RCMP busy during long weekend

An enforcement program was put in place by SOTS (South Okanagan Traffic Services) and IRSU (Integrated Road Safety Units) Keremeos and Princeton RCMP members over the May long weekend covering an area from Manning Park to Osoyoos (Oliver/Penticton/Summerland). The results were as follows:

shapes racing event rse

The tradition of horse racing in Princeton always takes on a more exciting feeling at this time of year as word about preparations begins to circulate. This year, with two race dates, there are a few changes. The Similkameen Cup and the John Deere featured races will be held June 30. If there are fewer than six horses for a race due to scratched horses, that race will be cancelled. A scratched horse is one registered for a race but withdrawn before the race is run.

The Luke Gibson Memorial and the Tulameen Cup feature races will be held September 2, the first day of the Fall Fair. Rotary will be selling tickets on the Similkameen Cup races,

Kovaltsenko, The Alan

Troubadour, will provide musical entertainment after the races on June 30. He offers good country and western vocals accompanied by guitar. Announcers this year are Keith Reid and Dean Stinson, both did a great job last year.

Vendors are welcome at $60 for the day. No vendors competing with the concession stand will be permitted on the grounds, but all other vendors should call John Bey at 250.295.3970. Vendors at the races will have no shelter and no power unless other arrangements can be made.

Jen Bernard and her crew will run the concession, as they did at the rodeo. Everyone was pleased with the way they handled the food concession.

There will be a barrel for losers again this year. Those who lost on a race can write their names on their losing wager tickets and drop them in the barrel for a chance to win in a consolation draw. Programs will have tickets attached, and there willbe a draw for the lucky program. The paddock will be decorated with flowers.

Parking for handicapped persons will be permitted on the grounds with a view of the race track. A limclimate data from Environment Canada, have been used to form the basis for the following reports. Weather

Weather patterns in May have been dominated by cooler than normal temperatures throughout British Columbia. Weather has been unsettled, and patterns are consistent with the La Niña cycle observed through the winter/spring.

at most locations in the province near the middle of April. However this year, the cool April and May has led to a delay in the onset of snow melt. As of May 15th most snow survey locations have transitioned to melt. The delay in the onset of melt is about 3-4 weeks later than normal for most of the province.

The ongoing delay in melt has led continued on Page 5

Huldra Silver announces exploration plans

Huldra Silver Inc. (TSX-V:HDA) (the "Company" or "Huldra") announced May 16th the Company's 2011 exploration plans for its 100% owned Treasure

The objective of the program is to expand the existing resources on the developed area of the underground and further explore the property. These plans include underground drilling, surface drilling, soil geochemistry, trenching, prospecting and field geology.

Underground Exploration

An underground drill program is currently being designed to upgrade the existing resource and test for additional mineralization by infill drilling along strike and at depth. The current underground development consists of 2,750 metres of drifts and raises on 4 levels.

