RDOS conducts surveys

The Regional District of Okanagan-Similkameen recently conducted a telephone Citizen Survey. The survey, which was developed in 2010 is conducted biannually, and gages citizen's current perception of Regional District services. The information gathered is used to guide the Regional Board in the strategic planning process. It enables the Regional Board to make informed decisions about where to best apply resources in the future which will make the biggest difference to citizens.

Seniors host provincial event

Anita Drees, President of Senior Citizens Branch 30 worked on the Sixty-First Provincial Senior Citizens annual convention for a year, and declared it went "fairly well". Princeton hosted the convention as part of the 25th anniversary of the construction of the Senior Citizens Hall. Thirty-six delegates met in Princeton to discuss issues of concern to Senior Citizens Association branches across British Columbia. The conference began on Friday, May 23 and ended Sunday, May 25.

Friday and Saturday were very busy days for the hosts, Princeton members, and for the delegates.

The kitchen staff at the Senior Citizens Hall did a great job of providing beverages, snacks and meals during the conference, including the wrap-up banquet on Saturday evening.

Topics for discussion on Friday began with a talk by Jean Shirrite of Penticton on elder abuse. There are many forms of elder abuse ranging from physical and mental abuse to financial abuse, refusing to fill prescriptions for the elder, refusing to allow the elder access to friends, and many more.

The second speaker on Friday was Al Sismey of South Okanagan Crimestoppers. He explained what Crimestoppers does, how to report crimes to the agency, and the importance to the agency of maintaining strict confidentiality.

The conference was not all work. Conference organizers arranged for a tour of Princeton Museum and a trip to see historic Coalmont Hotel. Delegates chose one or the other of the activities. Entertainment on Friday was provided by Princeton's line dancers and local singer Alan K. Parsons.

Dealing with grief was a topic for Saturday morning, with speaker Jean Holloway.

Rodeo hosts October event

With many thanks for past support, Jennifer Bernard told Fall Fair members on May 27 that Princeton Rodeo Club will host the community Halloween party this year. The change has come about due to the announcement in February by Fall Fair President Dan Kastor that the Fall Fair could not afford the $600 increase in event insurance the Fall Fair would have to spend to host the Halloween party.

Princeton Rodeo Club was able to secure added insurance for fireworks for only $100, and was pleased to offer their support for the event.

There was a great deal of discussion at the Fall Fair meeting about who would operate the concession during the fair. A person, Amanda Young, a resident of the South Okanagan, wishes to operate the concession for the Fall Fair. The concession has been operated in the continued on Page 2

Flip Of The Coyne

by Spencer Coyne

The honey bee (Apis mellifera) the hard working pollinator the bringer of life and fruit. Little do most people realize, if it wasn't for that little buzzing yellow and black bug that visits our flowers each spring and summer, we would be a very hungry species. Actually if there were no honey bees, there is a really good chance that we wouldn't even exist or most of life on this planet wouldn't exist. The honey bee, for as small as it is, brings life to anything that has a flower. Honey bees and other pollinators fertilize the world's plants and our food crops depend on none more than the honey bee.

So you understand my shock that at the last Town Council meeting the motion to receive and file a simple proclamation declaring May 29 the day of the honey bee. I understand council gets more of these proclamations than you can shake a stick at, but let's face it, for the most part they are symbolic motions used to bring awareness to a cause. It wasn't like the proclamation was asking the Council to ban all cosmetic pesticides or find a cure for colony collapse disorder (which is wiping bees out at an alarming rate, so much so that beekeepers are struggling to keep their colonies alive). The scary part is that no one knows for sure what is killing off our bees.

All Council had to do was show a little solidarity with our hard working little partner the bee. They only had to proclaim May 29 the day of the Honey Bee, but they didn't. Instead they received and filed the request and our much needed little friend got no recognition from the elected officials of Princeton. I know it sounds funny making a stink out of what may seem like such a trivial action, but it isn't really trivial. It isn't trivial because it shows that our elected officials do not understand that without the bee there would be no agriculture. Without agriculture there would be no food and without food there would be no people. Unfortunately, this little fact was overlooked or ignored.

