately cures, the citizens that come to the Penticton Regional Hospital for their mammograms deserve the very BEST.

Globally, mammography has reduced the mortality rate by 20% in the last decade. However, Breast Cancer is still the leading cause of death in woman 40-55 years of age. The good news is that mammography detects approximately 90% of tumors in women over 60; the bad news is; mammography only detects 60% of tumors in women under the age of 60.

Although, only 53% of the woman in our region even had a mammo-gram this past year we still completed 4,500 screening mammograms and another 2,600 mammograms for diagnostic purposes. No doubt about it, we are a very busy centre for Breast Cancer detection.

The Penticton Regional Hospital and the community wants to have the BEST Mammography equipment available.

We want to purchase a Full Field Digital Stereotactic Mammography machine. The machine cost is $1 million.

Over and above extra costs: None with no extra staffing costs, no extra operating costs, no extra training costs and minor renovation costs.

What makes this machine the BEST...

The Patient advantages

- Reduced waiting time before diagnosis

- Exam time and radiation dose slightly reduced for patient

- May avoid an invasive surgical procedure and unnecessary hospitalization

- Reduces the period of immobilization

- Ability to screen more women in less time; reducing wait lists

- Images available within 10 seconds

- Fewer repeat exposures required

- Digital mammography may detect more breast tumors in women with dense breasts

The Clinical advantages

- Faster, more reliable diagnosis when an abnormality is detected

- Enable patient management by a single team throughout the procedure

- May avoid repeat examinations

- No lost films, or film handling costs, no film to mail or ship

- Fewer diagnostic studies because of viewing tools

- Highly automated exam for consistency of image quality

- Ability to see all areas of the breast easily - at once!

- Digital mammography may detect more breast tumors in women with dense breasts

The South Okanagan Similkameen Medical Foundation believes that Patients within this region deserve excellence in breast imaging. We will do everything in our power to make sure this equipment is available and operational as quickly as possible.

With the support of the community, the South Okanagan Similkameen Medical Foundation will raise the entire $1 million by December 31, 2007.

Vehicle leaves roadway, injures two

Princeton RCMP responded to a single vehicle accident July 29th 22-kilometres east of Princeton on Old Hedley Road.

A resident from the area, Donna Howard, told the News Leader, "The driver lost control and flew off the road and between two trees, turned upside down and lodged on the ground below."

RCMP say two occupants in the vehicle were pulled from the wreckage by members of Princeton Highway Extraction Society and transported to Princeton General Hospital with serious but non-life threatening injuries.

"There was no evidence of alcohol involvement but speed was a factor in the accident," says Princeton RCMP Sgt. Gary Macahonic.

Howard says two witnesses who had heard the accident rushed to the scene and had aided in the rescue of the two occupants "by digging the ground with bare hands."

Macahonic says drivers have got to slow down.

"The Princeton RCMP have attended numerous speed related accidents this summer."

Police say there are many motorists travelling the highways during this busy summer season.

"Travellers need to allow additional travel time to arrive safely at the destination," states Sgt. Macahonic.

"Don't take chances and take speed out of the equation."

Naturopathic allergy therapies are nothing to sneeze at

By Eric Marsden, BSc, ND

(NC)—One of the more common ailments this time of year is allergies. Just as people are adjusting to the plants of early summer, August brings changes in vegetation that cause a new wave of itchy, watery eyes, runny noses and head-rattling sneezes.

Many patients – and many medical professionals – focus their treatments on relieving the symptoms without tackling their underlying causes. Naturopathic therapies, however, address both and can help reduce the suffering of allergy sufferers in any season.

Nine times out of 10, allergies have their genesis in the intestinal tract. Together, the gut and our airways comprise between 60 and 80 percent of our body's immune system. That's why naturopathic therapies for allergies – and immune irregularities – begin by bolstering the health of the intestinal tract.

We know that when there is inflammatory or allergic-type reactivity in the intestinal tract most often there also is an immune reaction that can sensitize other mucous membranes and trigger allergic reactions elsewhere in the body. Accordingly, one of the naturopathic therapies for people with allergies is to reduce the consumption of foods which might be triggering allergic reactions.

Allergy sufferers can use a food diary combined with an elimination diet to determine which foods are causing their symptoms. Among the foods that most commonly contribute to allergies are dairy, onions, garlic, soy, gluten containing grains – such as barley, rye, oat, wheat, spelt and kamut, citrus fruits – especially oranges and grapefruit – melons and kiwis. Not every person will be allergic to all these foods; some are sensitive to none.

Start your elimination diet by cutting suspect foods from your diet. Begin to reintroduce them one by one after two to three weeks. Record in your food diary whether your symptoms are relieved as you drop these foods from your diet and which cause a reaction when reintroduced.

In addition to determining which foods you might be sensitive to, there are other easy methods to reduce the symptoms of many allergies. In your home you may find relief in washing your sheets frequently in hot water, replacing your air filters frequently, vacuuming carpets often or removing them entirely and investing in a good air cleaner. You can take similar actions in your office.

Between eight and nine out of 10 of my patients have seen a 90% reduction in allergic reactions – and some have entirely eliminated the risk of anaphylactic reactions – by making changes to their diets, repairing the mucous membranes in their bowels, and by using an allergic desensitizing therapy.

Homeopathics and botanicals can help reduce the inflammation in mucous membranes and rebuild them. There are literally thousands of such substances that have been shown to help, but probably the most commonly known are probiotics or good bacteria.

There are a large number of products on grocery and pharmacy shelves that promise to help reduce bad bacteria and promote the production of probiotics; generally, however, there are not enough organisms in these products to provide any real benefit. You need between four and eight billion organisms if you are to receive any real benefit from the products.

Microorganisms are terrain dependent. Therefore, if you change your diet and heal your mucous membranes using natural botanicals – such as licorice root, slippery elm and marshmallow root – you won't need to take probiotics in massive doses over an extended period. Rather, you can use them as a temporary measure... to kick-start the healing process.