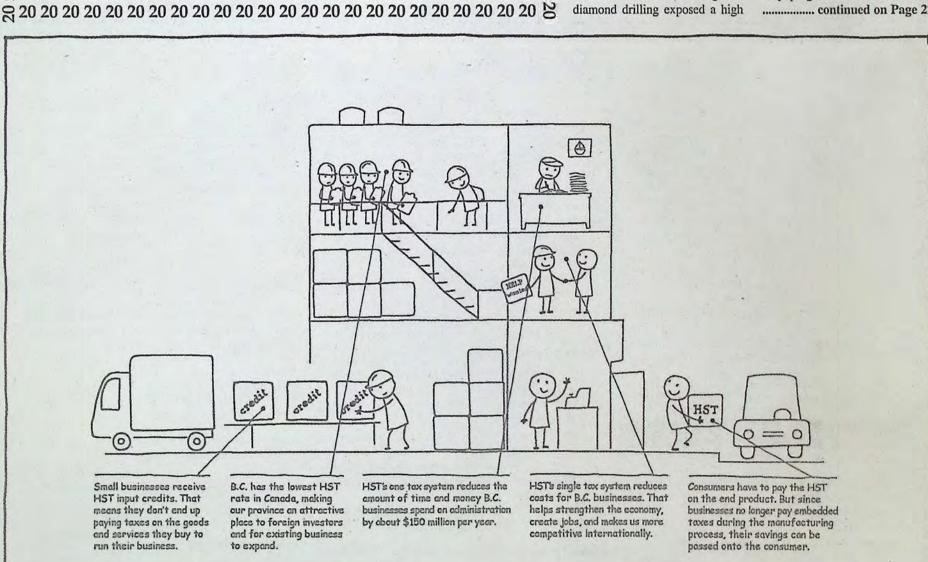

The total vein indicated resource, estimated at 11.02 ounces silver per tonne (10.0 oz silver per ton) cut-off grade, is reported as 33,000 tonnes with 26.68 ounces silver per tonne, 4.16% lead and 3.80% zinc, containing 880,000 ounces silver, 3,030,000 lbs. lead and 2,760,000 lbs. zinc. Total vein inferred resource, estimated at the same cut-off grade (11.02 ounces silver per tonne) is reported as 120,000 tonnes with 29.76 ounces silver per tonne, 2.79% lead and 4.36% zinc, containing 3,580,000 ounces silver, 7,370,000 lbs. lead and 11,540,000 lbs. zinc. East Zone

An open cut has been designed to further explore and define the East Zone where trenching and diamond drilling exposed a high grade silver and lead vein. The purpose of the program is to take a bulk sample of the material and further delineate the structure. This work is expected to commence in June as soon as the necessary infrastructure is on site. JK Vein

The JK vein was discovered during a trenching program late in the 2010 exploration program. Two shallow holes were drilled on the western end of the structure. However, the material was partially oxidized close to surface. Initial drilling in 2011 will concentrate on the JK vein based on the size of the structure and the encouraging initial results from trenching. Drilling in the area will also step off the JK vein to the north and south to test for extensions of the East Zone along other mineralized dykes. The diamond drill program will consist of a minimum 2,500 metres NQ size core.

MB Zone

The MB Zone is approximately 800 metres northwest of the current mine workings. Surface samples were taken from an exposed area of fractured argillite in 2010 and assays were reported as high as 9221g/t Ag. A soil geochemistry program will be conducted continued on Page 22

Small business supports plan to save the HST

The majority of small businesses support the plan announced May 25th by Finance Minister Kevin Falcon to reduce the HST by two percentage points over time.

A survey done by the CFIB

(Canadian Federation of Independent Business) in March showed that support for the HST increased from 45 per cent with no change in the rate to 83 per cent support with a two percentage point cut.

"The HST has had its fans and critics among business owners. A big concern for business owners has been the impact on customers. Now that impact is positive, it's going to have a whole lot more fans out there," said Laura Jones Sr. Vice-President Western Canada.

To finance the cuts to the HST, corporate taxes will go up and announced cuts to the small business rate will be delayed.

"We are never fans of tax increases and delaying proposed cuts but we are reassured that the finance minister has committed to reverse the corporate tax increases and make good on the government's commitment to further reduce the small business rate as soon as is possible once the budget is balanced," said Shachi Kurl, Director of Provincial Affairs, BC.

Prince Town

1826 - 1926

W. George Eillott

Complying with the PST was one of the top red tape headaches for small businesses.

"Going back to the PST/GST system would be a total nightmare for BC businesses and it would send a very negative message about our investment climate. It's very good news that the government has a new plan to make the tax more palatable. The rate cuts will be the spoonful of sugar that helps the HST go down," concludes Jones. WATER RESTRICTIONS

Water Restrictions will be in effect May 15, 2011.

By conserving today, we reduce the need for expanded facilities and costly upgrades to the water system. What are the rules?

- Lawn sprinkling regulations are in effect from May 15 to September 30 every year.
- There are four stages of restrictions, each stage allowing less water use.
- Stage 1 comes into effect automatically on May 15 of every year unless more stringent water conservation measures are needed. Stages 2, 3 and 4 are implemented according to the severity of the water shortage. Each level requires increasingly larger reductions in water use.
- Residential, multi-family, commercial, Industrial, institutional and public properties are all required to follow the regulations.

Stage 1 Restrictions will be in effect May 15th.