The funniest part of all this is that one of the councillors is a food security advocate and was part of a workshop in Hedley recently about food security. His fellow councillors, however, didn't get the memo on how important food security is, to not just the valley but the world. I wrote for years about local food security and its importance. Now you see local food security issues making national headlines with droughts, floods, and the death of bees, but that doesn't seem to be enough to get the rest of council's attention.

Maybe it is because I live on a farm that has a market garden that I understand that we need bees and how important local food security is. Maybe it is because if you want food you just run down to the local supermarket and pick up your groceries and never think twice that there is a system behind getting that food to your plate. The bee is a big part of that system and about one third of the food you eat or more is dependent on the bee for its survival.

I don't know what the rationale behind the decision to receive and file the proclamation was. I do know that the disconnect between the farm and the table is growing each and every day and maybe this is an example of that. Not thinking that the honey bee has anything to do with your everyday life is a sad example of how people no longer understand how food is made and how farmers get food from the field to your table. Maybe next time a simple proclamation like this comes across the desk of council members they will take a few moments to use that google machine and look up why it might be important rather than just tossing it out because they can't see the relevance.

In addition to the phone survey, an Online Citizen Survey will also be conducted during the month of June. The Online Citizen Survey has been added as another way to determine the satisfaction of residents within the Region District.

The Regional District of Okanagan-Similkameen is listening to you, and invites citizens to take the 2014 RDOS Online Citizen Survey at http://www.fluidsurveys.com/s/RDOS_2014_Citizen_Survey/.

Share your opinions and ideas about the Regional District of Okanagan-Similkameen. Survey results will assist the Regional District Board to evaluate programs, improve services and set budget priorities. Significant sections of the survey will question residents on quality of life, service satisfaction, environment, communications, information technology and fiscal responsibility.

The survey is completely anonymous, and takes approximately 5 minutes to complete.

The complete 2014 Citizen Survey will be available to download from the Regional District website in coming weeks. -submitted

My Turn...

This May Sting A Bit

The bees.

I must admit I never expected the move by Town Council to 'ignore' Day of the Honey Bee on May 29th to create such a, well, buzz.

For those of you who get all your news online from social network sites you'll know what I mean. The way in which local residents have reacted to something as simple, yet important to our very survival as a human species is pretty amazing.

What I mean is, imagine if Town Council had decided not to support something like "Bike to Work Week" or "Bring A Halt To Fracking" and it was leaked on social media?

Wow, that could be devastating considering less than one percent of the voting public bothers to snoop around online for such tidbits.

I know, I'm probably not helping matters any by writing about it (again) but the point I'm actually trying to make is this: Do you believe everything you read online? If you do, are you in for an education in the next few seconds.

I mentioned a number of weeks ago that I have a few regular (full-time) freelance writing jobs I work on in my spare time. Go ahead and laugh. I do have a few hours each night I can dedicate to my 'on the side' job.

One of my contracts a few weeks ago was to write testimonials for a number of different, well-known consumer products. Chances are, you own some of them or have been using the internet to research them because it's always better to get an opinion from someone who is a faceless, anonymous online entity than to ask someone who has one, right?

Well, I am here to tell you there's guys like me who get paid to write those things you read online raving about Product A or B and use words and phrases that are supposed to woo you into buying the product as it is something you need so badly you can practically taste it.

The funny part is, of all the consumer product testimonials I've written I have never touched any of the items. As they are freelance jobs, you won't find my name attached to any of them. Plus, they have been posted on blogs, how-to sites and just about any other consumer rating website you may use to find this information.

So I'm telling you to beware. Be very wary of what you read online. Not all of it is true and much of it is designed to make you believe something based on very little factual research or practical knowledge.

That's also a good rule to follow when it comes to communicating or reacting to posts appearing on social media sites. Do your own homework, and not online, to get the full story and you'll be amazed what you may or may not find out.

As for shopping online, the old adage of 'Buyer Beware' comes to mind.