In addition, you can desensitize yourself to allergic reactions using homeopathic medicines. A number of controlled studies have proven that homeopathic medicines containing a combination of gelsemium, acidum, fornicum and aluminum are at least as effective as commercial antihistamines at reducing allergy symptoms, especially seasonal allergies, but without the side effects associated with commercial antihistamines, such as drowsiness. Remedies containing this blend of substances can be found in many naturopathic pharmacies and health food stores. For best results using these types of remedies it is always advisable you seek the advice of a naturopathic doctor.

And, as with many other disorders, which often are the body's reaction to its environment, reducing your stress levels can help to reduce your allergic symptoms. Attending to the nervous system also can help to reduce allergic reactions. The study of how one's mental state interacts with the nervous and immune systems is known as psychoneuroimmunology. Researchers have observed that as people become more stressed and the nervous system becomes more irritated, histamines are released. There are any number of homeopathic and botanical remedies that can help you to reduce stress and, as a consequence, reduce the severity and period of allergic symptoms.

Finally, working to make our environment – air, land and water – cleaner would benefit not only allergy and asthma sufferers but the rest of us, as well.

Eric Marsden, BSc, ND, is a Naturopathic Doctor practicing in Richmond Hill, Ontario, and Medical Director for Pascoe Canada. He can be reached at the-doc@pascoecanada.com.

Do you know about chromium obesity?

The problem of obesity has been approached from many directions, but researchers dealing with diabetes problems have taken a long look at the mineral called chromium.

Most of us think of chrome automobile accessories or chrome chairs and tables, but chromium inside you is more important than what is on your car.

North Americans eat a lot of processed foods, and food processing destroys most of the chromium. Chromium deficiency has been linked not only to diabetes, but to high blood pressure, high cholesterol, and obesity. Chromium affects the way our bodies use insulin. Chromium supports the process in which glucose tolerance creates conditions which allow glucose to be burned as energy. When the glucose becomes energy, the result is often a reduction of hunger pangs. This is why chromium helps people stick to a weight loss diet.

Diabetics have reduced tolerance for glucose because they do not produce appropriate amounts of insulin. Chromium permits insulin to be used efficiently. This is beneficial for people who have hypoglycemia, glucose intolerance and diabetes. Chromium appears to regulate the use of insulin and can reduce blood glucose levels even if the person has been eating sugary foods.

The minimum daily intake of chromium should be 200 mcg. People with a deficiency may want to gradually increase chromium intake to 1,000 mcg daily. People who have blood glucose problems should be monitored by a physician while supplementing with chromium.

As for dieters, don't expect to lose weight just because you start taking chromium. Although chromium will help prevent cravings for sugar and starches, chromium on its own will not cause weight loss. You still have to diet.

Good chromium foods

You are probably sick of hearing how good broccoli is for this, that and the other, but the fact is, broccoli is a good source of chromium. Onions are a better source. Turkey is a good source, too. So are most meats, seafood, and cheese.

LET'S TALK!

AT YOUR SERVICE!*Should I borrow to make my RRSP Contribution?

Interest on money borrowed to make your RRSP contribution is not deductible for tax purposes. Therefore, whenever possible, you should use cash to make your RRSP contribution and borrow to make other investments where the interest paid will be deductible.

In some cases, however, it can make sense to borrow to contribute to your RRSP. Remember that the income earned on an RRSP investment accumulates on a tax deferred basis.

If you can pay off your loan quickly, particularly if you are getting a tax refund, the non-deductible interest expense can be minimized.