- Even numbered civic addresses may water on Wednesdays, i i iday and Sundays.
- Odd numbered civic addresses may water on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.
- No watering is permitted between Noon and 6:00 pm.
- Watering is not permitted on Mondays.
- Washing of boats or motor vehicles with a hose is permitted only if using a hose with an automatic shut-off device.
- Public sector entities are restricted to three days per week at any time.

Bylaw Enforcement Officers will enforce all levels of the water restrictions bylaw. A person who contravenes the bylaw commits an offence under the Offence Act and is subject to a fine.

For more information visit Town hall during regular business hours.

North Korea. Due to his First Nations appearance, he was successful in rescuing his squad by donning a North Korean uniform and pretending he had captured enemy troops, escorted his squad through enemy lines to safety.

He went to Viet Nam as a sergeant, and put in his worst war years in that conflict. He was fed up with what he saw there, and suffered post traumatic distress for many years. On returning to peacetime service, he went to university to become an educated man.

On retirement, Douglas returned to the Similkameen Valley for what he hoped was the remainder of his days. He became interested in the history of the Okanagan Nation and worked at Enowkin Centre in Penticton for a number of years, then served at the Institute for Indigenous Studies in Vancouver for a few years. He was keenly interested in the fate of indigenous people in our modern world.

Glen Douglas was honoured by both the Upper and Lower Similkameen Indian Bands and presented with a war bonnet to recognize his status as a warrior.

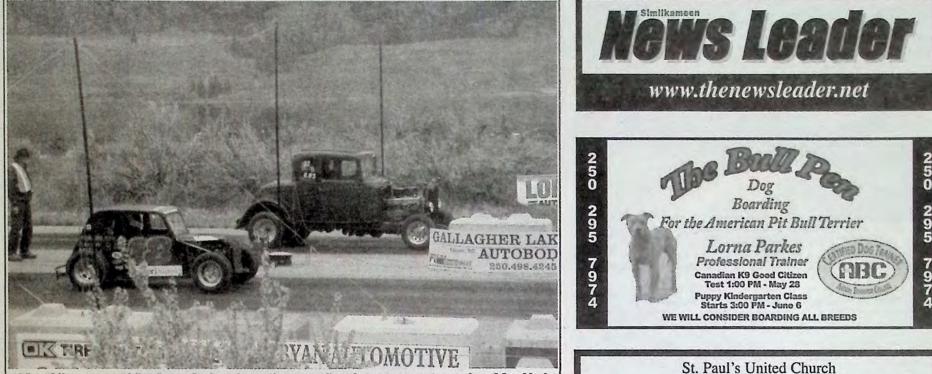

As his health began to fail, he had to move back to the United States in order to receive treatment through veterans' medical services.

At the time of his death, he and his wife, Lesley, were residing in a retirement centre in Spokane. Despite increasing weakness and shortness of breath, he faced his death without fear, maintaining a will to survive as best he could for as long as he could.

He is survived by his wife, children, many grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and a very large extended family both in the Similkameen Valley, the Okanagan Valley and in Washington.

..... continued from Front Page to increases in snow basin indices across the province. Snow basin indices represent the difference between a "normal" year and the current year for given sampling date, in this case May 15. A note of caution in interpreting snow basin indices at this time of year is that with a delay in the onset of snow' melt, differences between observed and normal snow pack levels can become large. This is because in a normal year snow water equivalents are lowering because the snow has melted, whereas this years' snow pack has not melted so the snow water equivalents remain high.

Basin snow water indices for BC at May 15 vary from a low of 98% of normal in the Peace to a high of 276% of normal in the Similkameen. Well above normal snow packs (>120% of normal) are present across the province, except in the Upper Fraser, North Thompson, and Peace, where near normal or slightly above normal snowpack levels are observed.