It's as current today as it was the first time it was ever spoken along with the line "There's a sucker born every minute."

Try not to be the next one.

Hartwell hopes you'll open your heart

by Renee Hartwell
2014 Ride to Conquer Cancer Participant

I was fortunate enough to be a part of my friend, Lisa's, pit crew for the 2013 RTCC (Ride to Conquer Cancer), who was riding in memory of her father. It is not the first time she has inspired me, and when she asked me to join her on the 2014 ride I of course accepted the challenge. Advice I have been given at some time in the recent past, is to take challenges and opportunities as they come, while you are able to, because no one knows what the future holds.

We have all been touched by the devastation of cancer in some way or another. In my lifetime I have seen a teacher, aunt, uncles, cousins, family friends and family of friends fight the courageous battle against cancer. Some won the battle and others live in our memories.

I would like to dedicate my ride to my uncle Jim who was taken from us too soon. He fought a good fight for years with strong determination. He was the best of men, leaving behind a wonderful family who fought right alongside him. The journey they have endured is one I hope to never know directly, and I ride for their bravery and know that if I have just an ounce of their perseverance on the ride, it will be a breeze.

Here's a little bit of information about the ride. The Enbridge Ride to Conquer Cancer benefitting BC Cancer Foundation, is a two-day, almost 200 km cycling journey, from Surrey to close to Seattle taking place in June. It will be a challenge in a number of ways, but I have the bike, the best trainer around being my husband Ryan, and the support of my family and friends and with your generosity, a real impact will be made! The 2013 RTCC raised 10.4 million dollars, and with your help we can beat that!

I am asking you to please help me in raising much needed funds to continued on Page 23

Remember The Lessons Of D-Day

Dawn Johnson
editor@thenewsleader.ca

This Friday is the seventieth anniversary of D-Day, the day the Allied Forces stormed the beaches of Normandy and began the march to Berlin. It was not the end of the war, but D-Day led ultimately to the defeat of the Nazis. Through the 11 months after D-Day, millions died, and a high percentage of those millions were people in concentration camps. Films and photographs of the horror discovered at those camps has haunted the world for generations.

Analysis of how a civilized nation could engage in deliberate extermination of a whole sector of population has led to many lessons for the world, some of which are being forgotten.

The Nuremberg trials that began after the war ended focused on convicting key participants in the extermination plan. Testimony of the elite of the Third Reich was as revealing as the testimony of those victimized by the Nazis. Perhaps what was said in the defense of the Nazi elite contained the greatest lessons for all of us.

Judge Haywood, at a trial of Nazi judges who were found guilty of sentencing innocent people, spoke of the need to protect civilization itself from perpetrating crimes against humanity. He said it was essential that the truth be told.

D-Day marks the beginning of the end of Nazi domination of Europe. D-Day cost the lives of thousands of men. Hollywood has done a good job of showing us what a bloodbath took place on the beaches of Normandy, but that is what war is about. Soldiers are prepared to sacrifice their lives, and nations are prepared to sacrifice the lives of soldiers. What the Nazis had done in Europe was sacrifice members of society who were opposed to the Nazis, or who were Jewish, or who suffered from mental or physical disabilities. Those people were sacrificed for the greater glory of Nazi political power.

Nazi war criminals justified what they did by saying it was for the good of their country, or that they were just following orders, or that they had little choice because of the fear of what would happen to them if they did not go along with what the Nazi government, or Hitler, wanted. One of the favourite lines of defense was that those who signed execution orders did so because it was the law. They were only following the law of the land, laws passed by the Nazi government. The Nuremberg trials said those were not good excuses for the deliberate extermination of millions of people.

We need to be reminded of what happened in Nazi Germany. We need to be reminded that political leaders should never have so much power that they can change the laws so that people live in fear of their own government. We need to be reminded that those who speak out against injustice must be protected from the wrath of political leaders. We need to be reminded that those who find the truth unpleasant or politically detrimental. We must be reminded that we have to protect justice itself in order to protect civilization.