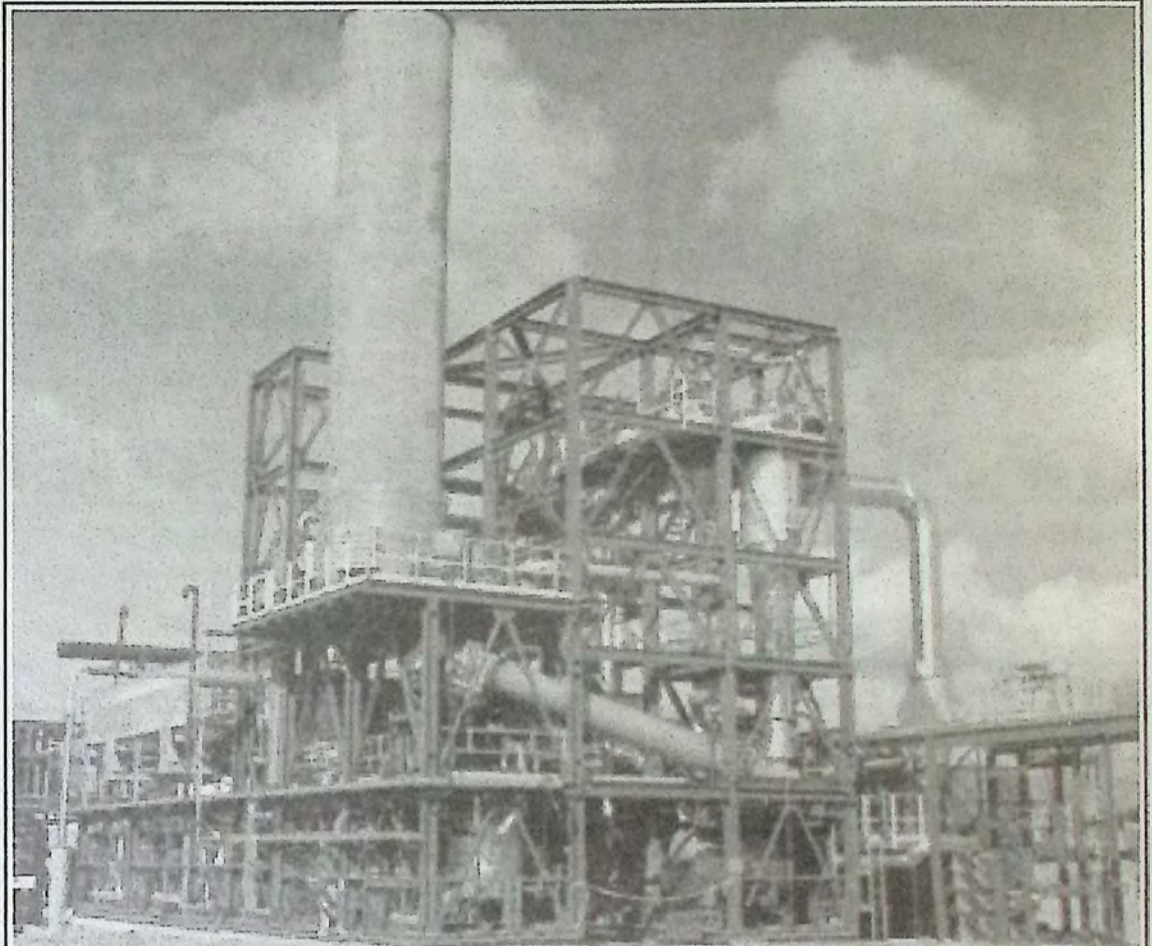

For example, let's assume that you want to make a $10,000 RRSP contribution for 2006 by the deadline of March 1, 2007. Assuming a top marginal rate of 45% and that you will be otherwise receiving a refund, this will generate a tax refund of about $4,500 for you. If you borrow the $10,000 to make the contribution, you will be able to pay back 45% of the loan as soon as you get your refund.

THESE TIPS AND INFORMATION ARE INTENDED TO HIGHLIGHT GENERAL TAX RULES AND PLANS AND SHOULD NOT BE USED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR APPROPRIATE PROFESSIONAL ADVICE RELATED TO YOUR SPECIFIC CIRCUMSTANCES.

Guelph Ontario is home to the world's largest bio-oil plant – a 200 tonne per day operation – owned by Dynamotive Energy. Photo credit: Dynamotive Energy Systems.

Could pine beetle infestation be leveraged into making bioenergy?

Every year British Columbia could recover enough pine-beetle waste wood to generate 670 MW of power in small communities and provide 2.7 TWh of heat for local industry, or alternatively, build 175 world class bio-oil plants to make renewable fuel to replace fossil fuel in pulp mill lime kilns, according to a study by Douglas Bradley, President of the Canadian Bioenergy Association.

"With a few properly placed incentives and effective use of the world's best forest waste equipment, British Columbia's forestry communities could use the glut of forest waste to shift to a lucrative bio-based economy producing renewable energy, products and chemicals from wood," he announced last week.

BC's Ministry of Forests reports 9.2 million hectares of forests were killed in 2006 by the mountain pine beetle. Experts say the beetles will kill 80 per cent of merchantable pine by the end of their run, which could last another ten years. To create economic value from a resource that would burn or rot otherwise the BC government wisely increased the annual allowable cut, but the high rate of damaged wood has resulted in much higher than normal forest waste left at the roadside.

"Canada has to 'make it work' to get economic value from this resource," said Bradley.

"The province has huge potential to develop on site heat and power, or to develop 'transportable' woody biomass products such as condensed wood pellets or higher end fuels like bio-oil from fast pyrolysis, either for domestic use or for sale into the lucrative European market."

That's why CANBIO is organizing "Realizing the Bioenergy Opportunity," a three-day international conference to be held in Toronto from September 12th to 14th. The event is intended to boost Canada's bioenergy industry by bringing together European experts and investors, Canadian municipalities and the forestry sector to network, explore partnerships and create business opportunities.

Conference delegates will hear from Canadian and European experts on economical recovery of waste wood, bioenergy opportunities arising from the pine beetle infestation, and how to produce high-value energy and renewable products in a sustainable manner.

A quarter of all Finland's energy comes from bioenergy – the highest of any industrialized country in the world. The Finnish Wood Energy Network (WENET) will present the latest technologies and success stories from Scandinavia. Delegates can also meet one-to-one with WENET experts for specific advice.

"Europe can help BC find export opportunities or advise on how to integrate bioenergy into its domestic economy and the conference will be an excellent platform to make this happen," said CANBIO Director Melissa Felder.

European demand for bioenergy is rapidly increasing, thanks to its recent pledge to boost renewable energy use to 20 per cent by 2020, said Felder.

"But Western Europe has limited land area to produce renewable forests or agricultural crops, so interest in Canadian woody biomass is high."

Southern Ontario is already home to the world's largest bio-oil plant, a 100 tonne per day facility now being expanded to 130 tpd at West Lorne, owned and operated by Dynamotive Energy Systems. A second larger plant at Guelph, which started up in May, will manufacture 200 tonnes of bio-oil per day. Delegates will get a rare chance to visit the plant on a study tour.