BC Snow Basin Indices as recorded on May 15th noting percentage of normal for each basin:

Upper Fraser - 117%, Okanagan-Kettle - 173%, Nechako - 137%, Similkameen - 276%, Middle Fraser - 152%, South Coast -155%, Lower Fraser - 141%, Vancouver Island - 173%, North Thompson - 110%, Peace - 98%, South Thompson - 125%, Skeena-Nass - 139%, Columbia - 109%, Kootenay - 201%

Water Supply Outlook

In general, the main difference in water supply outlook and flood risk potential since the May 1st bulletin is the ongoing delay in the onset of snow melt. Delays in the snow melt season lead to increases in potential flood risk because more water is available for melt later in the season when warmer temperatures are more likely to occur.

Snow water equivalents have remained fairly similar to May 1st levels, with some variability across snow pack sampling locations. While the % of normal values have increased for most of the province, these increases are due to the delay in snowmelt, not the significant addition of water stored in the snow pack.

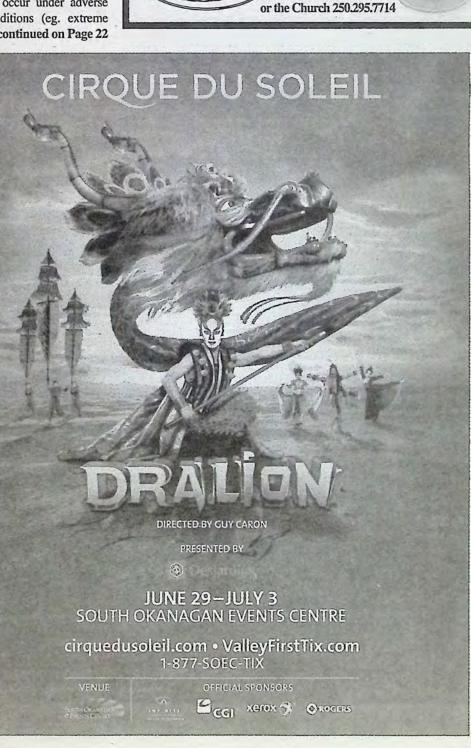

Based on elevated snow pack levels (>150% of normal) and delays in the melt season, increased flood risk is present in the Middle Fraser, Kootenay, Okanagan-Kettle, and Similkameen. Whether or not significant flooding occurs in these systems will depend primarily on the weather through the rest of May and June.

Additional areas noted in the May 1st snow bulletin include the Bulkley and Nicola Rivers, however additional analysis has not been completed for the May 15th bulletin for these systems. Continued elevated flood risk potential is expected in these areas.

Large peak flows in the Lower Fraser, South Coast and Vancouver Island regions are typically associated with major storm events in the fall and winter and not with spring snowmelt. Despite high snow packs in these regions, increased flood risk is not expected. An exception to this is in the Birkenhead River where there is an increased potential for flooding. In regions of the Interior and northern BC with near or slightly above normal snow packs (Upper Fraser, Nechako, North Thompson, South Thompson, Columbia, Peace, Skeena/Nass), normal or slightly above normal flood risk and seasonal runoff is expected. With current snowpack levels and the ongoing delay in melt, flooding is possible in these regions.

In the lower Fraser River Valley, on-going delay in melt is also increasing flood risk. The River Forecast Centre is forecasting a peak flow for the Fraser River at Hope of 9,000-11,000 m3/s under "normal" weather scenarios. The peak flow magnitude that we get on the Lower will depend on weather conditions over the next 1 to 6 weeks, and higher than anticipated flows could occur under adverse weather conditions (eg. extreme continued on Page 22

The reason we need to supplement with digestive enzymes from raw food.

(NC)-Digestive enzymes help replace enzymes lost in the cooking and processing of food and make up for decreased enzyme production by the body due to aging.

The human body makes and uses more than 3,000 kinds of enzymes to speed up enzymatic reactions and conserve energy. Without these enzymes, we could not live. Our bodies' reactions would be too slow for survival.

"While digestive enzymes, including the kinds found in Udo's Choice ultimate digestive enzyme blend, are only a few of the thousands of known enzymes, they facilitate a critical step in the digestive process," says Udo Erasmus, bestselling author and formulator of Udo's Choice.

Enzymes' role, from the moment food enters our mouth, is to start breaking them down to the smallest components that can be absorbed by the body. For minerals like calcium and magnesium, this will be at the molecular level. For sugars, this will be to fructose and glucose. Our body then absorbs and reassembles these components to build cells, tissues, organs, glands and entire body systems.