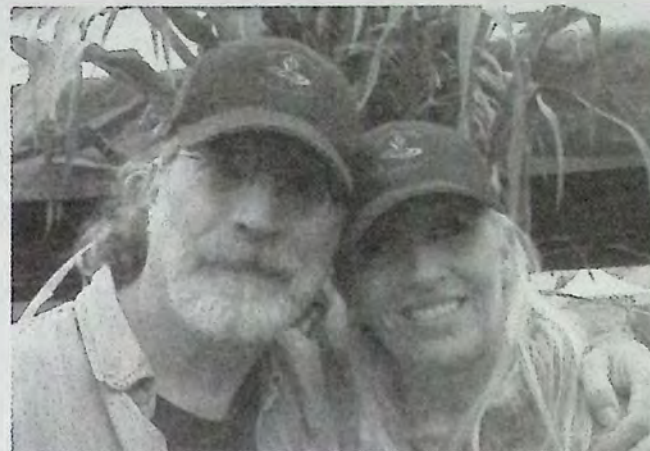

Looking back 70 years gives us the feeling that what happened in Nazi Germany is just part of the past, that things are different now, but that kind of thinking is delusional. Since World War II, we have seen the rise of political leaders who thought nothing of murdering those who spoke out against an unjust government. It happened in Uganda under the rule of Idi Amin, who murdered thousands of Ugandans for the sake of protecting his brand of politics. Idi Amin was a great admirer of Hitler. We saw it in South Africa and in the southern United States. We have seen this kind of unjust government arise in many countries, and we have witnessed injustice in the name of politics not only in civil wars but in countless ways in so-called civilized nations. We have witnessed the truth buried in the name of political power, and we have seen those persecuted who tried to expose the truth.

Those who protest government action, or expose truths the government wants to bury, or tell the truth about certain situations the government or corporation would rather conceal, are often treated unjustly. They may face police attack, be imprisoned, lose their jobs, or be called "conspiracy theorists" or lunatic fringe. For example, people opposed to HAARP were told there is no such thing, they were labelled conspiracy theorists, yet HAARP and the future of HAARP was discussed in Congress in May. People

Grist Mill welcomes innovative chef

As the Similkameen Valley becomes a destination for the creative cook to source the freshest ingredients, one of its iconic historic sites has added a seasoned chef to its team.

The Grist Mill and Gardens at Keremeos welcomes Chef Natasha Schooten, whose career has taken her from two Delta Hotels and Resorts, to Mission Hill Family Estate Winery, and most recently to Terrafina Restaurant at Hester Creek Estate Winery.

"Here in the Okanagan and Similkameen valleys, chefs are blessed with plentiful access to the freshest ingredients, from organic vegetables to thoughtfully raised proteins," says Chef Natasha.

"Setting menus for the Tea Room and events at the Grist Mill in the heart of farming country is an exceptional opportunity for me as a chef."

The Grist Mill is home to the mill itself – the only working mill of its type west of Winnipeg, and a provincial heritage site – where visitors can watch grain becoming flour; originally built in 1877, the mill produces flour that may very well end up in the site's own outdoor stone oven. A campground, the Tea Room, gift shop, and surrounding gardens round out an entire experience not to be missed.

Heritage plays a critical role on the property, where almost 40 varieties of heritage apple trees thrive, and research has led to the preservation and popularity of wheat types, such as Red Fife.

"We are pleased to welcome Chef Natasha as we continue to build our capacity for visitors, and treat them to a true farm to table experience," says Chris Mathieson, operator of the site. "We are very lucky to have a chef of such caliber plant her culinary roots in the Similkameen."

Chef Natasha has already begun establishing herself at the Grist Mill. She will soon be placing her stamp on the menu in the Tea Room, where visitors can enjoy local preserves, organic tea and coffee, as well as a lunch of soup, salads and sandwiches, from all locally sourced, seasonal and ingredients, as well as creating menus for the Mill's summer concert series and other special events. Many of the vegetables and herbs used in the dishes will come from heritage plants grown on the site's two acre garden, and of course the freshly milled flour will be highlighted.