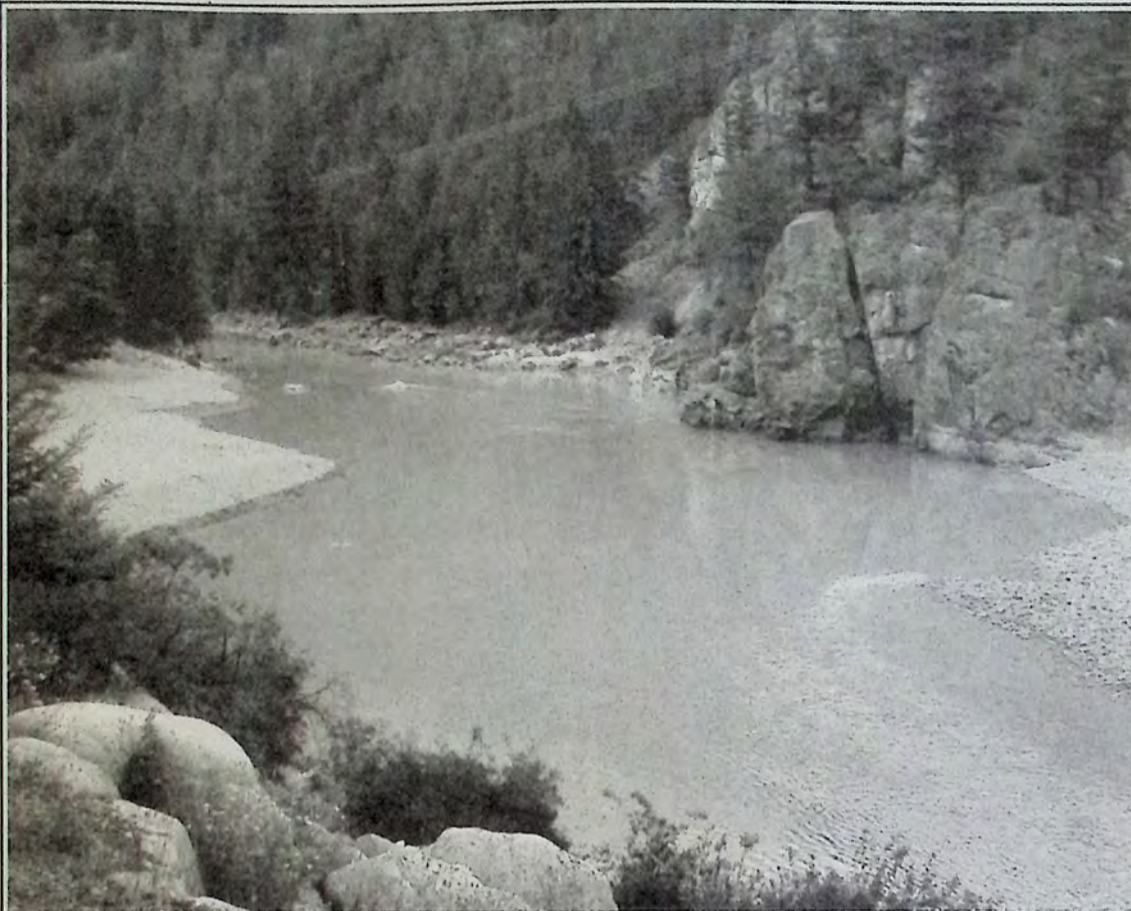

The Conference program and online registration are available on the CANBIO website: www.canbio.ca.

This pile of forest waste – or slash – is part of the 11 million tonnes left or burned off in Canada's forests every year, but it could provide a renewable energy resource.

The Similkameen River at Bromley Rock on the evening of August 2nd. The water was a brown colour that resembled chocolate milk or a cup of coffee with cream. *

 ond (cfs), with it dropping down to 60 cfs when the river was blocked and with a peak flow after breaching the blockage measuring 1,350 cfs.

OEMD was told, "The site of the blockage was a tailings disposal dump site, and there were possibly lots of tailings in the muddy water headed downstream."

The Emergency Management Department was then unable to obtain further information from 'the Canadians' regarding the volume or size of the surge and when it would cross the border into the United States.

Based on that, the Sheriff and Chief Deputy dispatched deputies to the scene of the river to begin immediate evacuation of any miners in the Similkameen between Nighthawk and Oroville.

As the miners are required to be at least 60 metres apart, it meant a search of the entire length of that stretch of the river.

By 3:00 PM Oroville Police Department became the incident staging command centre and an evacuation of anyone in the river between Nighthawk and Oroville was implemented.

"No persons living along the river were asked to leave or evacuated," says the Sheriff's Department.

"This action was taken as a precaution due to not knowing the degree of the surge, if any."

The evacuation was made possible with cooperation from Okanogan Sheriff deputies, Oroville Police, Tonasket Police and US Border Patrol.

Based on a lack of information OEMD contacted the National Weather Service in Spokane who in turn contacted the River Forecast Centre in Portland, Oregon to determine the size of the surge and estimated time of arrival at the US Border.

"The NWS was extremely helpful, and stated at the most, the surge would probably be only about a foot, and possibly not at all due to the attenuation of the flow along the river from Princeton."

The Oroville Fish Hatchery was advised to close their inputs from the Similkameen River "in case the materials coming down the river were contaminated."

It wasn't until late in the afternoon that the Regional District Okanagan-Similkameen released information on what they had identified as a landslide.

"Staff from the RDOS, the Town of Princeton and Ministry of Environment responded to reports of the water level in the Similkameen River dropping rapidly to ensure there was no public safety threat," says RDOS Board Chair Dan Ashton.

"It was discovered that a landslide had occurred in an isolated area approximately 14-kilometres south of Princeton."

Ashton says the river dropped when the slide held back the regular water flow then eventually released it sending a higher volume of water downstream along with muddy water.

The RDOS advised at the time that while the Similkameen River remained muddy from the debris they recommended, "residents and recreational users along the river to take precautions if in the water."

At 5:30 PM OEMD were contacted by 'Canadian officials' that the surge was at Wolfe Creek, about 15 kilometres East of Princeton and that at "the present rate, muddy water only would arrive at the US border" based on a helicopter survey.

"Canadian personnel did not have any solid information on possible hazardous content of the flow, but stated they did not think there was any danger," says the Sheriff's

Based on this information OEMD determined there was no immediate danger and a surge of water that would threaten life or property would not be coming.

"The only remaining threat was the possible hazardous nature of the materials in the flow coming from the landslide," they said.

"The Canadians were asked for any report on water quality, but did not provide any information."

Within the hour the Oroville incident command structure and incident command post were demobilized.

By that evening, the silt cloud had travelled as far as a kilometre short of the Sterling Creek Bridge, about 25 kilometres East of Princeton.

Okanogan County Sheriff Frank Rogers indicated that officials from the Department of Ecology arrived in Oroville during the evening and were going to stay in the area to "monitor water quality to make sure there are not toxic materials in the water."

The following morning, August 3rd, the river had just about cleared up completely in the Princeton area.

"They're estimating 5 kilometres per hour as far as the float time," Dennis Walker of Giant-FM said that morning.

"That's what some locals have told me today."

Alan Thom, interviewed by Walker agreed on air at the estimated speed and speculated on the arrival in Keremeos.

"It's about 70K from here to Princeton - 75K, something like that, and you figure the river winds back and forth so sometime later this morning or early this afternoon."

The cloud made it's way downstream reaching the Red Bridge near Keremeos at 1:00 PM.

By Saturday, August 4th, the water at Bromley Rock had cleared up considerably although it still had a slight cloudy appearance.

The silt cloud spent most of the weekend in the Keremeos area moving slowly downstream.

Local horse trainer wins event

In the world of horse trainers, many will tell you there is no one quite like Princeton's Marion Weisskopff.

Mention of her name to peers, clients and attendees of her many clinics often brings a single word to mind: phenomenal.