The body has two sources of digestive enzymes. First, it is able to manufacture enzymes, although there are limits to its ability to maintain optimum levels. And, second, it can also obtain them from food, provided the food has not been heated above approximately 40 degrees centigrade, in other words, constructure and a second of the

In an ideal world, to ensure an adequate supply, the body obtains enzymes from both sources. Unfortunately, for most of us, raw sufficiently large percentage of the diet to adequately supplement the enzymes produced by the body. (It goes without saying that cooked, canned, microwaved and pasteurized foods contribute no enzymes.) Caffeine, alcohol, illness, pregnancy and stress all take their toll on our enzyme reserves. Furthermore, our bodies also produce fewer enzymes as we age. But even when we consume more raw foods, the cooked foods we eat, lacking enzymes, still create a problem. This is because enzyme deficient foods put a burden on the digestive system-a burden we weren't designed to handle. Incomplete digestion can lead to poor nutrient absorption, fatigue, digestive upset, food allergies and tries to compensate by producing more internal digestive enzymes, but its ability to do so has limits. Partially digested food escapes from the gut and can cause an immune and sprouted foods don't make up a response. Ultimately the body may try to "steal" enzymes from the immune system-compromising it even further.

> Udo's Choice digestive enzyme blends contain the full spectrum of important enzymes necessary to help in the digestion and absorption of all major nutrients. Five specialized formulations of active enzymes, designed to be age- and condition-specific, facilitate healthy digestion, improve nutrient absorption and immune function, increase energy levels and decrease inflammation and food allergies.

Life Skills Mean Longer Life

The weather turns nice in spring, and it seems everybody cheers up and has a more positive attitude toward life. When summer comes, we Canadians enjoy life more. This is significant to living a longer life. In general, most of us get more Vitamin D from the sunshine, and Vitamin D is linked to longer life.

We exercise more in summer, too. People are out in the fresh air, walking, working, doing more physically active tasks. This helps us live longer. Regular exercise of any kind helps extend life and makes us feel better.

We spend more time with friends in the good months. We go out more often on nice days than in the dark days of winter. Spending time with friends is good for us physically and mentally. People with friends, people who have caring people to spend time with, tend to be healthier and live longer lives.

People who are in love with somebody, and loved by that somebody, live longer. Our bodies react with positive life-giving chemicals when we love and are loved.

People who are not skinny and not fat live the longest. This means eating a healthy diet.

People who drink tea instead of alcohol, soda beverages, or sugary drinks live longer. Red wine helps people live longer, but this means one small drink of red wine a couple of times a week.

These are facts everybody knows, but there may be a couple of other things researchers have discovered that not everybody knows. People who live longer are better able to cope with the stresses of daily living. They know how to get things done, be on time for work, anticipate expenses, and find sensible ways to get past problems. In other words, they cope well.

People who live longer and healthier lives are better organized in daily life than people whose energies are scattered or disorganized. These people make a plan for their daily activities. They do not live in an unorganized chaos. They know which day of the week it is, keep track of time and chores to do, make note of appointments, keep up with local news that may affect them.

People who continue to learn live longer. They keep their brains actively learning. For example, when there is civil unrest in Egypt, these people will learn all they can about what the problem is, what Egypt's history is in the recent past, and may read a book about modern Egypt or go to internet to learn about Egypt. Many retired people take courses in subjects that interest them, or learn a new skill, or play brain-teasing games. Some people do puzzles or watch documentaries on television. Some people travel to places they have never visited and learn all they can about the place. There is something about learning that keeps people healthier and helps them live longer.

If you are doing all these things, then you will probably live a long life.

when the Similkameen News Leader announced big plans for that year's annual Fall Fair.

Tophey Hanna believed at the time that fun is what a fair should offer for people of all ages.

And he planned to entertain residents - big time. Hanna proposed a major entertainment package that would cost around $20,000 if members approved the entire package, and if enough sponsors came forward to bankroll a portion of the cost.

In the package Hanna presented to the Fall Fair were such things as a return of the mechanical bull with a bigger and better evening bull riding contest, a series of games and events for children, adult games including a baseball and hockey cage, a golf simulator, foosball and bubble hockey. He even planned a prize wheel with a top prize of $500.