"I have often come to the Similkameen for ingredients, now they will be closer than ever, and truly reflect the history of agriculture and preservation at the Mill," says the chef.

ABOUT THE MILL

The Grist Mill and Gardens is a Provincial Historic Site that has much to offer visitors: tour the spectacular gardens, explore a working 1877 waterwheel-powered flour mill, enjoy fresh-made soups, salads and sandwiches made from freshest local produce in the Tea Room, browse in the unique gift shop, or stay overnight at the creek side RV campground.

Also be sure to check their website for details on our many summer concerts, workshops, presentations and other special events. - submitted

Suggested format for the play is a Victorian melodrama but other types of short historical pieces in drama or comedy for the time period will be welcome.

Sealed entries in an envelope bearing the author's name and contact information will be held and then opened June 27th after the 5:00 PM deadline.

Entries may be mailed to Play Contest c/o Similkameen Family Literacy, 720 Third Street, Keremeos BC V0X 1N3 or dropped off at 310 Veteran's Avenue Monday to Friday, 8:00 AM to 12 Noon.

Saddles 'n' Spurs

by Pastor George Donovan

Time was going by fast and I wanted to be in cowboy country. We packed up along with two other families and a forty foot trailer and headed for 100 Mile House. We couldn't afford a ranch so we purchased a home on a small acreage in an area nicknamed Gusville on Bridge Creek.

You may remember Sparky, the cheeky little black horse that we had to lasso in order to catch her back at the dude ranch. We brought her with us and had the same problem.

There were two or three occasions where had to set a snare to catch her. We did this by putting a loop in the trees, tying the lariat back to another tree which would have enough spring in it so it wouldn't break her neck on a trail that she would most likely run through.

It worked great but we had to do a lot of chasing around to get her to go through the trail. Once we caught her we would take her back into our small acreage and hope that she would stay without breaking through a fence.

One day I arrived home after work and looked for Sparky, thinking that she was probably gone again so I asked my wife what happened and she, with obvious exasperation, said "I gave her away!" I said, "What, you gave the horse away?"

So I asked her where the saddle and tack were. She replied, "I told the girl that if she could catch her she could have her, tack and all!"

The only thing I had left was my lariat. Never saw Sparky again, hope she had a good home.

Tis The Season For Asparagus

The annual asparagus crop is available now. This season lasts only a short time, but if you like asparagus, keep in mind it can be frozen simply by blanching it for about half a minute and putting it in freezer bags.

In some places of the world, people would be astonished at what we pay for asparagus. In Poland, it grows like weeds at the edge of the tundra. They simply go out and pick it. There is so much of it that cattle graze on it.

The health benefits of asparagus have been known for centuries. Cleansing the face with water in which the asparagus has been cooked is a traditional treatment for those teenage pimples. Cooked asparagus is good for dissolving uric acid deposits in fingers and feet, and is excellent for kidney function. Asparagus is good for the digestive system and relieves constipation. Asparagus is known to lower blood pressure.

Asparagus is rich in folate, a B vitamin that helps your body cells renew themselves. Asparagus fights heart disease because heart problems can be caused by lack of folate. Most North Americans do not eat enough foods rich in folate. Folate is also important in preventing colon cancer.

Glutathione is a protein which acts as an antioxidant. Asparagus has an abundance of glutathione, another substance which helps prevent cancer.

There is a lot of Vitamin E in asparagus, and vitamin E helps protect the pancreas. This organ is essential for producing insulin, and needs to be healthy.

When preparing asparagus for a meal, cook it gently. Steam cook it for only five minutes. You will preserve all of the nutrients this way. Canned asparagus has lost much of its original food value, but frozen asparagus will retain much more of its nutrients if blanched quickly before freezing. When using frozen asparagus, drop it into boiling water and turn off the heat immediately, allowing it to cook for five minutes in a pot with a lid on it.

If you would like to grow your own asparagus, you can buy asparagus roots and plant them in reasonably good soil. When the plant is firmly rooted and cared for, it will produce for years.