Weisskopff recently attended a national event in Chilliwack and provided the following to the News Leader.

This was the Canadian National Andalusian Show and Fiesta, held at the Chilliwack Heritage Park from July 26th to 29th.

We took our purebred Andalusian breeding stallion 'Tribuno' with us and also 'Taseko,' who is a half bred 4-year old son of Tribuno's out of a Thoroughbred mare.

Tribuno and I got first place in 'Doma Vaquera,' that class was created by the Spanish bullfighting cowboys and it's a cross between Reining and High School Dressage.

We also won 'Get of Sire' where the offspring of each stallion is judged. His son Taseko was one of them and there was also a 5-year old daughter of Tribuno's there.

Another class that our stallion won is 'Andalusian Western Pleasure - Open.' Doing this well in these different kind of classes really shows the versatility of our stallion.

It was Taseko's (son of Tribuno) first horse show and he has only had about 2 months of riding experience under his belt. He won a 'Best Movement Class' and also became Reserve Canadian National Champion - English Pleasure Junior horse.

On the Saturday night there was a fiesta gala show with different performers.

My stallion and I did a liberty performance there, where the horse runs free and does all kinds of tricks without a lead rope attached. (The weekend before we performed with the Dancing Andalusian Stallions at a large fundraiser evening at the Summerland Rodeo Grounds and Tribuno and I performed a liberty show there and were the evening favourites).

At the Nationals at the fiesta gala show we were chosen to carry the Canadian flag to the opening ceremonies and the Canadian and American anthem.

My Bio as it was read to the audience during my liberty demo:

Please welcome Marion Weisskopff and her beautiful Andalusian stallion Tribuno.

A little bit of history on Marion: Marion grew up at her parents riding School in West Germany.

Her parents were open minded to different approaches of training horses and different riding styles.

Even though her Mother was a certified English riding instructor, she gave Marion the opportunity to learn from many other instructors in different fields of the Equine world.

By the time the family moved to Canada in 1984, Marion was already an accomplished horse person, having earned the German Bronze and Silver medal for riding and the Bronze medal for team driving.

Here in Canada, Marion never looked back and had a lot of different experiences with horses.

Her first Summer in Canada she got a job as a horse trainer and took the owners young stallion to the shows, winning a Canadian National Championship title.

Later Marion worked at a few ranches as a 'Cowpuncher' and also took a few different types of jobs, most of them including horses. She and her husband Don later ran a horse logging business for a couple of years.

After playing around with the fun stuff, Marion developed a horse training technique that worked well for her.

Having had a background in so many aspects of the horse world, like English Riding, Western Riding, Horse logging, Cow work, packing, guiding in the Chilcotin and presenting demonstration shows of riding horses without the aid of bridle or saddle, she combined a lot of what she had learned from the horses she had the privilege to work with and the people that she learned from, to develop her own technique.

For the past 7 years she went on the road conducting clinics and shares her technique with horse people from all over BC.

She keeps an open mind and keeps learning herself.

CONGRATULATIONS Marion & Tribuno

ON YOUR SUCCESS AT THE CANADIAN NATIONAL ANDALUSIAN SHOW AND FIESTA

FROM GEORGE & BRENDA
Similkameen News Leader

Princeton horse trainer Marion Weisskopff and Tribuno. Photo submitted

 Marion is a CHA Certified level 4 English Riding Instructor, a CHA Certified level 4 Western Riding Instructor and a CHA Certified Level 4 Wilderness Guide Instructor.

Eight years ago she also got her Parelli Level 3 Certification and you can see a natural approach to her horse training, no matter what type of riding or handling.

Marion and Don have a farm near Princeton where Marion trains horses, holds clinics and raises Spanish Andalusian horses.

Marion bought Tribuno in Southern California when he was only a year old from Barbara Curry who is one of the most respected breeders of PRE horses in the world.

Since Marion spends so much time training other people's horses, Tribuno usually gets put on the back burner and he really doesn't have much training on him. He is now 14 years old and probably has no more than 2 years of training on him over his lifetime.

Tribuno is a foundation type or Baroque type of Andalusian and he is very correct in conformation and type. But what really shines in this horse is his gentle and fun personality and sense of humor.

More on the Andalusian

The Andalusian horse is one of the oldest pure breeds of horse in the world. Canadian Andalusians are a rarity. In 2003 there were approximately 350 registered in Canada. Though still a unique breed in the U.S., their population has risen to around 5,400. The total number of Andalusian (Lusitano) horses registered with IALHA in 2003 was 7,289 purebred, 2,898 partbred.

The Andalusian Horse originated on the Iberian Peninsula, in Spain, where 2,500 year old cave paintings portray this noble breed. Up to the 18th century the Andalusian horse was the beloved mount of Royalty and Captains. They were the "Royal Horses of Europe."

During the 18th century, European warfare caused the Andalusian breed to decline in numbers, close to extinction. In order to re-establish their breeding programs, exportation of an Andalusian became illegal without Royal consent. The penalty for exporting these treasured horses was death.

In Canada and the USA today, the Andalusian is ridden both English and Western. This versatile breed can be found throughout North America, competing in Dressage, Driving, Cutting, Cattle work, and Jumping. Their stunning presence and charisma makes them an asset to any show ring, exhibition or parade. The Andalusian, with its love of people, creates the ideal family horse.

Approximately 80% of the Andalusians are gray, 15% Bay, 5% black. The classic profile of the Andalusians slightly convex or straight head is an appealing feature, which balances well with their graceful, yet substantial bodies. Their thick and bountiful mane flows from an elegant, well-arched neck, (stallions crestier than mares). Andalusians' backs are moderate to short in length, the mare's backs tending to be longer than the stallions, (in order to comfortably carry their foals.)

Their powerful rear quarters are complemented by a long, flowing tail. The Andalusian has a natural balance, collection, impulsion, and agility - an all around athlete.

Andalusian Horses possess a proud but kind temperament. They are sensitive, and particularly intelligent, responsive and cooperative, learning quickly and easily when treated with respect.

Horoscopes

August 8 - 15, 2007

Aries - Keep your temper this week. You may want to say angry words, but bite your tongue. Say what you want to say in a reasonable manner. Drive carefully. Take short trips.