Hanna left Fall Fair members to examine the "ambitious package" which would require advance sponsorship to make possible. He requested the group respond with their supporting vote in the following month.

In other news from seven years ago, School District 58 Trustees passed first, second, third and final readings of a bylaw which officially closed Riverside Intermediate School June 30, 2004.

In the bylaw, the preamble stated, "the closure of Riverside Intermediate School will help sustain educational program services and utilize the remaining Board owned facilities more effectively."

It went on to point out "the educational experience of the students presently attending Riverside Intermediate School will not be compromised through the closure of the facility and the relocation of the students to neighbouring schools."

A number of retirements were noted in the June 1, 2004

Similkameen News Leader. They included Margaret Caughlin who had assumed the primary driving duties for Princeton's BC Transit service eighteen years before; Anne Elliott, who originally planned to spend three years in Princeton and went on to serve a total of 33 years in the School District, retiring from the position of Principal of Riverside Intermediate School and Sandra Taylor who retired from 24 years in the School District, most of them as the head of the Home Economics Department at Princeton Secondary School.

PSS Students Go Green

PSS Grade 10's spent last week planting grass and plants. Photo: Morgan Dobbs

Calm Before The Storm

This past week has been a welcome change of pace for me. It's been a pretty steady grind in the office since December and things just haven't slowed down, as they usually do in January and February, not that I'm complaining, but I've been looking forward to a slightly slower week.

So this past week was an unplanned break from the rush we usually experience here and it allowed me to just take my time with my daily tasks. It also allowed me to focus on some other activities going on in my life.

For example, I learned a new word: Linting.

Apparently that's what has caused some pages of this newspaper to look a bit lighter in shade and some of the photos to look 'snowy' rather than sharp. I had no idea there was such a term. In case you're wondering, linting is a printing problem that occurs when small fibres from uncoated paper are pulled onto print rollers.

I also discovered that sometimes we get far too scientific in our way of thinking or measuring things. I'm talked about the river watch Brenda has been doing using a large rock (she claims the word boulder is too big) on the other side of the Similkameen River than us to mark the daily water level.

It proves that sometimes simple is easier and still gets the job done.

I also discovered this past week that although I didn't think our last winter was anything spectacular, according to the measurements taken May 15th the Similkameen Basin scores top spot with 276% of normal snow pack.

Do you understand what 276% means? It means we have just about three times as much snow in the hills than normal waiting to melt and fill streams, rivers, basements and fields.

I didn't realize I'd notice so many things on a slower week in the office.

It makes me wonder what else I've missed lately.

Vernon man talks income tax

To The Editor;

Even though I struggled through all the forms and redundant calculations in my 2010 income tax package weeks ago, I am still shaking my head. Albert Einstein said any intelligent fool can make things bigger and more complex but it takes a touch of genius ---and a lot of courage --- to move in the opposite direction.

The recent election campaign demonstrated once again how self-serving politicians, in their desperate desire to get elected, will promise inattentive voters a wide variety of elaborate programs. Over the years government bureaucrats, not known for genius, have been forced to invent more and more convoluted regulations and formulas to implement and finance these election promises.

Einstein's insight can be applied to the inefficiencies of government in the following way: In the absence of courageous genius, when self-serving politicians interact with inattentive voters the predictable result is an increase in the amount of bureaucratic mismanagement and in the number of complex regulations.

Similkameen

News Leader

If a political leader with a touch of genius — and a lot of courage – – sincerely promises to simplify the Income Tax Act, he or she will get my vote.

Current Comm

Scary Stuff Makes Me Wonder

Dawn Johnson editor@thenewsleader.ca

One of the most frightening books I have read recently was a book by Jesse Ventura called American Conspiracies. Jesse Ventura is the former Governor of Minnesota. He made his start as a wrestler, but he has been a mayor, a radio broadcaster, and now has a television show on TRU-TV. His show is famous for his investigative journalism into what is going wrong in the United States.