Osprey Lake friends conduct clean up

by Terry Tellier
Friends of Osprey Lake

Twenty volunteers from Osprey, Link and Chain Lakes area participated in the 7th annual roadside cleanup on Saturday May 25th. They picked up garbage on approximately 40 kilometres of roadways, some sections of the Trans-Canada Trail as well as the Osprey and Link Lake Forestry Recreational Campsites. The total weight of the debris clocked in at 410 kg. or 900 lbs. The waste was sorted after it was collected. Categories of the litter included items which could be reused, metal, glass, recyclable bottles and cans, clean Styrofoam, propane cylinders, plastic and landfill material.

Two members of the cleanup had to clean up an illegal dump site on a very steep embankment using a winch and rope. The dumped items were likely used for a party crowd and included plastic cups, paper plates, remnants of food and plastic utensils. Also at this site were many plastic garbage bags filled with dirt. The soil was dumped and the bags collected for disposal.

The most disappointing part of our cleanup is that no matter how much education we have had, people are still leaving garbage in firepits at the campsites and outside their residences. The bears who have found this food source are no doubt the ones which will have to be destroyed in the future. "A fed bear is a dead bear" is a statement we should all take heed of if we want to preserve nature and our environment.

Finally, cigarette packaging and remnants of the filters are one of the most frequently found items. The butts of cigarettes can be ingested by wildlife, birds, fish or turtles. They can cause choking and death for those unsuspecting creatures. The next time you dump your vehicle ashtray or cigarette on the ground consider the consequences for them and for the possibility of causing a forest fire which can lead to criminal charges.

Many kudos go to all the volunteers and people who care for our earth and keep it safe and clean for all to enjoy. Special thanks go to Norm Christman, Jill Pelland who took the garbage to the landfill and to Lynne Adams who recycles the bottles and cans. We also would like to commend the Town of Princeton for waiving the landfill fees and the Osprey Ratepayers who advertise the event on their website throughout the year.

How to beat Str8ts - Like Sudoku, no single number can repeat in any row or column. But... rows and columns are divided by black squares into compartments. These need to be filled in with numbers that complete a 'straight'. A straight is a set of numbers with no gaps but can be in any order, eg [4,2,3,5]. Clues in black cells remove that number as an option in that row and column, and are not part of any straight. Glance at the solution to see how 'straights' are formed.

HOSHI SUDOKU - About The Puzzle

Sudoku - also known as "Number Place" - is a logic-based, combinatorial number-placement puzzle. The aim of Sudoku is to enter a number from 1 through 9 in each cell of a grid, most frequently a 9x9 grid made up of 3x3 subgrids. Each row, column and region must contain only one instance of each number. This Sudoku variant is called "Hoshi Sudoku". It contains six large triangles. The numbers 1 to 9 must be placed into the cells of each large triangle. Every line of any length - even uncontinuous - must contain every number not more than once.

Princeton Youth Soccer

Princeton And Keremeos Players Enjoy Tournament

Kick a ball and make some friends!

Princeton Youth Soccer has been running in Princeton for over thirty years. Currently, there are eighty kids registered between the ages four and grade four.

On each team there are ten to twelve kids. All of the teams have one or two coaches that volunteer their time each season. Most of the coaches are students from Princeton Secondary School, and a few are parents or adults in the community.

Princeton Youth Soccer focuses on skill building, teamwork and having fun each Spring. They practice on Monday and Wednesday nights at Vermillion Forks School between 6:00 and 7:00 PM.

Local players recently participated in a tournament in Keremeos on May 24. Both Alicia Hargrave (Princeton) and Mishak Potash (Keremeos) organized the tournament.

The kids had a great time playing and were cheered on by parents and grandparents. Another tournament is being planned for June 7th in Princeton. - photos and article submitted

News Leader Recipe 615

Crunch Burgers

(NC) Making a tower of chips and crushing them into smithereens is bound to bring back the kid in you. From Weber's Big Book of Burgers, this is a recipe creation that your own kids will love building too. Serves: 4 (makes 8 sliders) Prep time: 10 minutes. Grilling time: about 6 minutes.