Taurus - Home and family are a major interest now, but the action occurs in regard to what you own and how much money you have. You want to spend on home improvement. Go ahead.

Gemini - You will feel the effects of increased energy and more confidence this week. You will show it in the way you speak. Others may not notice, but you know how you feel.

Cancer - You may begin to do a slow boil about the way your plans and hopes aren't working out. Cool it, you can ruin your health. What you own and earn is an area of concern now.

Leo - Things go very well this week. Now is a good time to improve your appearance. You are starting to lose the feeling of being old. Do some serious planning for the future.

Virgo - There is a whole lot of good stuff going around in your mind but you're not ready to tell the world yet. Romance seems hard to get, and your career seems to be a hotbed of problems.

Libra - Your plans change radically, and you say good-bye to a group you used to associate with. This is a final farewell in a subtle way. New doors are opening while others close.

Scorpio - Career matters run smoothly but may seem boring. A big change is taking place in your career. Be alert to subtleties. Take care of investments, debts, insurances. Plan ahead now.

Sagittarius - You may feel older, more tired and a little discouraged now. This is due to subtle changes in spirit, and it is permanent but beneficial. Focus on career future, plan.

Capricorn - Creative juices are flowing. You want to do many things to make your world a nicer place. Go for it! Action centers around assets you share with lover, children, youth.

Aquarius - This is a really good time for you. Friends and family create a lot of action in your life. A subtle change has taken place in your plans. Stay aware. You move ahead.

Pisces - Focus is on home, family, and possibly family troubles. Don't let this action upset you. What is called for is a lot of determined effort to improve the situation. Health is good now.

Blueberry Crisp

Put a healthy twist on summer

(NC)—Summer is the sweetest time to bake fruit crisps. Hellmann's (www.hellmanns.ca) offers us this recipe for a moist blueberry base with a crisp top. Fruit crisps are a wonderful way to highlight any fruit that's in season, so if blueberries aren't around feel free to choose another delicious local fruit.

Blueberry Crisp

- 3 cups fresh or frozen blueberries (750 mL)
- 2/3 cup all-purpose flour (150 mL)
- 2/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar (150 mL)
- 1/2 cup quick cooking oats (125 mL)
- 1/2 tsp ground cinnamon (2 mL)
- 1/2 cup Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise (125 mL)

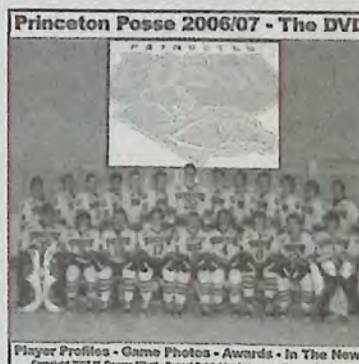

Preheat oven to 375° F (190° C). In shallow 8 x 8-inch (20 cm) baking dish, arrange blueberries; set aside. In medium bowl, combine flour, brown sugar, oats and cinnamon. Stir in Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise. Using fingers, gently squeeze dough to form crumbs. Evenly sprinkle crumbs over blueberries. Bake 30 minutes or until topping is golden. Makes 8 servings.

CARTER'S Sudoku Challenge

CREATED FOR THE NEWS LEADER BY CARTER BOSWELL

HOW TO PLAY:

Sudoku is a game of logic. There is no math involved. The object of the game is to fill the grid so that the numbers 1 through 9 appear only once in each row, column and 3 x 3 box. The numbers can appear in any order and Carter has left you some clues below.

A spill is a spill is a spill...

The 'landslide' last week at the former Similco Mines site is interesting.

As much as we have been told that the slide involved no tailings whatsoever, we have seen the crystal clear photos provided to us by the Okanogan County Sheriff's Department and we can say with 100% certainty that part of the slope that slid down the valley was tailings.

What we can't say for sure is how much, if any, tailings got as far as the Similkameen River probably a thousand feet below.

So we won't say tailings ended up in the river, because we can't be sure of that.

But we know what the landscape looks like when tailings have been piled and poured in place. But, since this is mining country, tailings are about as native to the landscape as the mountain pine beetle and we all know how much that is helping the local economy.

What we really want to focus on about the 'landslide' is not so much what material was in it as the size of it and why that should be a warning sign for all of us.

The photos we have seen show a slide that was so large in size that it had completely blocked the Similkameen River to a point that no wonder it virtually dried up downstream as the blockage basically created an earthen dam.

The location of the slide was on a bend in the river which also made it more difficult for the water to breach the blockage - at least more difficult than had it been on a straight stretch.

Now that you have a visual idea of the site, we think the red flag in all of this is the fact that there is some instability in the slopes along the river. This is nothing new as any road trip to Keremeos will reveal hillslides on virtually every hill side.

What gets our attention is that if water is one of our precious resources, we should be doing everything we can to make sure it continues to be. The 'landslide' at the former Similco Mines site should make us all aware of how precious the crystal clear Similkameen River water is and that it's something we shouldn't be playing with.

If anything, we should be protecting it.

We're not sure what triggered the 'landslide' but there's no doubt if we continue to push the boundaries of what we expect Mother Nature to put up with, she will eventually push back.

It just reminds us that this generation has inherited the mess of previous generations and part of our responsibility is to protect future generations from inheriting it and more.

Last week's 'landslide' should carry that message for all of us.

Where are all the fire escapes?

To The Editor,

I am very concerned about the lack of fire escapes on our buildings and apartments and houses that rent apartments in private homes.

The complex that took the lives of two people this past week is a crime that never should have happened. The owner of this building did not have any fire escapes. The only way out was down a flight of stairs to the front door. There was no rope ladder or ladder of any kind coming from the top floor of this apartment.

If the building inspector, Town Council are doing their job, they would make sure all buildings or apartments were inspected for safety.

Letter To The Editor

Highway 40 resident speaks up

Dear Editor,

There has been talk lately of the number of break-ins we have been experiencing along Highway 40, in the Chain and Link Lake area. Quite a number of us are now going out of our way to keep an eye on each others' properties, and thinking of installing various alarms and lights.