Ventura's book begins with the conspiracy to assassinate Abraham Lincoln, and moves on to the conspiracy to assassinate Franklin Roosevelt, then the conspiracy to assassinate President John Kennedy.

If you go to Ventura's website, you can hear the deathbed confession of E. Howard Hunt as he describes the conspiracy by the CIA. Hunt's son attests that his father talked to him about the "Big Event", the assassination of Kennedy.

As if that were not bad enough, Ventura's book goes on to describe evidence he has gathered on the conspiracy to impeach President Richard Nixon, saying the whole Watergate thing was rigged to create an investigation into Nixon because Nixon kept asking for the CIA files on the assassination of Kennedy. According to Ventura's evidence, Nixon kept asking and Jesse Helms, then head of the CIA, kept refusing to let the President of his country see the CIA files on the Kennedy assassination. So, an arrangement was made to get rid of Nixon as President.

Other conspiracies include the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr. and Robert Kennedy, with a lot more interesting slants than we have seen before.

F

Ventura's biggest investigation is about the World Trade Towers disaster, and the evidence that it was a conspiracy to start a war in the Middle East is pretty convincing. Ventura debunks a number of key bits of evidence given the public, and he wants a new investigation into the matter. On his video, which is available on the net, he points out that key witnesses, at total of 11 of them, have died mysteriously in the eight years following the 9/11 official investigation. Most of them were never given the opportunity to give their evidence of explosions in the basement of Tower 2 before the airplanes hit. He does interview a janitor who gives exactly that evidence. Ventura talks about the evidence he has found that shows both the elections that George W. Bush "won" were probably rigged through the use of computer voting machines. God forbid we should ever use them in our country.

The most scary chapter of the book is the final chapter. In this chapter he describes the laws that have been put in place by the Bush administration after 9/11. Ventura says The Patriot Act and the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act were passed to allow the federal government of the United States to impose martial law and lock up "dissenters" if the government chooses. I learned that the American military is "privatizing" troops. Ventura states there were, in 2010, 74,000 mercenaries in Afghanistan than there were regular uniformed troops. They do not call themselves "mercenaries" but describe themselves as "global stabilization professionals". These are products of special operations funded through the CIA.

Under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act amendments of 2008, the American federal government has the right to monitor every communication. It made a deal with AT&T to tap into fiber-optic cables which included most server companies except Qwest, which refused to participate. The National Security Agency has a giant supercomputer at Fort Meade scanning millions of domestic and international phone calls, faxes and emails per hour.

Ventura describes other laws and agencies that would make it possible to seize and hold power through militia activity. To top it off, an organization has been formed as a wing of the FBI to keep track of what the members' neighbours are doing and report this to an FBI 'handler'. Sounds a lot like a Nazi technique, and one constitutional scholar has dubbed it "Fuhrer's Law".

The full body scan at airports is all part of the same kind of surveillance overkill, Ventura believes, along with a plan to implant every citizen with a computer chip "for security".

That final chapter is spine-chilling, but we can perhaps rest easy as this is not happening in Canada. Or is it? I often wondered why Canada always gets the short end of the stick when making deals with the Americans. After the Free Trade Agreement was signed, I asked our local Member of Parliament why we did not hold out for a better deal. He merely said, "The Americans play hardball."

Just last week, while researching other information, I accidentally came across a statement from the 1992 American government's Defense Planning Guide. Here is what it states: "Our first objective is to prevent the emergence of a new rival. First, the United States must show the leadership necessary to establish and protect a new world order that holds the promise of convincing potential competitors that they need not aspire to a greater role or pursue a more aggressive posture to protect their legitimate interests. We must account sufficiently for the interests of advanced industrial nations to discourage them from challenging our leadership or seeking to overturn the established political and economic order. Finally, we must maintain the mechanism for deterring potential competitors from even aspiring to a larger regional or global role.'

How does that grab you? That is quite a statement from a nation whose constitution says there shall be no wars fought except for defense. The new concept of defense is not the old "if you strike us, we'll strike back" of the original constitution. No, this new concept of defense is to protect a new world order, the economic and political new world order, and a "mechanism" is in place to make sure nobody even aspires to upset that applecart.

Don't you think this is pretty scary stuff from our closest neighbour?