Patties

- 1 1/2 pounds ground chuck (80% lean)
- 1 tablespoon ketchup
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 2 slices cheddar cheese, each about 1 ounce, cut into quarters
- 8 slider buns, split
- Ketchup (optional)
- 16 dill pickle chips
- 8 handfuls thin potato chips, such as Lay's® Classic

1. Mix the patty ingredients, and then gently form eight patties of equal size, each about 1/2 inch thick. Refrigerate the patties until ready to grill.
2. Prepare the grill for direct cooking over medium-high heat (400° to 500°F).
3. Grill the patties over direct medium-high heat, with the lid closed, until cooked to medium doneness (160°F), about 6 minutes, turning once. During the last 30 seconds to 1 minute of grilling time, place a quarter-slice of cheese on each patty to melt, and toast the buns, cut side down, over direct heat.
4. Place a patty on each bottom bun half and top with ketchup (if using), a patty, pickles, and a stack of chips. Put the bun tops on and then press down. Serve immediately.

Have you noticed the addition to downtown Princeton that appeared last week? *

Saving Downtown Princeton...

...An Ongoing Series by George Elliott

There are a number of ways you can help save downtown Princeton.

I'm sure you're getting tired of me telling you that you need to support your local retailers but did you know that doesn't always have to be through shopping?

Well, you can show your support in many different ways including directing a friend, neighbour or relative to a local store when they mention they are looking for something and plan to look for it out of town.

You can be a good ambassador of your community by doing the same thing online in social media sites and when you encounter strangers and tourists wherever you go who mention they are looking for (fill in the blank).

Another great way of helping your downtown core grow and build strength is to compliment those who are doing good things. This also means telling any of us when we aren't meeting your expectations.

I've never shied away from publishing Letters to the Editor patting local businesses on the back for doing a good deed or for going that extra mile for a customer or stranger. Those things do have an impact on how all of us do business in a small town.

That being said, I did have to reject a letter recently that was very critical of a local service. It's not the first time I've had a letter like that come across my desk and in all honesty, they aren't as frequent as the complimentary ones.

My suggestion to those who encounter a problem with a local business where you feel you were done wrong in some way is easy.

First take it up with the business owner. If that doesn't work, or is not possible to do for some reason, my next suggestion is to take it up with the Chamber of Commerce.

Yes, that's right.

You may not realize this, but if the Chamber of Commerce is supposed to represent local business, then they should be the ones notified of any wrongdoing of their membership. I have been assured that complaints are dealt with professionally and I am glad to see they don't take that sort of thing lightly.

The last thing any local business owner/operator needs is a nasty letter to appear in this newspaper (which won't happen) or spread all over the internet.

Looking at it from the perspective of the customer, I can see how tempting it is to spread all kinds of nasty things about a business when you aren't satisfied with their service, pricing, selection or whatever. However, it is because of this that you can provide a vital piece of the puzzle to the retail core.

I know I may not always like to hear what some of you think about my business, but if I want to improve my business I better listen to it and try to figure out what I can do about fixing some of the things that generate complaints.

Lucky for me, we don't get a lot of criticism in what we do but when we do it's usually constructive and some of the suggestions we have acted upon. I like to think those changes help to make my product better and hopefully more appealing to customers.

If I had a retail business I would think the same way so if you shop somewhere in town and they don't have the brand of (fill in the blank) you are looking for, ask. Maybe they'll start to carry it. If they aren't as accepting of your suggestion, then I don't blame you for trying to shop elsewhere for that same item.

As business owners/operators in a small town we all face the same issues. We have only so many people to choose from for customers and if we don't listen to them we can find that number of potential customers slowly decrease.

What does this have to do with saving downtown Princeton?

It puts you, the consumer in control. If you don't like grocery prices in town, lobby the Chamber of Commerce to get their business development committee working on attracting that kind of investment.

This means encouraging another grocery store to join the downtown core.

When that happens, it keeps grocery spending in Princeton and forces competitors to take a look at pricing, which ultimately benefits shoppers.

I use groceries here as just an example but it can be used on anything you buy in Princeton. Think about it the next time you think you have no say and decide to take your business out of town.