But there is another problem as well: there have been a series of casual grab-and-run incidents: I had two jerry cans of gas stolen out of my truck a few weeks ago, along with some sports equipment and the insurance and registration papers. There were quad tracks down my driveway, so I assume this was how they came in.

Many years ago, the fire department went from house to house to see if there was any hazard in and around the homes. I know this costs money but it is well worth the effort. Princeton is an old mining town with wood constructed buildings with no firewalls between store walls. The stores on the corner of Bridge Street to First Avenue - to where the Provincial Building is situated - would go up in flames in a minute. These are old wooden buildings that have been here for years with only artificial make-over to improve appearances. What chance would they have of surviving with apartments above these stores?

The owners of these buildings should assume responsibility to make sure their buildings have fire escapes and extinguishers available and in good working order, checked by the fire department at the owner's expense. Private home owners should have escape routes planned, everyone is accountable for their own safety.

The residents of Princeton are a caring, giving people and have shown their heartfelt sorrow to the Bae family by giving so generously to the trust fund set up at Valley First Credit Union and by donating to the glass jars in many stores. I thank you and the members of the United Church thank you as the Bae family are part of our family and we will take care of them with all your help.

- Cathie Orser, Princeton

A close neighbor had several kids come down her driveway in quads (one was red), and heard them yell, "There's someone here - let's get out of here!" These kids have been seen running their quads in and out of driveways all up and down the road, and people are on edge.

I guess it's time to start locking things up all the time. It's too bad - this didn't use to be that sort of neighborhood. These kids and the cabin burglar have certainly done their bit to make this a less desirable place to live.

I don't know what we can do other than install alarms and keep an eye on each other. But something else could be done: parents should have a much better idea what their kids are doing and where they are.

For the record: the sports gear stolen was a pair of three-wheel, silver-colored roller skis with old Salomon bindings, and a pair of green poles with worn-out handles and carbide tips. The poles were used by eight-time World - and Olympic Champion Thomas Wassberg, and they meant a great deal to me. Has anyone seen them? (They can be left at the Princeton Irlly Bird, and no questions will be asked).

Let's try to make this a place where we can trust each other again.

- Nat Brown, Princeton

It's a weird, weird world

Dawn Johnson
editor@thenewsleader.ca

There is so much contradictory information these days, it is hard to evaluate what is true and what is not. The weather is a good example.

I watch the weather channel every day. It seems to me they emphasize record-breaking hot weather as if they want to reinforce the idea that we are undergoing global warming.

Okay, it was 38 degrees in Regina. It broke a record set 50 years ago on that same day. You know what strikes me as odd? While they are busy telling the nation how hot it is in the prairies and southern Ontario, they do not mention the southern Interior of BC. Why? I guess it is because we are always hot.

What they do not mention is that this summer is, on the average, a bit cooler than most summers, and most certainly a lot more moist. That full week of cool weather and rain was a boon, and we are not complaining, but the effect was an abrupt cooling down of our usual high temperatures and excessively dry weather we have experienced for a number of years.

I suppose the problem/benefit of being older and having a long memory is that I can remember a lot of different extreme weather. I remember a summer, I believe it was 1955, when our temperature reached 43 degrees Celsius in July. I remember it because we were haying and had to quit. In the late 1990's, a temperature of 45 degrees was registered in Keremeos. Nobody paid any attention nationwide.

This "extreme" heat wave in southern Europe is nothing unusual. I lived in southern Italy for three years. It was very hot every summer and reaching 40 degrees was commonplace. In 1962, the temperature climbed to 45 degrees where I lived, and more in Sicily. Some Sicilians, driven crazy by the heat, threw themselves from cliffs into the sea and died.

The following winter was the coldest since 1944.

The flooding in England was nothing new. It has happened before, but people tend to forget.

They were not having a European heat wave, were they?

As for all the flooding in the Far East and Southeast Asia, the floods are part of monsoon season and people need the monsoons. They expect flooding, and every year, people die from the flooding. Still, they would starve without the monsoons.

Ours is a weird world. We live on a strange planet. Earth is the most diverse planet in our solar system in terms of weather. It is this odd-ball weather that leads to the extreme diversity of life forms on our planet. We have some really weird life forms, including us. Perhaps we are the strangest life form simply because we choose to interpret conditions around us and predict where the weather is leading us. Other life forms just sit back and let it happen, or migrate.

Marketplace Ministry by Jim Caruso

We sold our house.

Have you ever put your house up for sale? We just did a few months ago. This is an experience that you can actually survive if you have lots for support and a good medical plan that offers long term professional counseling. The idea was to downsize, that means we wanted a smaller payment each month.

The first thing that we did was to fix everything that was broken, that we had lived with broken and I might add lived quite well even though it was broken. But if you want someone to buy your house, you must make it better than when you lived in it. This goes for the yard as well. Our yard was nice. The lawn area was a combination of differing shades of green. It was dominated by weed green, followed closely by clover green and sprinkled amongst these shades of green was some actual lawn green. Since the for sale sign had gone up, the lawn was acceptable with all the green colours but only if it was a uniform height. I needed to mow it on regular intervals.

I had already painted many of the rooms inside of the house. In the guest room I had many fond memories of the adventure that took place as I painted this room, a light sunshine yellow. Sunshine yellow is the same as ordinary yellow except that it has a designer name and so it costs more. I was cutting in the trim while standing on a kitchen chair and I started to realize that this was not very safe. I found a small step ladder that was safety approved and as I was opening it up to place it in the room, I pinched my finger in the movable part of the ladder causing my finger to bleed profusely. The grey carpet in the guest bedroom had just been shampooed and now had a unique designer pattern in a natural red. I stopped the bleeding and went back to painting. The brush didn't fit as well in my hand as it did before due to the large pressure bandage that was wrapped around my injured finger. I poured some more paint into a margarine container; they are so handy to hold when you are standing on a safety approved ladder. Well I climber up to the second step the safety approved ladder tipped and I watched as the handy margarine container left my unbandaged hand and became airborne, gravity took over and the sunshine yellow paint hit the freshly cleaned grey carpet and cover all the uncovered area of room. Of course I had covered every place on the carpet with plastic except where the paint hit. Now I needed a rug shampooer, but alas! It was not at my home. I drove as the paint dried and finally I secured the rug shampooer and cleaned up the mess.