In Toronto, people protesting the IMF and other economic measures of the G-20 summit were met with police violence.

The voice calling for justice and for truth must never be silenced or we will find ourselves living in a society in which justice and truth are against the law, and where uncivilized behaviour becomes acceptable. Atamanenko agrees about FATCA

BC Southern Interior MP, Alex Atamanenko supports the Official Opposition's fight against the reckless implementation of the U.S. Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (FATCA) and urges his colleagues to continue to push Conservatives at Finance Committee to remove it from Budget Bill C-31 so that it can be properly scrutinized and amended.

"It has become increasingly clear, through departmental and witness appearances at the Finance Committee, that the Conservative government simply has not studied the implications of the FATCA implementation agreement with respect to privacy, constitutionality or cost," said NDP National Revenue critic, Murray Rankin (Victoria).

"Rushing it through in an omnibus budget bill without proper study is reckless and unnecessary."

"I want to thank my colleague, Murray Rankin, for taking up the gauntlet and fighting FATCA," said Atamanenko.

"Ultimately every Canadian will be affected by this flawed agreement," added the NDP MP.

The U.S. has delayed the application of FATCA sanctions until January 2015. Canada is already deemed in compliance with U.S. law, and legal experts agree there is enough time to properly study and amend the agreement.

The NDP will move a series of amendments at committee to fight the Conservatives' attempt to impose FATCA and protect the privacy of Canadians. Atamanenko has been protesting the imposition of FATCA and FBAR law on Canadians since 2011.

Study shows 2009 recession continues

A new report by the Chartered Professional Accountants of BC (CPABC) indicates that in 2013, population and development activity decreased in the Thompson-Okanagan.

According to the BC Check-Up, Regional Edition, population declined in 2013, as net migration, a main source of the region's growth, fell for the first time in more than 25 years. Retirees and second home buyers, who were growth catalysts for many years, have yet to return to the region. As a consequence, development activity dropped to its lowest level in six years and jobs were lost in construction and other related service industries.

"The relatively lower housing prices compared to our neighbouring markets than before might bring the attention back to the region's housing market," said Jeff Omland, CPA, CA, partner with Omland Heal Chartered Accountants.

After job gains in the last half of 2012, the region's employment plummeted until April 2013, when employment numbers began to recover. Nevertheless, average annual employment was down 7,500 jobs—a decrease of 2.9 per cent and the largest job loss since 2009. Almost three-quarters of these losses were part-time jobs. The region's employment loss (-2.9 per cent) was more than three times the provincial average of -0.9 per cent.

Business bankruptcies in the region rose for the second consecutive year, increasing from 43 in 2012, to 54 in 2013. This increase is

Also thanks to Home Hardware and Cool Beanz for contributing auction items.

Survey shows recession continues

..... continued from Page 22 not surprising given the region's struggling economy and lack of population growth in 2013. It also reflects that the region's economic performance in 2013 was still hampered by the 2009 recession. In contrast, the rate of consumer insolvency in the region decreased by 5 per cent in 2013. Despite the decrease, the region's insolvency rate remained the second highest in 2013.

Two bright spots last year were the continued strength of forestry and wood products manufacturing, and the stimulation of real estate sales as a result of low interest rates and lower prices. The outlook for the region's economy is uncertain for 2014, and will depend upon the continued performance of the resources sector.

"For 2014, forestry, support activities, and mill employment appear poised to expand or at least remain stable," said Omland.

"Demand for forest products is expected to continue to grow this year, increasing prices and sustaining mills with higher production costs. Also, the lower Canadian dollar may encourage more American tourists and Canadians to spend vacation in the region."

The Thompson- Okanagan Development Region comprises five Regional Districts, the Okanagan-Similkameen, Thompson-Nicola, Central Okanagan, North Okanagan, and Columbia-Shuswap, and has the third-highest population after Southwest B.C. and Vancouver Island/Coast.

The BC Check-Up, Regional Edition looks at each region as a place to work, invest, and live. The report is available online at: www.bccheckup.com.