The real estate agents liked the house, but of course they had to stage it for sale. Staging means that you now live as visitor who has no household privileges and must leave at any time of the day or night. Also all your furniture is placed in a totally different configuration leading to many small cuts and abrasions when you try to find your way to the bathroom in the middle of the night. Another important thing is that you are not allowed to keep any antique vegetables, milk or other refrigerator collectables that bring a certain comfort to the homeowners. The most important thing is never put anything in the garbage cans until the house is sold. They are for looks only, after all what would someone think if they came into your house and saw garbage in a garbage can under the sink or in the bathrooms.

Well we finally sold our house and the first thing I did was walk through the house and left my shoes on and then I put garbage in all the garbage cans and began to pile my papers and books all over the place again, I felt that I was back home again.

There is at least one more move in my life, to a home that has been prepared in heaven. Jesus spoke these words, "Do not let your hearts be troubled. Trust in God; trust also in me. In my Father's house are many rooms; if it were not so, I would have told you. I am going there to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come back and take you to be with me that you also may be where I am. (John 14:1-3). There is plenty of room in this mansion for everyone and it has one unique feature that my house and your down here doesn't have, there are no garbage cans. You see, Jesus took all our garbage and sin and removed it while He was on the cross.

Letter To The Editor

A case of 'you don't know what you've got 'til it's gone'

Dear Sir,

I am sure your readers are very curious, and perhaps upset, over the fact that Princeton Hospital is once more without a physiotherapist. The purpose of this letter is to shed light on what happened.

Anthea Pugliese had moved here in August of 2006 with retirement or at least semi-retirement in mind. It became clear that Princeton, lacking a hospital physio, was desperate for one. Anthea filled the bill nicely, being British trained, and experienced over many years in England, Kelowna, Penticton, Vancouver, Richmond, and others. She decided to work in Princeton three days per week for two or three years at least, and commenced to do so. She was swamped immediately, with doctors in Penticton, remembering her competence from years before, recommending her in addition to her busy practice here.

Government is full of bloated bureaucracies, with various bodies being a haven for political hacks, who are owed something. Unrelated (maybe) to that comment is the fact that the Municipal Pension Plan has sixteen directors and sixteen alternate directors. I believe that their rules have to be set and approved by the lieutenant governor-in-council, so am at a loss to understand why this person ..... continued on Page 26

Participants in the 'Clay For Kids' classes at Riverside Centre will create fish, sea creatures, boats and all things fishy out of clay to take home at the end of their class. Photo submitted power is necessary or even appropriate.

Suffice it to say that the latest addition of their rules was amendment number 9, and bore no relation to the problems in health care at present. The shortage of medical and paramedical personnel is acute and getting worse. I understand that Princeton had lost its former physio a couple of years ago, and had been unable to find another until Anthea Pugliese came along. 40% of our nurses and probably the same number of physios will retire in the next five years and the government has not created positions for enough students to fill them, although it has lots of time to appoint its hacks. It is critical to your health to get those who are retirement age and able-bodied to continue to work for as long as they can or will.

How does this mesh with the Municipal Pension Plan? Well, it works hard to discourage their staying on. One rule, which I don't think would stand up in court, is double-bladed. An employee who discusses post-retirement employment with his/her employer is disqualified from a pension. Likewise, if the employer dares to broach the subject with an employee, that employee is disqualified. Then semantics enters into it. The employee must not only resign, but unless he or she uses the word 'retiring' she/he is disqualified. And of course, they don't tell people this in advance. The Princeton Hospital was unaware of these preposterous 'rules.'

Anthea Pugliese asked three times to attend their retirement seminars. This was on the Mainland, where most of the employees are. In every case she was told that the seminars were full. Perish the thought that thirty-two directors and alternate directors should be able to arrange to provide adequate information to long-term employees. And perish the thought that they should provide it to the hospitals.

So what happened? Unknowing of all this, Anthea, who was coming into retirement age on November 30 of last year, talked to the employer. The employer, also unknowingly, made her an offer of 'post-retirement' (their words) employment on November 8.

With her retirement and her pensions due, Ms. Pugliese continued working. Her pay continued, but as she is a hands-on worker who trusts administration to look after her, she paid no attention to that. Her OPAL started without reference to anything but her age. So did her COP. But her Municipal Pension did not. I asked her about it several times, but she just thought administration of this was slow as is everything in health. Finally, in June, I persuaded her to ask what was going on, to which she received a cursory letter from the Pension Plan telling her she would not be eligible until she quit working altogether without discussing anything further.

The effect of this was that her pay had been cut by about a third when the pension to which she was legally entitled is taken into account. She felt betrayed, and she walked. The people of Princeton no longer have physio without taking the time, paying the car expense, and getting into lineups for treatment in Keremeos and Penticton. Anthea is ready, willing and able to return to work, but only if her pension is approved retroactive to November 30, 2006. That is what the Pension Plan's calculation contemplated, and that is what she is entitled to, thirty-two directors and alternate directors notwithstanding. Their 'rules' even, in my opinion, violate the Charter.

Joyce McKenzie, manager of the hospital here, does not seem interested enough to do anything about it. Harry Lali has not answered my letter. George Abbott, who professes deep concern about his health department, is not interested enough to respond, although he has the authority to rectify the situation. Ditto the president of the BC Medical Association, who could have a strong influence in the matter.

To add insult to injury, her employer was deducting continuing payment into the pension fund. She did not notice this. It would take just under eight years for her to get back these seven months of payments, not including interest. I note that they also deduct CPP premiums, although she has drawn CPP for seven months!

I am sure her patients and prospective patients would be extremely grateful if you were to lean on the mayor (who has not got involved), Mr. Lali, George Abbott. Phone them in the middle of the night to get their attention, and roast them. If you don't, this is going to happen to hundreds of others in the health field, all of whom will feel betrayed, and most of whom will not return when a judge says that the pensions must be restored. In Anthea's case, she is getting to like retirement and, although at present she is willing to come back, this may not be the case in even a few months.

Thank you,
- Murray R. Woodward, Princeton
